

Conference to Put Music Forces in Orbit

By GEORGE ERES
The City Council, Board of Education, State College and The Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday jointly announced endorsement of a call to a city-wide Conference on Music.

The call to the conference—first of its kind here—was issued by the Long Beach Music Council committee, under the temporary chairmanship of Dr. Bertram McGarrity, professor of music at Long Beach State College.

One of the possibilities of a concerted city-wide effort is noted in the policy statement adopted by the Music Council:

"Perhaps, in another year, we can establish a Long Beach Music Festival which will provide a focus for the musical life of the entire community...."

THE PURPOSE of the conference, tentatively scheduled for the later part of January, said McGarrity, "is to bring together a report on music in today's Long Beach; to elicit ideas from all segments of our musical life; to generate enthusiasm and give direction to a breakthrough to a new level for musical culture in Long Beach...."

A program for the conference—speakers and subjects—now is being drawn up by Fred Ohlendorf, acting supervisor of music for the Long Beach Unified School District; Royal Stanton, head of the music department at Long Beach City College; Lauris Jones, conductor of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, and McGarrity.

OTHERS ON THE Music Council's committee are: Dr. Robert Buffum, chairman of the Municipal Arts Committee; H. C. Green, president of the Musicians' Assn., Local 353; Dr. Frank Harnett, director of the City Recreation

Aerial Grab for Satellite Capsule Fails

Surface Search for Cane Due to Start Today

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The Air Force said Saturday night that it is sure the lost capsule of its Discoverer VIII satellite separated from the orbiting vehicle and plunged toward the sea near Hawaii.

The Air Force is also sure the retro-rocket which was to slow its descent fired as planned.

But—said a spokesman—there's no indication that the falling capsule's parachute opened.

WITHOUT the chute the capsule might hit the sea moving so fast it could break open and sink, experts said. It normally would float.

The Air Force had hoped to snatch the 300-pound capsule from the air as it fell, using planes dragging trapeze-like rigs behind them. They missed it, and the planes were called back.

A search vessel is due to reach early today the area where the object is believed to have fallen.

THE AIR FORCE said it had positive indications of the successful operation of the recovery sequence up to the point of parachute deployment. According to tracking data, the Air Force said after separation the capsule may have impacted somewhat south of the predicted area southeast of Hawaii.

This was the fifth attempt to recover a capsule that had been in orbit around the earth. The four previous attempts failed.

City Alert to Hit L.A. Bid to Dump Rubbish on County

By GEORGE WEEKS
City officials here are on the alert for a possible move by the City of Los Angeles to dump its maze of rubbish-collection troubles on the county.

"The pressure is on," said two county officials in key positions.

They refused to be quoted by name. But both told The Independent, Press-Telegram that it appears likely Los Angeles city officials, desperate about exposures of inept and costly collections under city administration, will turn to the county for help.

Whether the move will develop at a meeting Monday between the Board of Supervisors and officials of many Los Angeles County cities remained uncertain.

But Long Beach officials who will attend the joint session have been warned to be on the lookout for it. And the Long Beach City Council is on record as favoring home rule in refuse collections—along with home responsibility.

The Los Angeles County Division of the League of California Cities has taken substantially the same position.

APPARENTLY ON GUARD for some proposal for a county-wide system, the league resolved that participation by any city "in consolidated or coordinated disposal or collection of refuse be entirely permissive, and not mandatory, as to that city."

It noted that the cities use many different methods in the house-to-house collection of rubbish, although conceding that disposal of the refuse (once it is collected) is an area-wide problem.

The league emphasized that the existing county sanitation districts, with representation on each board by the mayors or councilmen of all cities within each district, have "demonstrated competency" in the field of disposal.

The districts, of which there are 23 in the county, already are operating two self-financing disposal sites, have initiated proceedings for two more and are negotiating for a fifth.

VICE MAYOR VIRGIL H. SPONGBERG, Long Beach's representative to the league, said he would have no objection to Los Angeles availing itself of this disposal service, as do many other cities, provided it pays the self-liquidating disposal charges.

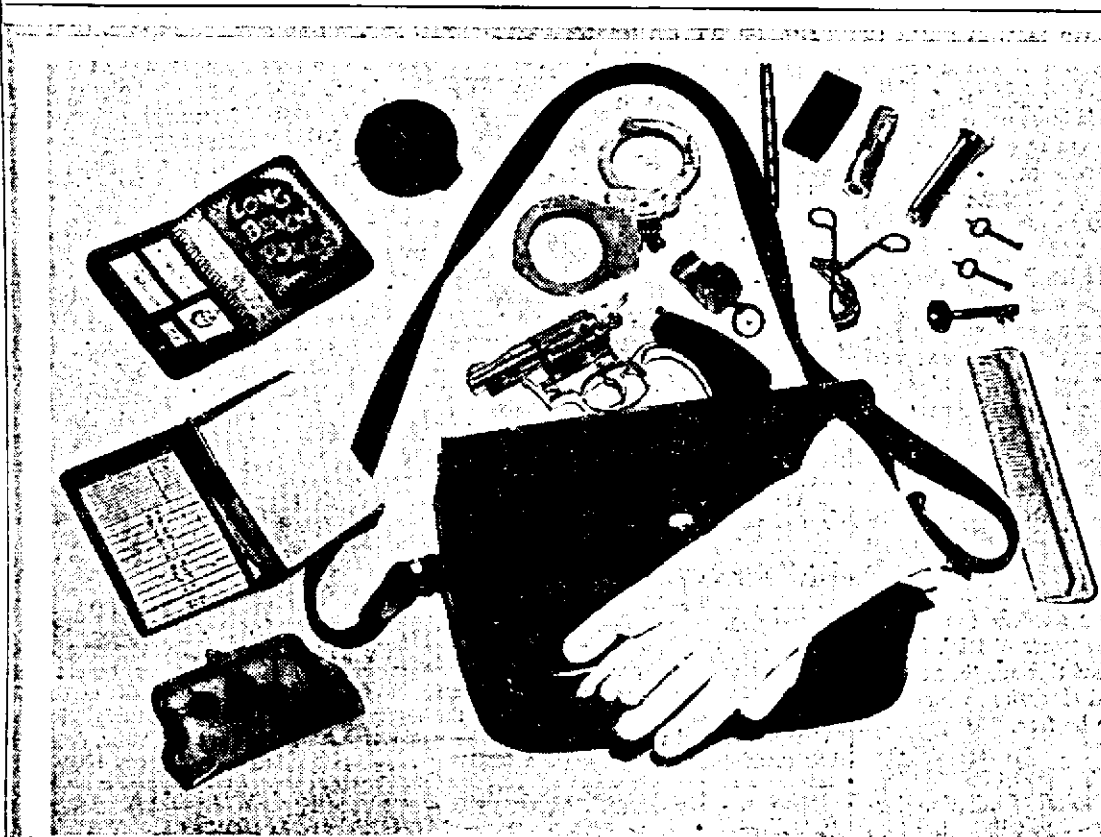

But he said he would object to any move to impose on county-wide taxpayers the City of Los Angeles' collection or disposal burdens.

Sponberg will represent the City Council at the meeting Monday with the Board of Supervisors. Other local officials attending will be James Kincaid, director of public service, and Jess D. Gilkerson, city engineer.

The supervisors are also on record as generally favoring the present system. Two of them, Burton Chace and Frank Bonelli, both of whom represent portions of Long Beach, are reported as firmly opposed to the county's

Nixon Told Others May Get Approval

Request Initiated in Letter Written Mr. K in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has granted permission to four Russians to join relatives in the United States, Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday. Nixon said his information had come from the State Department.

One of the four is already in the United States.

At the same time, Nixon made public a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko stating that consideration would be given to requests by other Russians who wish to be reunited with relatives here.

"Their requests will be considered with proper attention as is always the case in consideration of such affairs," Gromyko said in a telegraphed letter to Nixon as made public by the vice president's office. Such "consideration" includes clearance by Soviet police.

NIXON'S OFFICE said the four already granted permission to leave Russia are:

Karl Aistrants, husband of Mrs. Amilda Aistrants, Rochester, N. Y.; Julianna Nicias, mother of Mrs. Valentin Nicias Avotins, Chicago; Mrs. Natali Yarits, wife of John Yarits, Hollywood, Fla.; and Anne-Reet Nomm, daughter of Mrs. Amilda Nomm, Detroit. Aistrants arrived in this country a month ago.

In a letter to Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev last Aug. 1, Nixon listed the names of more than 100 persons.

Boy, 9, Saved After Floating Quarter Mile in N.Y. Sewer

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 9-year-old boy, pushed into a manhole by a playmate, floated a quarter of a mile through a sewer tunnel Saturday and emerged in the Harlem River, where he was rescued by police.

Antonio Batista was pulled from the freezing water by police about 40 minutes after he plunged into the manhole. Taken to a hospital, doctors said he appeared to be in good condition, but would remain there a few days.

The boy, a Puerto Rican, said he and 11 friends had been playing "monster" in High Bridge Park, the same park where teenaged invalid Michael Farmer was stabbed fatally by a youth gang several years ago.

"WHOEVER caught the monster, then they had to be it," the boy told newsmen from his hospital bed. "But some other boys started throwing rocks and then one of those boys pushed me."

"I don't know how far I FELL INTO SEWER, but I landed in water and I tried to get out. But I couldn't, so I rested and hung on this rock. Finally I let myself go. I knew there would be a place to get out and I floated out."

Police, alerted by the other boys, sped to the mouth of the tunnel where it empties into the Harlem River. The river separates the upper end of Manhattan Island from the Bronx.

A police launch, three radio cars and an emergency truck were waiting as the boy, a fourth grader, bobbed out of the tunnel. Patrolman Anthony Taccia spotted him first. He stripped off his jacket and dove into the water from the launch. "I don't know how the kid made it but I guess that he hung on to something as he came out," Taccia said later. "He's lucky that he didn't get hurt."

Ike Picks Military Aid Chief

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower set up in the Pentagon Saturday what amounts to a chief of staff for military aid to friendly nations.

Eisenhower named a four-star Army general, Williston B. Palmer, to boss the military assistance program.

Palmer will work closely with the military Joint Chiefs of Staff—the uniformed heads of the armed services. His temporary White House said he will take over next month and will have the same rank and authority in his field which JCS members have in theirs. He will not be a JCS member, however.

The move to strengthen the military aid program coincided with another presidential conference on the military budget. Military aid will be included in the new defense budget for the first time. The cost for the 1961 fiscal year beginning next July 1 is estimated at some $1,300,000,000.

HUSKIES-BADGERS ON JAN. 1

Bruins Shock USC, 10-3; Rose Bowl Foes Decided

The University of Southern California Trojans—which had been one of the two remaining unbeaten-united teams in the country—fell before UCLA, 10-3, Saturday.

Syracuse now stands alone as the goliath of the nation, the only undefeated-united major team.

Southern Cal, whipped in the last quarter when UCLA scored the game's only touchdown, is on NCAA probation and the defeat has no significance in the bowl picture.

Meanwhile, Wisconsin's Badgers wrapped up the Big 10 title by defeating Minnesota, 11-7, and will meet Washington in the Rose Bowl. (Details in the Sports Section.)

Pioneer Rock, Roll Disc Jockey Fired

NEW YORK (UPI) — Disc jockey Alan Freed, a pioneer in the rock 'n' roll record craze, was fired Saturday by the American Broadcasting Company's New York radio station WABC.

The National Broadcasting Company announced at the same time that the TV giveaway show, "Treasure Hunt," would go off the air after the Dec. 4 program.

Robert Kintner, president of NBC, disclosed recently that two "warmup men" on "Treasure Hunt" had been taking kickbacks from contestants. Both were fired.

WABC gave no reason for firing Freed, one of the nation's top disc jockeys. His traveling "big beat" shows were banned in various cities because of teenagers' riots.

Meanwhile, the House subcommittee investigating alleged "payola" handouts to radio-TV disc jockeys for plugging certain songs disclosed in Washington it is being deluged with "clues and leads" from newspaper reports across the country.

The Freed firing came in advance of a new House subcommittee inquiry aimed at "payola" practices in the disc jockey field. The committee previously exposed TV quiz-show rigging.

Bare Scandal in Food for Refugee Tots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic senators touring the Middle East charged Saturday that ration cards have been denied to an estimated 100,000 refugee babies in Jordan while thousands of ration cards are being misused.

Sens. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) and Gale W. McGee (D-Wyo.) leveled the charge in protesting any extension of the Palestine refugee program unless the rationing system is overhauled.

THEY SENT a protest to President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and the United Nations. It said the rationing program is "immoral, dishonest and unfair" and laid most of the blame at the feet of the Jordanian government.

Gore is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee which deals with Middle East affairs. McGee is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

They said ration cards have been denied to an estimated 100,000 babies of refugee families from Palestine since Jan. 1, 1951, although thousands of refugee ration cards are being misused in the black market.

Diver Cut by Boat's Prop Dies

A Coast Guard mercy mission was unsuccessful Saturday in an attempt to save the life of a skindiver who was hit by a boat near Santa Barbara Island.

The victim, Harold Gavenman, of Canoga Park, was dead on arrival at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport.

Coast Guard officials said Gavenman was struck by the propeller of the boat and suffered extensive leg cuts. The boat was identified as the Vellron.

Gavenman was taken to Isthmus Cove by the boat Native, where he was picked up by a San Diego-based Coast Guard helicopter and flown to the hospital.

Fan Collapses, Dies at Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — A 75-year-old man suffered a heart attack and died Saturday afternoon while attending the UCLA-USC football game at the Coliseum.

Henry Laub of North Hollywood suffered the attack during the exciting tussle which saw UCLA knock USC from the unbeaten ranks, 10-3, in one of the season's biggest upsets.

L.A.C. Says: Temporary Successes

"The past is the land of missing persons, and it is only by a combination of diligence and good fortune that anyone who is not monumentally known can be found there." We cannot remember who wrote that, but it certainly applies to most of us. We have seen many temporary successes in our community who blossomed for a few years, some as many as 10 or 12, only to sink into obscurity. Many of these men ran into hard luck. Most of them let a run of good luck convince them that they were some sort of super being. When the going got tough, they were among the first to fail because they never built upon a sound foundation.

We look at many of our outstanding successes of today and wonder how many will hold that position 10 years from now. On the basis of past records no more than two out of 10 will have maintained the high standard of success with which they are now credited. All up and down Pine Ave. we can recall successes of the past which turned into dismal failures. We recall them on Signal Hill, among our real estate developers and in about every line of endeavor. It is a discouraging view to look backward at these men we have seen on top and find many of them suffering privations now. We recall many others who ended up on charity rolls or who died with a broken heart and spirit.

What brought about their failures no one can say because it was somewhat different in every case. But fundamentally, this writer is convinced, it was because the individual became overconfident and in many cases arrogant. He failed to realize how much luck had to do with his success. When men become so sure of themselves that they lose humbleness, they are in danger. We know of very few men who have held their success over many years who can tell you just what move started them on the right road. These men know that had they taken the wrong turn at some point they might never have risen above the average.

The rolls of country clubs and the records of deposits in banks are depressing evidence that so-called success is fleeting. But they are not evidence that real success is fleeting. To us real success is when a family always spends just a little less than it earns and when it recognizes that real financial success can be assured only after it has had long years of trial. It can be assured only after it has passed through the various ups and downs of inflation and recession, which our economy must pass through to be free.

* * *

We may be facing another spiral of inflation during which time many more successes will spring into being. But it may be of extreme danger to the individuals unless they have learned the lessons of others who have passed their way. They would be wise to remember the old admonition, "As you go up the ladder of success, may you not meet a friend coming down." It is a fortunate and wise man who can honestly and fearlessly analyze himself.—L.A.C.

Government Plans Steel Peace Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government officials, seeking a solution of the steel strike, plan a strategy session here next week to map new peace moves.

The officials have let two weeks go by since the Supreme Court upheld the Taft-Hartley Law injunction halting the strike for 80 days—in hopes that the disputants would cool off.

This hasn't happened. Both sides still are hot under the collar as was evidenced by the bitterness exchanged when the steelworkers' union rejected a new settlement offer made by the industry last week.

The government feels it must start new efforts to get a negotiated settlement before the injunction expires in late January, leaving the union again free to strike.

THE UNION advised the government this week it had better start stock-piling steel needed for defense purposes. The union said that "in all candor, no settlement is in prospect" before the injunction is due to run out.

Joseph F. Finnegan, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service director, is returning from a vacation early next week. He is expected to meet Wednesday with key aides and members of President Eisenhower's steel inquiry board.

Eisenhower has asked the three-man inquiry group which is headed by Prof. George W. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania to assist Finnegan in new settlement efforts.

Department; City Councilman Gerald Desmond and George Eres of the Independent Press-Telegram.

There will be no admission charge for the conference and no expense to participating groups. Organizations wishing to send delegates to the conference should contact the Music Council through Eres at The Independent Press-Telegram.

The City Council's action backing the conference urged that all departments of the city cooperate, with an aim to making the program a success.

IN RECOMMENDING adoption of the motion endorsing the call to the conference, Superintendent of Schools Douglas Newcomb pointed out that the goals "are an extension" of the schools' program of musical education.

McGarrity, in accepting election as temporary chairman of the Long Beach Music Council committee, noted that the history of music in Long Beach is one which "merits recognition and praise."

HE SAID he comes naturally to an interest in the project through a developmental process beginning with his clarinet-playing (on the NBC production staff), conductor of orchestras; lecturer on music; composer of incidental music for State College plays and his concern with socio-economic forces which play on the cultural scene. These forces are part of the material in the course on "Music in General Culture" which he gives at State College.

"Perhaps, from a program that may come about through the conference, we can achieve a new distinction for Long Beach in the larger community of the world of music," said McGarrity.

assuming the Los Angeles collection job.

League board members have endorsed the meeting Monday, which will also discuss a county proposal to require the use of scales at all public waste disposal facilities where a charge is made.

In favoring home rule for the cities, the league noted that 66 cities in the county account for 82 per cent of the population and assessed valuation.

Long Beach city councilmen went further than merely endorsing the league position. They said they were satisfied with the local collection and disposal system as it now stands.

LONG BEACH does not avail itself of the dump facilities offered by the county sanitation districts, chiefly because disposal of refuse from city trucks under contract with the privately-owned City

The city does have an interest in the district-owned dump, however, for local taxes were used in part to purchase it under a loan arrangement. The taxes were collected chiefly through Sanitation District 3, encompassing most of Long Beach.

City Manager Sam E. Vickers said the time may come when the city will have to seek disposal space at the district site, but he predicted it won't occur for several years.

His office, he added, opposes any attempt by the county or the county sanitation districts to enter the strictly local field of house-to-house refuse collections.

Flying Boxcar Wins Praise of Pilots During Texas Aerial Rodeo

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The 452nd Troop Carrier Wing, USAF, from Long Beach, is participating in an "air rodeo" at Houston. Accompanying the 452nd is Independent, Press-Telegram Reporter Bill Hunter.)

By BILL HUNTER
ELLINGTON A.F.B., HOUSTON, Tex.—From a layman's point of view the C119 "Flying Boxcar" is the sorriest-looking airplane since Wilbur and Orville Wright made their historic venture at Kitty Hawk, N.C.

This backbone of the Air Force supply resembles a moving truck in comparison with the sleek fighters and bombers that come most quickly to the public eye.

But the men who fly this ungainly craft call it "a good airplane."

"IT DOES THE JOB. It is an extremely substantial piece of equipment. It will get you there on one engine if necessary," said Capt. Jack Christiansen, a Los Angeles manufacturer.

"It will lift 70,000 pounds, get it where it's going and return," he declared.

The C119, its massive propellers resembling windmill sails, will be the star of the USAF Reserve rodeo currently under way here.

Its role in the Air Force is strictly that of a workhorse sort of an aerial taxi service.

THE PEOPLE of this largest Texas city will defend the ungainly craft as readily as the men who fly it and may possibly raise a monument in its honor.

During a recent oil-tanker fire in Houston Harbor, C119s brought firefighting equipment from across the nation in record time. Without these aerial beasts of burden, the halocaust could have reached proportions of the 1947 Texas City explosion that virtually obliterated that city.

sons in the Soviet Union who wished to join their families here. The list was compiled by the State Department from its files. The list included the names of the four now granted permission to leave the USSR.

A spokesman for Nixon said he assumed the four would take up permanent residence in the United States.

The spokesman also said the names of 11 U.S. airmen who the United States says were shot down in Russia near the Turkish border in September 1955 were not on the list of 100 names. There has been no word from Russia as to the fate of the airmen.

THE LIST OF 100 names was not disclosed.

Some Russians, mostly women who married American servicemen, have been allowed to leave the Soviet Union in the past and come here to live. This also has applied in a few cases to Russian women who married American newsmen and others.

Diplomatic sources said Saturday they could recall a few cases in which other Russians, in response to specific appeals, had been given permission to leave the Soviet Union and join their families in Western nations. At least one such case involved a Russian coming to the United States, they said.

WHILE HE WAS visiting Russia last summer, Nixon made a personal appeal for release of Russian citizens who wished to come here. In his letter to Khrushchev, Nixon said:

"In the interest of a continuing improvement in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, I believe that matters such as this, involving principles of nonseparation of families which we both support, should not persist as irritants to larger solutions."

"In this regard, I can state that the United States government does not stand in the way of persons, including its own citizens, who desire to depart from the United States to take up residence in the U.S.S.R."

Nixon Tinkles Piano While Benny Fiddles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Union was delayed for an hour. Vice President Richard M. Nixon ended a politically-busy week Saturday night by playing a duet with comedian Jack Benny—sometime music partner of former President Truman.

Nixon supplied piano accompaniment for Benny's violin before an audience composed of many of the nation's top political writers at the National Press Club. The tune was one of Truman's specialties too—the Missouri Waltz.

BENNY EXPLAINED that he had written Nixon to congratulate the vice president on a "wonderful job" on his trip to Russia. In reply, Benny said, he received from Nixon a note saying "After your program with Truman, I demand equal time."

Benny and Nixon breezed through a speeded-up version of the Missouri Waltz. Nixon's judgment on the performance, as pronounced by the other guests was: "All of us should stay in our own rackets."

The brothers' caps were found near a jagged hole in the ice. The victims were Tony and David Schultz, 7 and 9, and Ricky Rogers, 11.

Truman Flays Eisenhower for 'Shocking Use of Veto'

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI)—Former President Truman Saturday night accused the Eisenhower administration of "shocking use of veto" in a speech to Democratic Clubs of America. Truman peppered the administration's foreign aid program, labor policies, farm "hoodwinking and defeating program, tight money pro-American people by gram and 'its give-aways of shameful and shocking use of the presidential veto."

"In the face of an expanding economy, this won't do," Truman said, "but the administration has vetoed the record of vetoes by nation into a lot of trouble." President Eisenhower which Truman told the Young Congress could not override.

Lakewood Man Slain; Jail Wife

A Lakewood man died Saturday night after his wife assertedly shot him in the neck with a .22-caliber rifle at their home.

Sheriff's officers said Dean Lloyd Gebhart, 27, was hit by a bullet fired by Barbara Ann Gebhart, 22, following a domestic quarrel at their home, 6213 McKnight Dr.

The woman, booked on suspicion of murder, claimed her husband beat her and accused her of being "sinful" just prior to the pre-dawn shooting Saturday.

Gebhart was taken to Los Angeles County Osteopathic Hospital, where attendants said some of the fragments of the bullet lodged in his spinal column.

Airline, Cultural Pact Signed by U.S., Russia

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States Marine Corps Band will tour Russia and direct air service will open between New York and Moscow next year under a new getting-to-know-you exchange pact signed Saturday.

The 20-page agreement for 1960-61 provides for mutual exchanges in industry, science and education and for a greater flow of Russian tourists to the United States as well as entertainment that will give Russians the smash musical "My Fair Lady" and the United States a glimpse of the Moscow Art Theater.

Soviet culture chief Yuri Zhukov and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson signed the pact which also calls for:

—Cooperation in peaceful atomic research.
—Joint medical conferences on cancer, heart disease and polio.
—Reciprocal tours by experts in the automotive, aluminum and aviation industries.

—Exchanges of American and Russian teachers.

—An exchange of radio and TV broadcasts on non-political topics.
—Greater exchange of movies.

—Exchanges in the fields of sports, agriculture, construction, publishing and literature.

Raid Nets 6 Bookie Suspects

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—An alleged $5,000,000-a-year bookmaking ring was cracked Saturday as 20 Los Angeles, Glendale, Anaheim and sheriff's vice officers combined to arrest four men and two women.

Authorities said the ring handled as much as $50,000 on some big betting days. Arrested on suspicion of bookmaking were:

Alvin Levitt, 37, Woodland Hills, alleged head of the ring.
James P. Marozan, 46, Hollywood.

William J. Miller, 51, South Gate.

Gus Leon Sterling, 39, Glendale.

Georgia Mac Brinson, 32, Highland Park.

Miss Floye Bowman, 30, Los Angeles.

The ring specialized in bets on sports events and horse races, it was reported.

Radioactive Materials in Lab Explode

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (CP)—The nation's fourth leak of radioactive materials in three weeks—and the third in Oak Ridge—was reported Saturday by Atomic Energy Commission officials.

A cleaning compound at Oak Ridge National Laboratory came in contact with some acid, causing a small chemical explosion which scattered a tiny amount of radioactive material Friday night.

The AEC spokesman said the latest explosion left the level of radiation higher than the desirable maximum, but this maximum is kept so low, he emphasized, that there was no danger.

Max Baer Dies Soon After Giving Car to Grove Youth

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO (urday after spending most of open-hearted generosity. Ex-heavyweight champion his last hours at Garden. Baer dropped dead in his poolside room at the Hollyport of a cornucopia, died Saturday performing an act of wood Roosevelt Hotel after appearing at Garden Grove to give an expensive foreign sports car to the son of a longtime friend.

With flamboyance that had marked his 30-year career as a top-flight boxer and entertainer, Baer presented the flashy auto to Ronny Owen, 18, son of Oliver (Curly) Owen, 43, of 13291 Clinton St., Garden Grove. Owen was associated with Baer as a sparring partner and associate since 1931.

"WHEN YOU'RE a football player and playing your last game, I'm going to be there and give you a car," Owen said the ex-champ told Ronny when the boy was 5 years old.

Baer kept this promise Friday night when he appeared during half-time activities of a game in which Ronny was playing, fullback for Bolsa Grande High School.

Earlier, Baer had appeared at a program sponsored by the auto agency for which Owen works.

Owen, a member of the 1929 Poly High football team, said he drove with Baer to the Santa Ana Freeway after the car presentation. The two men stopped their cars and chatted.

Rockefeller Backers Open 2 More Offices

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Republican group backing New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for the presidential nomination is opening two more information centers in Southern California.

The offices will open Monday in Riverside and in San Diego. Californians for Rockefeller already have a Los Angeles center at 1825 Wilshire Blvd.

In what is believed Max Baer's last picture, the former heavyweight champion kneels beside Dale Nichols, 12, at Crippled Children's Home at Phoenix, Ariz., Friday. The two struck a "fighting" pose.—(AP Wirephoto.)

He put his arm around me and was preparing for several and said 'I guess we're getting old, champ. It sure made me feel good to do that for business interests.

Ronny," Owen related. A native of Omaha, Neb., Owen said the 50-year-old Baer was taken to Livermore Baer had complained of as a boy by his family and fever from the flu. The Grove started fighting in 1929. He man said he called Baer's home and talked to him about from Primo Carnera by knocking out the Italian giant in the 11th round of a savage bout on June 14, 1934. He lost the title to James J. Braddock by a decision 11 months later.

Wife Climbs Utility Pole to Halt Spat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A housewife stopped an argument with her husband and startled downtown shoppers Saturday when she climbed a utility pole at a busy intersection.

Annie Jenkins, 24, refused to come down and had to be plucked from her 12-foot perch by a streetcar maintenance crew.

Her husband, Otha R. Jenkins, said she jumped from their car as they were driving. He said she was upset over persons who had broken into their home.

Workmen near Eighth St. and Broadway provided a mobile elevator.

"CONTACTS"...

Are They Expensive?

News about the new plastic contact lenses has captured the interest of glasses wearers. Yet, many who would like to be free from wearing "spectacle" frames are depriving themselves of the benefit of "contacts" because they think the cost is prohibitive. Actually, over a period of years, contact lenses may SAVE you money!

In our 32 years of practice in Long Beach, we have pioneered in fitting contact lenses, and our prices are as low as lens excellence and expert fitting allow. Liberal terms are gladly extended. We are open Friday evenings and all day Saturdays for your convenience. Get ALL the "facts and figures." Come in for a no-obligation demonstration or mail the coupon.

Helicopter Travelers Get Close-Up View of Weddell Seal Staying Close to New-Born Pup in Antarctica
RARE EXPERIENCE FOR I, P-T MAN

Fliers See Birth of Weddell Seal Pup

(Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a series of reports by Independent Press-Telegram military editor James A. Allen on Deep Freeze '60, the U.S. scientific program in Antarctica.)

By JAMES A. ALLEN

MC MURDO SOUND, Antarctic—We were skimming across the frozen surface of McMurdo Sound in a helicopter when suddenly someone spotted a rare sight—a mother Weddell seal giving birth to a pup.

Our pilot quickly landed the 'copter near by and we scrambled out, our cameras ready. The baby seal, a mass of wet, tangled fur, looked at us helplessly with huge brown eyes. The frightened mother started to move away to the safety of the main herd.

Then the universal instinct took over and the mother returned to her baby. She nuzzled the pup, then tried to keep her body between us and the young one.

WEDDELL SEALS are classed as harmless, but at this moment we all kept a safe distance from the mother's snapping mouth.

Although most of the seals in Antarctica can be approached without fear, the leopard seal is considered one of the most vicious animals in the world. He has been known to come out of the water to attack men on ice or land.

We kept a wary eye out for these fierce fellows, but fortunately didn't see any.

The seals of the Antarctic live on fish and small organisms which abound in the waters surrounding the continent. Occasionally they enjoy a penguin feast.

EXTRA FINGER

Suspect's Handprint a Curio for Police

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Detective Jan A. Kotze did a double take on a culprit whose handprint showed six fingers. Sure enough, the suspect had an extra finger and as he was convicted of bootlegging, police racked up the handprint in its curio display. "You'd have thought," said Kotze, "the guy would have become a pickpocket."

3 Turkish Officers on Trial, Accused of Torturing Yanks

IZMIR, Turkey (UPI)—An Izmir court held a new session Saturday in a trial of three Turkish policemen accused of beating and torturing U. S. airmen arrested on charges of illegal currency transactions.

The court adjourned until Dec. 22 following the session which was held in the presence of two of the American airmen.

The court is awaiting a reply from Istanbul concerning testimony of a woman undercover agent who said she saw the alleged currency transactions in the non-commissioned officers club in Izmir.

THE POLICE defendants are Yilmaz Capin, Ihan Suyolu and Muzaffer Secmen. They have been accused by the airmen of torturing them following the Americans' arrest on the currency charges.

In the court room Saturday were Sgt. Dale M. McCuiston, 28, of Van Nuys, Calif., who was released from a Turkish jail last week on the equivalent of $1,750 bail, and T. Sgt. James D. King, 41, of Ruth, Miss., also released on bail.

Others involved are Air Force S. Sgt. Joseph Proietti, 33, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., and Air Force S. Sgt. Giancomi, 32, of Brooklyn.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Risk in Old Grease Seen

("Medicine and You," a regular Sunday feature of this newspaper, is prepared in collaboration with the Department of Medical Education, Seaside Memorial Hospital.)

By BEN ZINSER

It is reasonable to believe that constant use of the same cooking grease may lead to cancer of the stomach, says Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society.

Scientists already have discovered that repeated heatings of the same cooking grease can produce cancer-producing agents in the grease.

Other investigators, reporting in the British Journal of Cancer, say that smoked foods probably cause stomach cancer.

The incidence of stomach cancer is very high in Iceland, where the diet is rich in smoked foods. Researchers found large amounts of 3, 4 benzpyrene, a cancer-causing substance, in mutton and trout smoked by Icelanders. One pound of either food after it was smoked was found to contain as much of the dangerous substance as the smoke of 125 cigarettes.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS often can be treated successfully without surgery, says Dr. E. Coldrey in the Journal of the International College of Surgeons. Recommended treatment: Bed rest and nothing by mouth except water. Injections every six hours of penicillin and streptomycin; or, in severe cases, of Chloromycetin or Terramycin. For pain, morphine or pethidine. When pain has subsided and temperature and pulse have fallen, sugar, milk and other fluids are taken by mouth, with gradual return to normal diet.

Since this represents a revolutionary concept in the treatment of appendicitis, readers are cautioned not to expect such a course of treatment until additional research has been completed.

PATIENTS TAKING the tranquilizing drug chlorpromazine (trade-named Thorazine) should be careful about drinking alcoholic beverages, say Madison State Hospital (Indiana) doctors in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Tests applied at the hospital indicate that chlorpromazine, when taken with alcohol, adversely affects coordination and judgment more than alcohol alone. The combination is especially dangerous when a person drives, the researchers say.

RUTABAGA, TURNIPS, cabbage and kale are known to contain goiter-producing substance called goitrogen. Earlier studies indicated that cooking would destroy goitrogen so that goiter would not occur. Now, researchers at the University of Oregon Medical School, reporting in the Journal of Clinical Investigation, say that experiments employing radiolabeled show that goitrogen still exists in these vegetables after cooking.

A RECENT ITEM in this column linked gout to degree of intelligence. Now Army researchers say that patients with Hodgkin's disease, a form of cancer, seem to be more intelligent than average. Doctors at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research said that a check of Army General Classification Test scores of 97 white enlisted men with Hodgkin's disease showed their test marks to be significantly higher than the Army population mean. But there was no significant relationship between their scores and the severity of their disease, the researchers report in Archives of General Psychiatry.

IF SMOKING PLAYS A ROLE in causing heart attacks (as some doctors claim), it is not through any effect on cholesterol, reports Dr. Irvine H. Page, Cleveland heart specialist, in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Cholesterol is the fat-like substance in the blood that has been implicated as a possible factor in causing heart attacks.

Cleveland Clinic Foundation researchers checked the cholesterol levels of laboratory personnel—both smokers and non-smokers—after they smoked two non-filtered cigarettes within 10 minutes and inhaled the smoke deeply. Cholesterol levels remained "essentially unchanged."

YALE UNIVERSITY DOCTORS have successfully stimulated heart action of a 73-year-old man by remote control for three weeks. Surgeons implanted an electrode in the wall of the lower left chamber of the patient's failing heart, then activated his heartbeats with radio waves. A previous method used in similar cases was to attach an electronic pacemaker to wires running through the chest. Advantage of remote-control method: danger of infection from wires is eliminated.

Mother's a Cop on Night Shift

Long Beach has 10 policewomen—1 assigned to Missing Persons Bureau, 1 to warrants and 8 to the jail division.

All of them can shoot straight and slip the cuffs on a rebellious prisoner. More than one boastful male has been surprised to find himself manhandled by a policewoman of sweet and pretty size.

Marksmanship courses and gym work keep the feminine bluecoats fit for emergencies. But they do not like to be confused with muscle girls. In off-duty hours they resort to perfume, sleek hosiery, fluffy lingerie, or even, on occasion, formals cut to reveal a modest amount of femininity.

PICTURED HERE is Mary Ambrosio, who works the jail division "lobster shift" from 11:30 p. m. to 7:30 a. m.

A blue-eyed blonde of Scotch descent, she stands 5 feet 6, weighs a firm, rounded 130. Mrs. Ambrosio has two children: Antoinette, 14, a St. Anthony's High School freshman, and Robert, 17, City College freshman.

Her behind-bars routine includes checking the security and health of from 20 to 35 prisoners, supervising work details, meals and jail facilities, booking new prisoners and fingerprinting repeaters.

LIKE OTHER POLICEWOMEN, her interest in the prisoners extends far beyond the confines of City Jail. She acquaints herself with their families and special problems, contacts their attorneys and bail bondsmen, arranges for court appearances.

Because she would rather keep these troubled women out of jail than in, Mary Ambrosio gives counsel to those who are receptive.

A policewoman's daily task includes many unpleasant chores. Her reward comes from those prison-scarred ones who say, and mean:

"You are my one real friend."

MARY CHECKS A PRISONER in cell. Although she is trained for emergency action, a policewoman devotes most of her time to the routine of seeing to the security and welfare of transgressors. Often the woman in blue is the only one to whom a frightened girl can turn.—(Photos by John H. Neagle.)

AFTER A NIGHT on "lobster shift" at Long Beach City Jail, policewoman Mary Ambrosio heads for home. Hours are 11:30 p. m. to 7:30 a. m.

SGT. JOHN WHITLEY gives Mary a pointer in marksmanship. Regular training on the firing range makes her an expert with the .35-caliber, two-inch police special, for the emergency she hopes will never arrive.

EX-OFFICER TO SEE U.S. AS A BUTLER

LONDON (AP)—Frederick Maunsell, 61-year-old former Royal Navy officer, has left Britain to find a position with an American family looking for a "genuine English butler."

Maunsell said he has two reasons for going:

"I've had experience as a butler, and I've always wanted to see the United States." His wife and daughter hope to find jobs as a cook and mother's helper, respectively.

Mrs. Eaton O. Bemis, chairman, said the program will begin at 8 p. m. in Longfellow Elementary School, 3800 Olive Ave. The public is invited.

Panelists will be Drs. Merle C. Page and Charles E. Bemis, psychiatrists; Don Bowls, clinical psychologist; and Mrs. Mary Gleason, psychiatric social worker.

Dr. Page, who heads the Psychiatric Clinic for Children here, will be moderator. The discussion has been given the title "Sign Posts and Air Cushions." Panelists will tell how you can recognize early symptoms of emotional disturbance and how you can accept your own emotional reactions.

Beer, Money, Work--or Long Walk Are Choices at Homemade Bridge

SURREY, B. C. (AP)—Do-it-yourself John Santics stuck by his guns Saturday and continued to charge tolls for the use of his homemade bridge.

The toll: Work, money or bottled beer.

10 Cubans Arrested in Subversive Hunt

HAVANA (AP)—The army investigation bureau said Saturday night 10 men were arrested at Ciego de Avila in central Cuba on charges of conspiring against the government.

The announcement said the 10 belonged to a subversive group called the "National Commandos." It said anti-government documents were seized.

The privilege: Walking across John's property and using the home-made for bridge over the ravine at the back.

The advantage: Cutting the two-mile walk for school children to a quarter of a mile from two miles.

THE RESULT: 99th Ave. is in turmoil.

It all began last year when John, a 55-year-old millworker, watched his grandchildren trudging two miles to school in this Fraser River delta community.

He asked the Municipal Council to build a footbridge across the ravine. When the 10 belonged to a subversive group called the "National Commandos." It said anti-government documents were seized.

But other neighbors refused to join the project. And John got mad.

SO HE PUT up a sign on the bridge: "Only kids whose parents have contributed time or materials will cross."

Friday he sat down on a canvas chair at the bridge approach and started charging tolls.

Children whose parents have paid up or worked on the bridge get across free; children of hold-outs were sent the long way around.

Driver, 4 Others Injured in Long Beach Car Crash

Five persons were injured Saturday in a two-car collision at the intersection of Maine Ave. and Third St.

Injured in one car were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Thomas of Loma Linda. They were treated at Seaside Hospital where Thomas, the driver, was X-rayed for injuries to his chest and left leg.

Suffering minor injuries in the other car were Richard W.

TV Red Tape - - Not Dennis - - Real Menace, Mary Learns

By MARY NEISWENDER
What a shock.
Hollywood's glitter peeled off in an eye-opening day with the television industry. The houses had no roofs. The trees weren't trees. The grass wasn't grass. The sky was blue paint. Even Dennis the Menace wasn't.

Let me explain.
MY BOSS had said, "Go up and see how they make Dennis the Menace" for TV. Take a photographer along. See if you can get into the act—be an actress for a day."

In Hollywood, I found out, there are more red tape and protocol than at the Pentagon.

It took 25 minutes to get a pass through to Sound Stage 7 at Columbia Pictures—home of Screen Gems, its television subsidiary.

Then there was no one at the gate to accept the pass—and we walked through.
Publicist Lou Dyer, long-time newspaperman, explained that only news photographers from daily papers could get through the gates—otherwise the Still Film Union would require a standby photographer—at $90 per day.

As far as breaking into the acting profession: Screen Actors Guild maintains: You must have a job before you can join the guild—and you must be a member of the guild before you can get a job.

Sound strange? Not when you take things in perspective.

THERE'S AN INSPECTOR from the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—

SPEAKING OF MENACES . . .

House walls, solid-looking fences and trees come apart at the yell of an assistant director.

For every actor there are a dozen aides.

Along with stand-ins, actors, prop men, grips, camera men, directors, assistant directors, publicity men, dog handlers, Humane Dept. inspectors and an assortment of wardrobe and makeup personnel, there's a teacher on hand to make sure the juveniles in the cast get "at least three hours of schooling each day."

And there's where Dennis the Menace—who isn't—spends his between-take time.

DENNIS—JAY NORTH—billed as a "menace" in the popular Sunday night television show is no menace when it comes to acting—or getting his schooling in five-minute sessions.

The boy, who began his acting career at the age of 5, was selected for the part from among 500 youths trying for the show.

His aunt, Mrs. Marie Hopper, whose husband coached the lad into the part, maintains, "he loves what he's doing."

And his teacher, Mary Louise Lowe, his only instructor, since he has never attended a regular school, maintains he's a "genius"—or he couldn't learn as quickly as well."

AS FOR JAY, whose mother, Dorothy, supports him with her salary as an executive secretary, he banks his $600 per week salary, but doesn't bother to watch his own show.

"All I want to do is own my own zoo," Jay claims.

And with his salary—which should triple if the show continues next year—he can buy the best.

And odds are that all the animals, like Dennis' co-acting canine, will wag their tails on cue.

Nixon Piles Up Big Margin Over 7 Others in Poll at Fair

By BOB HOUSER

Vice President Richard M. Nixon polled over 2½ times as many votes as any of 7 other presidential contenders in a tabulation of 14,650 ballots early last October at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Both voting machines and voting booths were used in the survey by Fair, Inc., official research agency for the Fair Assn. The agency said this is the largest poll yet conducted anywhere on next year's election.

THE BALLOT question was: "If the presidential election were held tomorrow, who would you vote for?" Respondents also were asked to indicate their party registration. Eight presidential candidates—six Democrats and two Republicans—were listed without party designation.

The over-all count, with "don't know" response eliminated, showed:

Nixon . . . 41.7%
Stevenson . . . 16.7%
Rockefeller . . . 13.3%
Kennedy . . . 11.1%

RICHARD NIXON
Over-All Leader

Brown . . . 5.3
Symington . . . 3.5
Humphrey . . . 2.3

Among registered Republicans only, Nixon polled 65.5 per cent of the vote, over 4½ times as many as his only Republican opponent, Nelson Rockefeller:

Nixon . . . 65.5

Rockefeller . . . 14.4
Kennedy . . . 9.2
Brown . . . 1.9
Stevenson . . . 1.8
Humphrey . . . 1.0
Johnson . . . 1.0
Symington . . . 1.0
Others . . . 1.7
Don't know . . . 5.5

Among registered Democrats, Nixon ranked a close third to Stevenson and Kennedy:

Stevenson . . . 23.8
Kennedy . . . 19.0
Nixon . . . 17.9
Rockefeller . . . 12.8
Brown . . . 4.3
Johnson . . . 2.8
Symington . . . 2.5
Humphrey . . . 1.8
Don't know . . . 15.2

Among independents, Nixon led easily, receiving over 50 per cent more votes than Rockefeller, who ran fourth, and Kennedy, second:

Nixon . . . 23.5
Kennedy . . . 21.4
Stevenson . . . 19.4
Rockefeller . . . 16.2
Brown . . . 5.1

Russ Peace Talk Opens Mexico Fair

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan opened his country's big scientific and cultural fair Saturday with a message of peace.

Mikoyan said the Soviet Union "is far from launching another war" and on the contrary "is a peace-loving and hard-working country."

MIKOYAN spoke from an open air platform in front of the National Auditorium. On the platform behind him were President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and his cabinet. Above them fluttered the flags of Mexico and the Soviet Union.

"We never have been an aggressor country and we never will," said the Soviet trade expert, the highest ranking Moscow official ever to visit Latin America.

"We are for peace, always peace. We favor peaceful co-existence with countries with political systems different from ours. We are against the intervention of one state in the affairs of another."

Neckties OKd for German Reds

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communist regime officially backed away Saturday from the idea that a good Communist never wears a necktie.

Neues Deutschland, the official Communist Party newspaper, ruled such a concept outdated, and said workers should dress properly when they go out in the evenings.

"We Socialists (Communists) have great respect for work," said the paper, "but we would be using the fruits of our mutual efforts badly if we failed to make our life more pleasant and worthwhile. And this means proper clothing on special occasions."

Bombs Set Off Near U.S. Haiti Embassy
FORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Two bombs exploded in an empty lot adjoining the U. S. Embassy Tuesday night, the Catholic daily newspaper La Phalange reported Saturday.

A guard at the embassy confirmed the story, saying the two blasts sounded more like grenades, and that no damage was done.

Busy Demo Aspirants Appear to Be Opening Gate for Dark Horse

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I.P.T. Casual Bureau

WASHINGTON—The suspicion is growing here that the hot and heavy contest for the Democratic presidential nomination is already beginning to wear itself thin and that by the time next spring or summer rolls around people will be awfully, awfully tired of the same old faces.

It is the kind of situation made to order for a dark horse or for those candidates who have laid relatively low during the pre-convention maneuvering.

Almost no part of the country is currently safe from one or another of the Democratic candidates. The offices of Sens. Hubert Humphrey and John F. Kennedy issue long and detailed itineraries which show their men to be in practically all parts of the nation's 50 states and dependent territories. Sen. Stuart Symington is due to start in earnest his campaign soon, and the air will be filled with the discordant sounds of even more campaign oratory.

JUST HOW MUCH of this the American people can stand without growing weary of the refrain is a matter troubling not only supporters of the various candidates but Democratic politicians who simply to be on hand, ready, are staying neutral in the lightning strike.

While his would not exactly qualify as a "fresh face" at least it will not have been too much in evidence in the months preceding the convention. The spectre of two spectacular defeats still haunts the Stevenson candidacy, a fact which is causing eyes to turn in other directions.

AS A DARK HORSE proposition, Pat Brown cannot be discounted. He has, from all accounts, made an admirable record as governor of the nation's second largest state, a natural spring for national office. He has practically no known enemies, his standing is high among his gubernatorial colleagues and other Democratic politicians on the burgeoning West Coast, and he has impressive credentials as a party regular and party leader.

The resurgence of the California Democratic Party came under his aegis and for that he must receive the credit just as certainly as he would have been blamed had the party decomposed during his tenure. Politically he is probably acceptable to most wings of the Democratic Party which, as of now, have no strong feelings about him one way or another.

U.S. Readies Three Large Space Shots

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Uncle Sam is prepared to celebrate the holiday season by attempting to propel a trio of "wrapped in America" packages into outer space. The first could be a "turkey shoot" at the moon on Thanksgiving Day.

Also on schedule are a mid-December attempt to orbit the sun and an earth satellite firing about Christmas-time.

The first two, if successful, would coincide nicely with President Eisenhower's forthcoming 11-nation goodwill trip. The moon shot is set for a few days before he leaves, the sun orbit during his trip.

During Nikita Khrushchev's recent visit to the United States, the Soviet Premier basked in the limelight of the Lunik II rocket that heralded his arrival.

THAT ROCKET hit the moon. Since then, Lunik III whirled into a wide orbit about the earth and moon and transmitted the first pictures of the moon's hidden face.

If all goes well, the U.S. will be the first to put a satellite into orbit about the moon.

A giant Atlas-Able rocket, biggest and most powerful launching vehicle ever assembled in this country, stands in a launching gantry waiting the signal to blast into space. Its four stages stretch 95 feet into the air.

The most favorable time for the lunar launch is a four-day period starting Thanksgiving Day. If the rocket doesn't get off in that time, the shot will be postponed at least a month. It is estimated the Atlas-Able will cover the approximately 225,000 miles to the moon in 62 hours.

THE 375-POUND satellite contains a television scanning device to photograph the moon's surface. U.S. scientists hope it will send back more detailed pictures than those obtained by Russia.

A successful orbit shot would be a greater achievement than the last two Lunik shots because of the more difficult task of placing the satellite into a precise position to kick it into the lunar gravitational field with small retro-rockets. The Atlas-Able has a sophisticated guidance system for this job.

The payload is expected to circle the moon for several weeks, relaying valuable information about lunar environment. Instruments are designed to measure the moon's magnetic and gravitational fields, its mass, surface structure and radioactivity.

THE SPHERICAL satellite has four paddlewheel-like devices extending from it to catch sunlight and convert it to energy to run the payload's batteries. This was pioneered last August by the Explorer VI paddlewheel satellite.

The sun satellite also will use paddlewheels. The satellite, to be launched by a Thor-Able rocket, will be fired in the general direction of the planet Venus and eventually should be pulled into the Sun's gravitational field.

8 Top Solons Accept Ike's Trip Talk Bid

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—The temporary White House said Saturday eight of nine Congressional leaders have accepted President Eisenhower's invitation to a briefing on his upcoming trip abroad.

The exception is Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic leader. McCormack telephoned to the White House a message for the President giving his views about the trip.

McCormack expressed the hope that "this would serve in lieu of his coming personally to the meeting."

The session with Senate and House leaders of both parties will be held in Washington Nov. 30, four days before Eisenhower takes off for capitals of 11 European, Asian and African nations.

'WHO'S EXCITED?'

Little Kim Cain seems surprised by all the excitement as her father holds the 14-month-old child following her solo ride in the family car. The auto plunged down an incline, through fence (background) and onto top of two parked cars in Los Angeles. Kim was not hurt. Car rolled away after her father, Paul S. Cain, stopped car on incline and left it momentarily.—(AP Wirephoto.)

700,000 Compact Car Sales Seen Boom Spark

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The auto industry is expected to sell 700,000 new compact cars next year to spark a 1960 boom that will send production, earnings and jobs to record-high levels, business forecasters said Saturday.

They said the accuracy of their predictions depended entirely on the outcome of the steel dispute and on the railroad strike threat.

The forecasts were made at the annual business-outlook conference sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Representatives of the steel, construction, auto, railroad and banking industries took part.

In brief, they predicted: A half-trillion-dollar economy next year, with the total of all goods and services produced reaching the 500-billion-dollar mark for the first time.

A surge in the economy during the first six months of 1960, with a slowdown possible in the fall.

Total auto sales of 6,700,000, including 500,000 foreign imports, 700,000 compact U.S. cars and 5,500,000 conventional cars.

Sleepy Admission

BERLIN (AP)—A policeman awakened a youth he found sleeping in a phone booth and heard him say sleepily, "Oh, you've come about that burglary." In the youth's apartment he found a stolen portable radio.

Higher interest rates—up by one-half of 1 per cent before mid-1960.

Critical steel shortages early next year, even if a settlement is reached without another walkout. A settlement, however, should result in record steel production of 130 million tons for the year as a whole.

Slowly rising prices—up by about 1 per cent over the year.

Construction probably will have a record-breaking, 56-billion-dollar year if the steel strike is not resumed.

KETTLE CALL

Salvation Army Bells to Ring

The familiar sight of the Salvation Army soldier with his kettle will reappear in the major shopping areas of Long Beach and Lakewood Friday.

The kettle program is the first phase of the Salvation Army's annual Christmas program. Second phase of the program is the Christmas Cheer Clearing House, where new clothing, toys and food are collected for distribution to the needy.

Mrs. Mabel Johns and Mrs. Sally Proctor are in charge of the kettle program.

"PERHAPS NOTHING brings the spirit of the pre-Christmas season as sharply into focus as the tinkling of the bells on the Salvation Army kettles," said Senior Major Howard Sloan, head of the organization in this area.

"They seem to be a gentle, but insistent reminder of the true meaning of Yuletide: that of giving, not only to those we love, but to those less fortunate than ourselves."

WITH MALCOLM EPLEY

THEY were breaking ground for a new boys' club in the Carmelitos area. A crowd was gathered around, and drew the attention of two tiny boys playing in a nearby yard within earshot of a scout for this column.

One of the boys said: "What do you s'pose the big crowd's doing over there?" The other tot looked things over and replied: "I see a man with a shovel. I guess somebody must've died."

IT WAS a bit unusual but all in the line of duty for Co-Publisher Dan Ridder of The I. P. T. when he was routed out of bed at 6 a.m. the other morning by the ringing of the doorbell.

The caller turned out to be a motorized carrier for Bro. Ridder's newspaper. He had delivered the morning sheet at the Ridder door and then couldn't get his car started because of a faltering battery.

"I've still got most of my route to deliver," he said. "Be right with you," said Ridder, who quickly dressed, got out his car, and gave the carrier's auto a shove to get it started.

When he related this later at the office, somebody asked the publisher:

"You're sure that wasn't a carrier for the —," mentioning an unprintable word. "Don't be silly," said Ridder. "I wasn't that sleepy."

BIG SIGN on Jerry Pickles' bobby shop on Seventh St. the other morning told the world: IT'S A BOY.

Beneath it was a small notice reading: Back in 15 minutes.

That's quick work.

I AM WELL aware that too much personal comment can become offensive in a column like this, but I've had some recent experiences I want to discuss briefly because this might be encouraging and reassuring to others.

For the first time, I've just gone through surgery. It wasn't anything critical, but sort of major and I approached it with the apprehension I'm sure is common with others in similar situations. I sort of wondered if I'd ever be the same healthy fella again.

Those fears lingered for the first day or two after I came out of the general anesthetic. I was glad it was over but I felt lousy and sort of depressed.

Then things began to happen. Good health began flowing back. My spirits rose accordingly. Everything looked brighter. Though I still had some pains and discomforts, I felt optimistic and grew, as mentioned here before, so loquacious that I fired volleys of words at my good nurses at Seaside Hospital and visitors at my bedside. Even small things, and my own little predicaments, became interesting and humorous.

AFTER eight days, came the time to go home. I discarded the hip-length hospital nightgown that must have made me look laughably ludicrous, and got on my street clothes all by myself. Though I had no complaint about the hospital, home never looked so good.

The subsequent recovery was one of the most exhilarating periods of my life. There were ups and downs, but the general trend was up. The tendency to see sunshine and humor in everything, which began in the hospital, continued and grew.

Now I feel fine and looking back on this happy experience, it seems as if it were almost worth a bit of surgery even if I hadn't needed it. That's ridiculous, of course, but I hope it conveys the idea for any who may be facing a bout with the anesthetic and the knife for the first time. Those who have been there can check their experiences with mine.

Subsidence Curbs Save L.B. Harbor $2,250,000

Piers Stop Sinking to Sea Level

By LEE CRAIG

Long Beach Harbor's battle to halt subsidence already has saved the port an estimated $2,250,000 in Pier A remedial work that now will not have to be done. And a current study may show that substantial additional savings may be made, according to Chief Harbor Engineer Bob Hoffmaster.

Two years ago, the wharf at Berths 1 and 2 became inoperable because of the sinkage. At high tide, the sea lapped over the pier and sloshed ankle-deep into the transit shed.

SURVEYING the picture, engineers calculated—on the basis of predicted future subsidence—that Berths 1 through 7 would have to be raised and their transit sheds renovated, a long and costly procedure.

So a $1,217,330 contract was let in July, 1958, to Guy F. Atkinson Co. for the first phase of the project, wharf reconstruction and raising of the shed at Berths 1 and 2. The job will be completed next February.

Now, however, water injection virtually has stopped subsidence at Berths 6 and 7 and slowed it at other berths. "We're pretty sure now," Hoffmaster said, "that we won't have to raise 6 and 7, which would be a $2,000,000 job."

"The situation at 3, 4 and 5 is under study now and there's a possibility we may be able to find a cheaper way to keep those berths operating."

ALSO, CUTTING of expansion and contraction joints in the Berths 6-7 transit shed, planned to relieve horizontal subsidence stresses, now will not have to be done. Cost of the work would have been $250,000.

In the Berths 1 and 2 project, the old timber wharf was replaced by a higher concrete structure and the transit shed is being jacked up and rebuilt on a fill which raises it some 20 feet above its previous elevation.

MOLE'S EYE VIEW

Battle to halt subsidence at Long Beach Harbor is graphically portrayed in this scene of Berths 1 and 2 taken from adjoining warehouse which still is victim of subsidence. Height of fill now will make the berths operable again.—(Staff Photo by Bryan Hodgson.)

NAME RINGS NO BELL

On the charter of the Federation of Musicians there is the honor list of familiar names: Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Haydn, Schubert—and Dudley Buck. Dudley Buck? Mary E. Dickenson, secretary-treasurer of Local 353, tries, but can't place the name.—(Staff Photo)

MUSICAL MYSTERY

Who Remembers Mr. Dudley Buck?

By GEORGE ERES

The name, Dudley Buck, is one to ponder on. It is a name coupled with Beethoven and Schubert. But not too many people know who or what he was—not even the people closest to him.

And the people closest to him these days are the staff members of the various locals of the American Federation of Musicians.

For in the eyes of the designers of the charter of the American Federation of Musicians, the name Dudley Buck stands with those of Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart, Haydn, Mendelssohn and Schubert. True, his name stands at the bottom of the list on the charter, but there it is.

THE CASUAL VISITOR to the local union's office seeing the charter nods cognizantly at the list of names—all testimony to the pure classical taste of the charter's designers. He pulls up short at the name of Dudley Buck. "Who," he inquires of the office staff, "is Dudley Buck?"

"Dudley Buck? Where? Why, that charter's been here since 1914 and I never even noticed the name of Dudley Buck." The staff gathers around. Heads are scratched. No one remembers Dudley Buck.

The girl in the office of the Orange County Musicians Local found the name on her charter, too, but he was "not known here."

IF DUDLEY BUCK is known to the members of the staff of the big Los Angeles Musicians local, it is apparently a policy matter that could not be discussed since no one authorized to talk to the press was available at the moment.

Poor Dudley Buck is dead. He died in 1909. He was a composer, primarily of church music. Apparently all paid up in his union dues, he remains in good standing.

And wherever, and as long, as an American Federation of Musicians charter hangs from an office wall, the name of Dudley Buck will remain just below that of Schubert and bring forth the query:

"Who was Dudley Buck?"

65 Attend Meeting of Braille Workers

Sixty-five persons—blind and helpers of the blind—met Saturday at the home of Mrs. Margaret Valencia, blind Charles C. Park, 3934 Pacific Ave.

The ones with sight represented by Henriette Sprang, reported on the books they have transcribed into Braille since they met last November. Their estimate was 45,000 pages.

The Braille transcribers are "graduates" of the Braille section of the Long Beach branch of the American Association of University Women, taught by Mrs. Park for the past eight years.

Mrs. H. R. Brudno of San Mateo, president of the Peninsula Braille Transcribers Guild, flew here for the session. From San Bernardino came Mrs. T. J. Gladden, teacher, and William S. Corneill, executive director of the San Bernardino Valley Lighthouse for the Blind. Both Richard T. Reid, assistant chief of the County Budget Division, and Mrs. Gladden are blind.

Tax Subject Set at Forum

Local government—specifically city and county budgeting and tax assessing—will be discussed at the Wednesday meeting of the World Affairs Forum in the Bayshore Branch Library, 2nd St. and Bayshore Ave. Speakers at the forum, usually devoted to national and world affairs, will be Warren Heistand, chief of the Budget Research Division of the City of Long Beach, and Richard T. Reid, assistant chief of the County Budget Division.

New Hospital Wing Dedicated to 'The American Way of Life'

By BEN ZINSER

Long Beach Community Hospital's new 2.5-million-dollar wing was formally dedicated Saturday to the principle that "the American way of life shall not end."

Larry A. Collins Sr., principal speaker at dedication ceremonies in the six-story addition's new assembly hall, warned that "medicine and hospitals," more than any other segment of American life, face the threat of "a great sweep of totalitarianism."

The dedication was the highlight of a week of opening ceremonies. Final event is today's open house from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

COLLINS, EDITORIAL COLUMNIST for The Independent, Press-Telegram, said American medicine today teeters precariously on a borderline.

"The realm of hospitals and medicine could be pushed into socialism overnight," he said.

Twenty-three bills that could socialize medicine are currently before Congress, he disclosed.

"This means there are 23 members of Congress who are dedicated to the principle that socialism will start in our hospitals," Collins declared.

"THE DOOR HAS NOT YET closed on our free way of life," he went on, "but it threatens to do so." Collins said government-operated hospital beds outnumber private-hospital beds in Long Beach.

In the very near future, he said, Long Beach will have a total of 2,300 government-operated hospital beds in the projected Seaside Hospital chronic-illness facility, Long Beach General Hospital and Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

"When the city's hospital expansion program has been completed," he said, "there will be 1,700 private hospital beds, 600 fewer than available from the government."

COLLINS ADDED: "This is a trend that must be fought by delaying action."

The speaker paid tribute to the Long Beach Health Plan, a full-payment fee program of medical insurance offered by local physicians.

"If this insurance program falls down, there's no hope to stop the socialistic trend," Collins warned.

Collins lauded Long Beach voters for their approval, 9 to 1, of 10½ million dollars in hospital improvement bonds in 1956.

"We the people of Long Beach did it ourselves, without government," he said.

MAYOR RAYMOND C. KEALER termed Community Hospital's new wing "another milestone in community progress due to your foresight and sacrifice."

Master of ceremonies was William T. J. Harris, first vice president of the hospital's board.

"This new hospital," he said, "would not have been possible without the cooperation of all the people of Long Beach."

ONE-DAY CAMPAIGN

Retarded Children's School Will Benefit

More than 1,000 volunteers Monday morning will begin the annual campaign walk through the residential areas of the city in an attempt to aid retarded children through the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

The campaigners—including 700 mothers and 300 children and teenage groups—hope to raise $25,000 in the one-day, door-to-door drive. The walk will cover Long Beach, Lakewood and surrounding areas.

The drive, headed by Mrs. Vincent McDonnell, will aid the foundation's school and training center at 4519 E. Stearns St., by providing more than half of the school's annual budget of $45,000.

More than 60 retarded persons, from five years up, are enrolled in the school.

State Should Clean S.D. Freeway Route

LONG BEACH HAS a bone to pick with the State Highway Commission.

It results from the Commission's recent withdrawal of funds originally allocated for work on the Long Beach section of the San Diego Freeway.

Insult is heaped on injury. Long Beach is left with a pile of trash in its lap from the preliminary work on the freeway route.

THAT WORK HAS INVOLVED purchase and removal of structures standing in the way. Eighty houses in the eastern part of Long Beach and in the Wrigley Heights area already have been removed. Remaining are foundations, heaps of broken concrete, and a rich variety of litter which is a joy to the heart of childhood, a menace to the public health, and a blight on the city's beauty.

UNDER ORIGINALLY FREEWAY planning, construction would have proceeded in the coming months, and the clutter would have been hauled away in good time.

But postponement of San Diego Freeway construction in Long Beach leaves this city in doubt as to when the area will be cleaned up. There is no assurance that the freeway project will be resumed a year or even two years from now. Removal of the rubble should not be delayed that long. The state should clean up after itself and soon.

The foundations and the other trash left by the movers have advertised the area as a dumping place, and the vacated properties are acquiring additional trash. These trash heaps are unsightly, and they have become a hazard to curious children.

NO COMMUNITY HAS GIVEN the state better cooperation on the freeway program than Long Beach. Ten years ago this city took steps to keep open the route for the San Diego Freeway. It has waited patiently while state planning and construction inched along. The recent postponement perhaps was the result of too much patience on the part of Long Beach. Whatever the case, the very least the city can expect at this time from the state is good housekeeping at the scene of the neglected freeway route.

Blues Gone, GOP Has Confidence

By Walter T. Ridder, Robert E. Lee and Bill Broom

WASHINGTON — As the White House shapes its budget and legislative programs for next year, it is receiving glowing reports on last term's successes from Republican congressmen visiting their home districts.

Back in the grass roots, the legislators report, the Eisenhower 1959 program of spending cuts and labor reform met with overwhelming approval. The GOP blues over election losses in 1958 have been largely dispelled. There's a new surge of confidence and optimism over the party's chances of retaining the presidency in 1960.

Legislative strategists in the administration would be less than human if they aren't tempted to stick with the 1959 formula which worked so well last year. This they'll probably do, but there will be some refinements, some new wrinkles in connection with the defense and farm programs. As yet, these haven't been firmed up.

House and Senate leaders anticipate an easy time maintaining party discipline, even in an election year. The GOP's 1959 bloc voting tactic in the House against big numerical odds has been ratified at the grass-roots level, the Republicans claim.

Much of the burden for guiding the domestic program will rest on White House aides and the party leadership in Congress next year. The President's preoccupation with the peace issue, international negotiations, summit conferences will require a major part of his concentration during his last year in office.

DEFINITION OF THE UNHAPPIEST man in the world: the rigged TV quiz winner who sunk all his money in cranberries.

CONVERSATION THE OTHER night got around to the subject of the late Gen. George C. Marshall. A man who had worked for him and knew him long and intimately said he had never called him anything but "General Marshall." We asked one of the most famous of first-name droppers in this first-name calling town if he had ever called Gen. Marshall "George."

The man looked at us with unabashed incredulity. "Who, me? Call George George to his face? Are you out of your mind?" he replied.

The General exuded such an aura of rectitude, dignity and righteousness that he managed to freeze up most people with whom he came into contact. We know of one great conversationalist, a man not accustomed to underestimating his own ability, who sat next to Gen. Marshall at dinner one night. When it was over, we asked him what he and the General had talked about.

"Nothing," was the almost unbelievable reply. "You see," he explained, "I just couldn't think of anything to say to the General which wouldn't sound silly."

A MIDWESTERN POLITICAL leader is enthusiastically looking forward to his party's nominating convention next year. He points out that in 30 years of convention-going, he has always been bound to support either an incumbent or favorite-son from his state. "Next year, I'm going uncommitted in advance, and have fun while the candidates woo me," he tells friends. "I know who I will eventually support, but they're going to have to chase the heck out of me."

Engle Gets Strong Support for Defense Revision Plans

Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.), Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), and Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), of the Armed Services Committee, are three of the stars in the serialized drama of defense policy and philosophy.

The "angels" of this sponsibility and power to Sen. Stennis and Sen. Symington.

Sen. Symington, former Air Force Secretary, much discussed as a presidential possibility, has long believed in the philosophy advocated by many Air Force officers: a single military service and a single Chief of Staff. This is the concept feared by many in the Navy and Army as "the man on the white horse."

Sen. Symington is extremely influential on the Armed Services Committee—not only with the Democrats but with the ranking Republican, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall. The handsome Missouri Senator is almost as close as a brother to Sens. Russell, Stennis and Engle.

In turn, Sen. Stennis, a moderate and former judge, as he has frequently expressed to this writer, has a real liking and admiration for Sen. Engle.

SEN. ENGLE
Man of Influence

show are the American people who not only foot the bills but who gamble their lives on whether or not the drama is a success.

The ranking luminary is, of course, President Eisenhower but he, Defense Secretary McElroy, and the Chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Arleigh Burke, probably will all have retired from active participation in the defense thriller by January, 1961. Barring acts of God, the Senators will all be in the national picture long after that date.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) is the long time chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Burdened by the complexities of this task and by less than perfect health in the past few years, Sen. Russell has delegated much re-

IN THE CLOSING days of Congress, Sen. Engle delivered a long and important speech on reorganizing the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the entire Defense Department. Asked by Sen. Symington if he does not think a single Chief of Staff an important step towards this reorganization, Sen. Engle said yes and that favors a single Chief of Staff.

To the astonishment of Sen. Engle—who did not expect such a public tribute—Sen. Stennis extemporaneously endorsed Sen. Engle's proposals, including a single service in the most glowing terms.

President Eisenhower opposes a single service and a single Chief of Staff. Some believe that Secretary McElroy has been won over to the single service—single chief concept as a matter of economy.

SEN. ENGLE has stated that it might take five years to see his defense reorganization plan enacted by Congress. Considering the strong support he has in the Senate, it could come about in much less time than that.

Soap-Washing Machine Tie-up in TV Ads Claimed 'Deceptive'

WASHINGTON — Charles Van Doren and those who rigged the TV quiz shows are not the only ones on television guilty of fooling the public.

One of the biggest deceivers is Procter & Gamble, one of the big three soap companies, which up until two years ago operated under the guidance of Neil McElroy. Mr. McElroy is now Secretary of Defense.

Meanwhile his soap empire has now been officially charged with "false, misleading, and deceptive" advertising on television. Linked with Procter & Gamble are some of the biggest washing machine manufacturers in the U.S.A., including Kelvinator, General Electric, Apex, Speed Queen, Norge, and Whirlpool.

The Federal Trade Commission has officially charged Procter & Gamble with ganging up in exclusive advertising deals with these companies to make it appear that Procter & Gamble's soap powders and soap products are about the only soaps on the market. The Federal Trade Commission charges that this tie-in advertising is not only false and misleading but also monopolistic and unfair to competing soap companies.

Here is how the "deceptive" advertising deals between Procter & Gamble and the washing machine manufacturers operate:

Procter & Gamble makes a deal with Westinghouse Laundromat to feature "Dash" in the TV commercials of Westinghouse. The TV commercial reads: "Dash is the only detergent packed in every Westinghouse Laundromat."

Partisan Aspect of Water Election Escaped the Voter

TURNOUT IN LAST WEEK'S Water Replenishment District election might have gone well over the 11 per cent mark if the contest's partisan swing had been publicly dramatized.

Although the issues of establishing the district and of naming five division directors to administer it were prima facie non-partisan ones, a last-minute challenge had the effect of making both matters partisan. But the partisan character attracted almost no public note.

As you'll recall, the replenishment district was approved by a 4-1 vote. This authorized creation of the state's second largest water agency, second only to the Metropolitan Water District.

The first five to file for the five directorships of HOUSER the new district were Republicans. County Democratic Central Committee officials told the Independent Press-Telegram that Gov. Brown's office urged the committee to get some Democrats in the race "to try to get a couple of men on the board." The reasoning was that some of the GOP candidates were avowedly hostile to the Governor's $2 billion water program, which comes up for voter approval next year.

So, at the last minute, the Democrats filed five men for the division directorships. However, neither side campaigned on the basis of political faith or on merits of the Governor's water program.

As it turned out, the 4-1 approval of the district demonstrated a strong "pro-water" sentiment among voters. The five directorships were much closer contests, with three going to Republicans, two to Democrats.

It seems a reasonable conclusion that the district vote reveals by way of the low interest, the lop-sided approval of the district, the three Republican-two Democrat selection of directors that:

(1) The public was unaware of the partisan nature of the directorships. (2) The public was unaware of candidate sympathies about the Governor's water program, since candidates with both pro and con leanings were elected. (3) The public believes in planning for future water requirements through sound methods. (4) The public, harassed as it is by taxes, will permit itself to be taxed even more in the interests of underwriting sound water policy for the state's future.

IT'S NO SECRET THAT Vice President Nixon is astronaut-high on polls these days. So, it's not surprising that the latest, and reputedly the largest to date, gives the Veep his characteristic edge. It's a 14,650 ballot sample taken by Pair, Inc., last October during the three-week Los Angeles County Fair.

Nixon blasted Stevenson 44 to 16 per cent among voters of both parties; led Rockefeller 65 to 14 among Republicans; was a respectable third behind Stevenson and Kennedy among Democrats, 23-19-18, and led Kennedy and Stevenson, 25-21-19 among independents.

And yet, there were crumbs for Democrats in this poll:

In the two-party ballot, Nixon's 44 per cent still leaves a 56 per cent opposition vote. Among Democrats only, Nixon scored 18 per cent, perhaps not enough of the Democratic registration he would need to overcome that party's superior numbers. Among independents, often acknowledged as the bloc which will decide, Nixon grabs 25 per cent, still leaving a 75 per cent opposition bloc.

Would Smoke Out Bad Union Officials

EDITOR:

Should any rank and file member of a labor organization be in doubt as to whether the officials adhere to the highest standards of responsibility and ethical conduct in administering the affairs of your union, then take advantage of your right to smoke them out, by presenting a proposal to be included in the constitution and by-laws of your organization as follows:

"All officers shall sign a non-communist affidavit. No officer shall knowingly participate in the proceedings of any meeting, or in any organization, or in any activity connected with or sympathetic to communism or fascism, or related to, or dominated by, or under the control of any foreign organization, or any group or government generally recognized as being hostile to, or advocating the violent overthrow of the government of the United States. Any officer of the union who refuses to testify before any properly constituted governmental body regarding membership in such organization or participation in any such activity, or refuses to testify before any properly constituted governmental body regarding any form of corruption that deviates from the true principle of his position as an officer of this union, shall have his office declared vacant. Election to fill such vacancy shall be held at the next regular meeting."

Painting Assn. Says to Check On Contractor

The Painting & Decorating Contractors Assn. is cooperat-ing with the Better Business Bureau and the Contractors State Licensng Board in an effort to protect home owners from unlicensed, incompetent persons preying upon the public through misleading ad-vertising regarding painting.

A call to the association office will enable any home owner to ascertain if a person is licensed as a painting con-tractor. If a person is licensed and also is a member of this association, we are in a po-sition to assure the home owner that the contractor is prop-erly insured, a spokesman says.

The association spokesman voiced concern over calls received from home owners who have received literature through the mails advertising a metal siding. The question most frequently asked is "Does this type of siding real-ly eliminate painting ex-pense?" The association points out that when painting a home, the cost of painting the siding is quite often less than 50 per cent of the total cost of the paint job. The over-hang, trim, windows and doors still have to be painted periodically. The overhang, and trim take up the larger part of the total time consumed in painting the build-ing.

"We wish to reiterate," said the association, that anytime you are in doubt as to whether you are dealing with a licensed painting contractor, call the association office be-fore signing a contract. Phone HE4-8252."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Mars Is Real Crazy, Recent Visitor Thinks

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I don't like to call a girl a "broad," but since even nice girls call themselves that now, in Hollywood and on Eway, I suppose I must.

Anyway...the first broad who ever went to Mars took us to lunch the other day.

"It's a real crazy joint, this Mars is," the gal, beautiful Hollywood model redhead Nora Hayden, said.

"They got man-eating plants with tentacles that strangle you, and men 200 feet tall. I not only wouldn't want to live there—it's not even a nice place to visit."

"Sounds like a drag," I said. "Did you go on some junket or what?"

Nora shrieked. "Junket! Ho! Quel trip! Took 49 days flying to get there—no stop-overs."

NORA HAYDEN
Men Real Tall

NORA SAID if anybody'd told her a year ago she was far from yummy-looking. He going to Mars, she'd figured they were smoking crazy cigarettes.

But then she became a celebrated scientist—in motion pictures, that is—and the B.W. "You sure this three they ordered her to Mars on a Navy rocket, so she packed a couple shortie nightgowns, a couple mink-lined bra and wiggle aboard."

"Well, when we got to Mars, I tottered out and I was a mess," Nora said. "Imagine not having your hair done for 49 days!"

Nora said the picture, made by "Angry Red Planet," made by Sino Productions, in CinemaScope, is going to make her famous—but it won't help the Martian tourist business.

"I didn't see any other things saucers," Oh, he was real broads and only one man," sick, this boy!

"I didn't see any other things saucers," Oh, he was real broads and only one man," sick, this boy!

"Oh I forgot one other man—a Martian midget...33 feet tall. The other Martian towered over the mountains. And there was a giant amoeba with rotating, glistening eyes..."

"Who wrote up this pot of message?" I asked.

NORA SAID it was a really tremendous job of imagining "science fact" written by Ibb Melchior, Lauritz Melchior's son.

"Listen, don't you want to hear about the rat-bat-spider that bit Gerald Mohr's arm while we were on Mars?" she demanded.

"Have they got rats on Mars?" the B.W. interrupted. "Rats, bats and spiders all in one—HUGE—bigger'n John Wayne!" Nora winced.

"Then when Mr. Hilton opens a hotel there, I'm not going," the B.W. howled at me. "I'm absolutely not going."

"Abh, you'll go," I scoffed. "You said the same thing about Cairo because of Nasser, but when the plane left Cairo, you were right there screaming for the vodka. You'll go to Mars."

She will, too.

How You Can Wynn Friends
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When Ed Wynn reported to the set of "Cinderella," for his first day of shooting, producer-star Jerry Lewis prepared a touching surprise for the veteran trouper.

Jerry had Ed's dressing room decorated with playbills going back to the theatrical era of Flo Ziegfeld.

Many of the theater mementos, which Jerry had photostated from studio prop files, were authentic reminders of the days when Ed as "The Perfect Fool" was one of Broadway's greatest comics.

Chevalier Lists His '10 Most'

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Maurice Chevalier has always registered Hollywood's publicity gimmick of selecting the 10 most beautiful girls or the 10 most anything.

"Now that I'm 71," says the French star, "it is safe for me to say anything about women."

So here are the 10 most extraordinary women of the world as picked by Maurice:

"1. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt... she has added more greatness to the Roosevelt name."

"2. Queen Elizabeth... a lovely and gracious queen."

"3. Marlene Dietrich... the very essence of glamour."

"4. Grace Kelly... one of the world's most beautiful women."

"5. Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev... for her touching gentility and comportment during her recent visit to America."

"6. Brigitte Bardot... an authentic Parisian beauty."

"7. Madame Yvonne De Gaulle... her steady influence in assisting a great man attain his goal."

"8. Aviatrice Jacqueline Auriol... for proving women can be just as brave as men."

"9. Marion Anderson... humility and nobility."

"10. Joan Crawford... all the qualities of a great artist and person."

'Nude With Violin' Is Coward at Cleverest; but Not His Best

Noel Coward is back in town. This isn't startling or particularly good news, since one play or another by the witty Britisher has been on the boards quite often recently in Long Beach.

But John O'Leary is also back in town, and that is good news indeed. He and the rest of a generally excellent cast opened this weekend at the Magnolia Theater in "Nude With Violin." O'Leary and his cohorts almost make up for Coward.

Almost, but not quite. "Nude With Violin," which has (perhaps unfortunately) neither a nude nor a violin, is not what one might call brave new Coward. It is, after the first act, all too predictable, and once the one-plot complication is revealed the play rather comes apart at the seams. Clever Coward certainly is, but his situation runs out long before his wit. By the end of the last act, the show is mainly people saying lines.

FOR THE MOST PART they say them well, despite some fumblyings attributable to first-night jitters, compounded by an emergency which delayed the arrival of the star.

But he was worth waiting for. O'Leary as Sebastian, the valet to the recently deceased modern painter, Paul Sorodin, combines a flair for the sophisticated delivery of lines with a comic mobility of facial expression that shows off Coward at his best. Coward is suave and mentally nimble at all times, and O'Leary follows his every nuance. His performance is a thorough pleasure to watch.

A number of the supporting players are also a pleasure to watch, particularly Gail Tweed as Jane and Patricia Curtis as Pamela. Miss Tweed presents the only person in the play with any real human warmth, and comes through convincingly. Miss Curtis is expert on the few occasions when she has a chance. She deserves a chance to show her ability to better advantage.

Another fine performance of a disappointment, considering her previous successes, was that of Virginia Miecznikowska as Anya Pavlov, Olga Powell is too obviously Maybe that Russian accent acting, and not very capably came naturally; at any rate it is that, in her role as the de- was always both good and ceased artist's wife.

"Nude With Violin" has a few satiric things to say about added a high quality of pre-modern art, but it is not presentation were Bill Bush, mainly a comment about art Loren Hufstetter, and John or anything else. It is a situa- Blackmon. While Mr. Black- tion comedy which uses up mon sometimes mistakes its situation too soon. Fortu- warring the hards for inten- nately for all concerned, there sity of emotion, he, Bush, and are some people involved who Hufstetter are as good as they almost make up for it.

The play will continue on weekends until Christmas.

36 Hurt in N.Y. Subway Collision

NEW YORK (AP)—Thirty-six persons were injured Saturday when a Manhattan-bound subway train rammed into a work train halted in a Brooklyn tunnel.

Only one person, John Cinque, 38, who was on the work train, was seriously hurt. He underwent surgery to save his right leg. Of the other injured, 22 were taken to hospitals, where they were treated and released.

The three-car passenger train, a BMT Seaboard local, had just left the 8th Ave. station in the Bay Ridge section when it crashed into the six-car work train at about 20 miles an hour.

Garner to Mark 91st Birthday

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI)—John Nance Garner celebrates a quiet 91st birthday today, and vows he won't have another big party until he reaches the ripe old age of 100.

Nothing was scheduled for Garner's birthday except visits by friends at his modest white frame home, and a traditional birthday cake.

New Cuba Law Hits Oil Firms

HAVANA (AP)—The government adopted legislation Saturday requiring oil exploration and exploitation firms to work their Cuban claims or lose them.

Petroleum executives said the new law appears meant to force suspension of operations by most large companies.

The law also imposes a 60 per cent royalty on production, based on commercial rates; establishes refinery production quotas, and limits exploration concessions to about 19,000 acres, far below acreages held by some firms.

U.N. Votes Ban on A-Bomb Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations General Assembly voted 60-to-1 Saturday to appeal to all powers to stop nuclear weapons test voluntarily.

The lone vote against a 23-power Afro-Asian resolution was cast by France, which plans to hold its first atomic test in the Sahara Desert soon. The United States and Britain abstained.

The resolution appeals to the United States, Russia and Britain, now negotiating a permanent nuclear test ban at Geneva, to continue their voluntary suspension of tests and asks "other states to desist from such tests."

Morals Charge Jails Johnnie Ray

DETROIT (AP)—Sob-singer Johnnie Ray, 32, Saturday was ordered to stand trial Dec. 1 on a morals charge of accosting and soliciting a policeman.

Ray was released under $500 bond after he pleaded innocent at his arraignment in Detroit Recorder's (criminal) Court. He had been held overnight in jail.

The singer paid a $25 fine when he pleaded guilty in the same court to the same charge June 5, 1951. In each instance a policeman accused him of making an indecent proposal.

"I can only say that the whole thing is a complete misunderstanding," Ray told newsmen.

Enraged Hill Raps Penalty Penalty Sets Up UCLA TD in 4th Period

'Better Show in Films, or Else!'

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Another Southern California football controversy flared today in the wake of Troy's 10-3 upset loss to UCLA Saturday as bitter Jess Hill, SC's athletic director, raged at officials in their dressing quarters: "That pass interference better show up in the movies, or else. I just hope for your sakes that the movies prove you right!"

Hill referred to a pass interference play called against little Jerry Traynham, SC halfback, in the waning minutes of the traditional game. The play cost the Trojans 46 yards and gave UCLA a first down on SC's seven-yard line.

Three plays later the Bruins had their winning touchdown—and SC went down to its first defeat of the season!

Hill, alongside this reporter, charged into the officials' quarters in a frenzied mood.

Official 20 Yards From Scene

"I don't see how such a play could have been called by an official 20 or 30 yards from the scene," raged Hill at the assembled officials, "especially when another official closer to the scene made no call at all."

"This is a heckuva way to lose a game and wreck an unbeaten season—by a 46-yard penalty!"

After Hill stormed from the room, this reporter attempted to secure the name of the official who had called the controversial play, which will be recalled by Trojans and Bruins for many years.

Not one official would even mention the man who called the penalty, until one linesman timidly pointed to a fellow next to this writer.

"I can't tell you my name," steamed the "fingered" official. "You'll have to get it from the referee."

When referee Jimmy Cain, still suffering from a withering blast levelled at him by Notre Dame coach Joe Kuharich after the Cal-Irish game at Berkeley, finally sneaked into the room, he also refused to divulge the official's name.

'Fair Call,' Claims Field Judge

Finally, he whispered to this reporter, "We don't like to make our officials scapegoats, but the man who called the play is George Wilson. We don't want to make a big issue out of this, either."

Issue or not, Wilson—the field judge—would not comment on the play that beat SC, other than to say "it was a fair call."

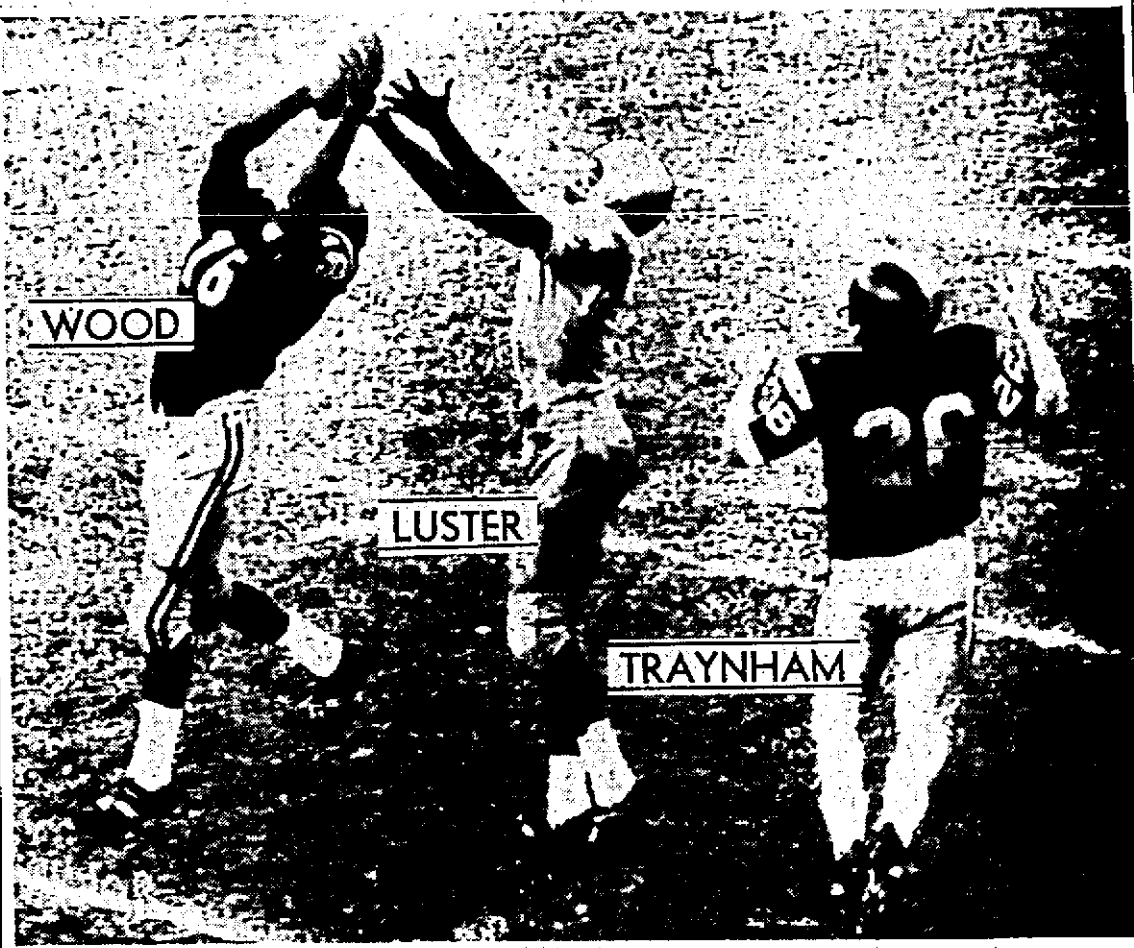

Willie Wood, who intercepted the pass intended for Marv Luster on the controversial play, was irate about the call.

"Traynham went on one side of Luster and I went on the other side," explained Wood. "We had Luster sandwiched between us and I don't see how Jerry could have interfered with Luster because Luster went up with me and was at least a yard away."

Dejected Traynham said he thought he didn't touch the Bruin.

"I was shocked when the official ran up to me and yelled, 'you grabbed him,' then tugged on my jersey," sighed Traynham. "I don't remember grabbing anybody, although we all were pretty close together. I didn't argue because I knew it wouldn't help."

"I was especially surprised at the penalty because an official who was closer to the play didn't even call it."

CONTROVERSIAL PLAY
Willie Wood of SC snatches long pass intended for Bruins' Marv Luster on Trojan seven-yard line. However, pass interference was called on SC's Jerry Traynham and play went for 46-yard gain for UCLA. Bruins scored three plays later to upset SC, 10-3.—(AP Wirephoto.)

By DAVE LEWIS

SC's dreams of a No. 1 national ranking were turned into a nightmare Saturday when UCLA sent the Trojans crashing from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 10-point surge in the fourth quarter that carried them to a rousing 10-3 conquest before 65,917 breathless fans in the Coliseum.

The blow that brought an end to SC's eight-game win streak was struck at 6:54 of the final period when full-back Ray Smith ripped three yards through left guard for the touchdown that broke a 3-3 tie.

But the play that broke the backs of the Trojans came less than a minute earlier when a pass interference penalty gave the Bruins a first down on the SC seven.

It was a 46-yard penalty and came after Troy's Willie Wood had intercepted Bill Kilmer's long pass intended for Marv Luster. The call immediately touched off a wild controversy.

Wood and Jerry Traynham were defending against Luster on the seven when all three leaped into the air. Wood came down with the ball, but field judge George Wilson came running onto the scene signalling a penalty. He singled out Traynham as guilty of interference.

Three Stabs at Line Bring Score

Smith covered the final seven yards to the game-winning score in three stabs at the line, and Ivory Jones kicked the conversion.

Five minutes earlier, Jones booted a 31-yard field goal to knot the score after SC's Don Zachik had given Troy a 3-0 lead in the first period with a 27-yard kick.

In between the two field goals, the Trojans muffed three scoring opportunities. They were held for downs on the 22 in the first quarter; were stopped on the nine-yard line by the halftime gun, and missed a first down on the Bruin four by three inches at the outset of the third quarter.

UCLA hammered its way to the very chalk line of the Trojan end zone in the second quarter before being held for downs on the one-foot line.

The Trojans desperately tried to mount a counter-attack after falling behind 10-3 in the final quarter, but the touchdown and two-point conversion that could have pulled the game out of the fire was never within their reach.

Kilmer, who didn't play for two and one-half quarters because of an injured ankle, came off the bench in the third period to lead the Bruins to the brilliant triumph which earned them a tie for first place in AAWU standings with SC and Washington. All three wound up with 3-1 conference records.

Bruins Win Third in Succession

UCLA's seasonal record now stands at 4-3-1 following its third straight win while SC is 8-1.

UCLA was hanging on for dear life until Kilmer came in to mount the Bruins' two scoring drives and force the Trojans to push the "panic button" in a frantic effort to catch up.

Southern California blew a tremendous opportunity to crack the game wide open in the opening moments of the third quarter by missing a first down on the Bruin four by inches.

The Trojans took the second half kickoff on their own 18 and rolled 78 yards before the determined Bruin defense held. Traynham missed the first down by an

Badgers in Rose Bowl Date With Washington

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Limp-legged quarterback Dale Hackbart ran and passed Wisconsin to an 11-7 win over Minnesota Saturday clinching the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl invitation.

The Badgers gained their first undisputed Big Ten title since 1912 and sure selection to the Rose Bowl in a last-period, come from behind surge sparked by Hackbart's 51-yard pass play to Al Schoonover.

Wisconsin will get a chance to erase the 1953 stigma of being the only Big Ten team in recent history to be defeated in the Rose Bowl when it meets Washington, at Pasadena, Jan. 1. Washington appeared sure of the Western bid by blanking Washington State 20-0.

Until the last nine minutes of play, Wisconsin was on the ropes and the title appeared to be going to Michigan State, which rounded out its season last week with a 4-2 record.

The Gophers, who were to end in the Big Ten cellar with only one conference victory, were ahead of Wisconsin, 7-3.

That was when Hackbart, a senior who has been a Badger standout for two seasons, lifted Wisconsin to the title with an 80-yard scoring parade. He scored the touchdown himself on a

Sports Merry-Go-Round

Chargers Just a Laughing Stock

If they continue along their present path, the L. A. Chargers of the new pro American Football League may become the biggest bust in the history of U. S. sports!

As a result of a ridiculous turn-of-events during the past few days, the Chargers right now are the biggest laughing stock in sports that Southern California has seen in many years.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Here's a quick rundown of the poor Chargers' botched-up activities during the past 72 hours:

The club "announced" the hiring of its coach Thursday, but neglected to inform the newspapers. The announcement only happened to be the club's biggest to date—yes, even larger than the hiring of syrupy Frank Leahy as its general manager.

Then, the coach, Bob McBride, a nice chap with a huge family—but a man who would have been way over his head in the complicated pro game—resigned 24 hours after the "announcement" of his hiring.

Why, the Three Stooges couldn't have concocted a more ridiculous slapstick comedy situation!

Only two men in the Charger organization at this time know the first thing about football—or any sport, for that matter. One is Leahy, the other is part-time publicist George Goodale, a familiar figure in the Southland for many years and the old L. A. Angel public relations boss.

But they're not the real operators of the club. At this time, both are nothing more than "yes" men for wealthy Baron Hilton and his entourage of hangers-on. If practical sports men like Leahy and Goodale are not allowed to take the reins, the Chargers will remain like the show window dummy decked out in extravagant duds which are too impractical for anyone to buy.

GOODALE IS only one-half of Hilton's "public relations" team. The other is a Hollywood publicity outfit known as the Lou Smith Agency. The Madison Ave. type agency was supposed to have contacted the press regarding the important announcement of McBride's hiring.

Goodale, as per schedule, broke the news at the sportscafe's luncheon Thursday in L. A. BUT—the Lou Smith boys "forgot" to inform any newspapers at the same time, thus every newspaper in Southern California received the information second-hand.

When the Smith boys got around to "breaking" the news to the papers, they put the frosting on their lemon cake by simply handing out a release as stiff and formal as a deceased Eskimo in a tux.

The Chargers better leave the Smith boys at home when they sit down to draft college players shortly. Lou and his gang of bow tie crewcuts might wind up drafting 10 Ubangis and a dozen Aborigines!

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS

A major beer company is ready to chuck in $30,000 (or more) to sponsor a PGA golf tourney on the January, 1960, dates vacated by the Tijuana Open. The company wants to land the tourney either in San Francisco or Long Beach. The brewers are hot to go—and is anybody around here listening?

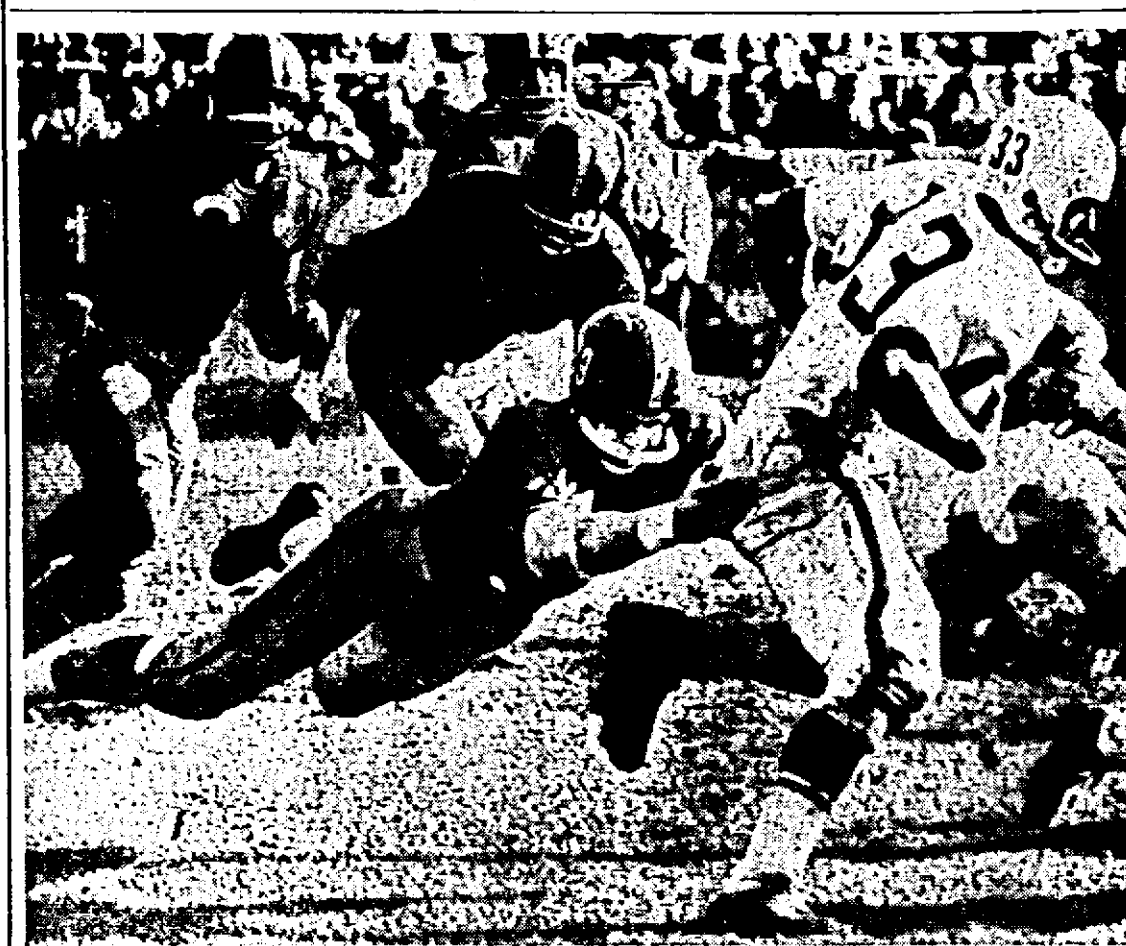

Note to Mac Epley, who was wondering in his column a few days ago if those of us who still backed the Rams were loyal or just stubborn: Who's loyal? We're just like the horse player who keeps losing one race after another, but who continues to plunge in an attempt to get even!

Are you wondering why Bob McBride quit the Chargers after only 24 hours? A well-grounded suspicion is that he learned (too late) that the real coach would be Frank Leahy, NOT the guy hired as "coach."

Long Beach's Julie Besos was absent Friday night because of a business commitment when the '34 SC football team was honored at Troy's annual grid banquet. Julie, one of the great Troy gridriders, was end and captain of Howard Jones' 1934 group.

The remark in Sports Illustrated that "watching films of Mike McKeever injure Steve Bates was like viewing a movie of Richard Widmark assaulting a cripple," has infuriated Don Clark. "Nothing has disturbed me so much since I came to SC," raged Don this week. "A man who writes junk like that must be warped!" I'll buy that statement.

Huskies in Rose Bowl

SEATTLE (UPI)—Bob Schloredt, Washington's one-eyed magician, rolled up 209 yards running and passing Sunday as he led the Huskies into the Rose Bowl with a 20-0 victory over arch-rival Washington State before the largest crowd in Washington history.

Schloredt made 111 yards rushing and 98 more with his passing arm. He scored one touchdown himself on a one-yard quarterback sneak and played a key part in Washington's other two scoring drives.

A CROWD of 56,000 gave him a standing ovation when he left the game midway in the final period.

Schloredt paced an 80-yard drive that resulted in a touchdown when Don McKeta bulled his way into the end zone from the Cougar four on the first play of the second period.

Schloredt's own score came in the third period to climax a 53-yard march. Washington's last score was in that same quarter when Washington State was called for pass interference on its own one-yard line. Fullback Joe Jones cracked over on the next play.

Washington threatened twice more in the first half, penetrating to the Cougar 22 once and to the 20 the second time. Both times, the Husky attack bogged down and George Fleming's field goal attempts went wide.

Washington's defense was magnificent. The hard-charging Husky line, led by Bill Kinnune, Kurt Gagner and Chuck Allen, held Keith Lincoln, the Cougars' great triple-threat back, in check throughout the afternoon. He managed only 33 yards running and two yards passing, but his booming punts averaged 44 yards.

The Husky defense stopped the Cougar attack so well that Washington State did not make a first down in the second half until the third period was more than 13 minutes gone.

THE VICTORY climaxed Washington's greatest season in modern times and assured the Huskies of their first bona fide trip to the Rose Bowl since 1937. The Huskies' opponent next January 1 will be Wisconsin, which sewed up the Big Ten title with its victory over Minnesota.

ANDREWS IN TKO VICTORY AT OLYMPIC

By FRANK HARVEY

Paul Andrews, promising young heavyweight, battered 6-7 giant Otis Fuller about the ring at will Saturday night to score a technical knockout at 2:07 of the seventh round in the featured Olympic Auditorium fight.

Fuller, a willing puncher, threw all he had against Andrews but the latter managed to avoid most of the punches thrown by the wild-swinging Otis and appeared to be carrying the fight.

Andrews really opened up in the seventh, however, and had Fuller floundering around the ring in confusion when referee John Thomas stepped in and stopped the one-sided affair.

Ducks Surprised by Beavers, 15-7

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon State's fumbling Beavers got off to another frustrating start, then pulled themselves together Saturday to upset mighty Oregon, 15-7, in a climax to a previously dismal season.

The Beavers fumbled the first two times they had the ball, presenting Oregon with a 7-0 lead after only 6½ minutes of play. Then came the comeback.

The Beavers, who started the game with a 2-7 record compared to Oregon's 8-1, drove 52 yards for a touchdown and added a 30-yard field goal to take a 9-7 lead by halftime.

Norman Hits on 34 Passes

STANFORD (UPI)—California's late scoring surge nipped Stanford, 20-17, in the 62nd annual "big game" Saturday to nullify one of the greatest passing performances in grid history by Dick Norman of the Indians.

Stanford was stopped near yards to go as the game ended, the goal line just before the end with 90,000 fans in hys-hal and again with only six tries.

YALE FALLS TO HARVARD

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)

Clever quarterbacking by Charley Ravenel and hard running by Chet Boularis paced fiery Harvard to a 35-6 triumph over Yale Saturday. The victory gave the Crimson the Big Three title for the first time since 1954.

Harvard tallied four times in the final half after Ravenel opened the gates by consistently outsmarting Yale's defense. He tallied twice himself.

A near capacity crowd of 66,033 thrilled or moaned as Harvard scored on an 85-yard pass and run, and runs of one and six by Ravenel, 14 by Boularis and 31 by Al Cullen.

Trailing 14-0 at halftime, Stanford came ripping back to deadlock the count at the end of the third quarter and go ahead 17-14 on Skip Face's field goal from the 23 early in the fourth period.

Then the bruising Bear ground game piloted by quarterback Wayne Crow pushed the Stanford line aside on a 68-yard march. Jerry Scattini romped over from the two.

But it was Norman who was the hero. The nation's leading passer completed 34 out of 39 for 401 yards.

The other national leaders on Stanford's team, Face and Chris Burford, also fared well.

BURFORD upped his receptions for the year to 60 with 11, and Face, who had 89 points, scored 11 more.

California scored twice in the second period. The first came on a 48-yard pass from Crow to end Gael Barcott.

The next was a pass from Crow to Billy Patton from the 10.

During that first half Crow completed eight for eight for 151 yards. Norman had 16 for 18 for 182 yards.

But Norman went wild in the second half. He set up the first Stanford touchdown with a 45-yard pass to end Ben Robinson. Face scored from the three.

STANFORD tied it on a 10-yard pass from Norman to Burford, and then went in front with Face's field goal from the 23.

LBCC Bows to San Diego, 12-0

By JIM HANCHETT

SAN DIEGO — San Diego JC's speed and Long Beach City College's lack of it spelled a 12-0 victory for the Knights Saturday night in the Metropolitan Conference football finale in Balboa Stadium.

The Knights struck twice through the air for touchdowns and each time it was an extra burst of speed by the receiver that proved the difference.

ON THE first play of the fourth quarter, halfback Clarence Adams grabbed a pass from quarterback John Tomlinson on the five, ran away from one tackler and bowled over another pair as he went into the end zone.

The pass was good for 19 yards and it capped a 63-yard drive which began when guard Henry Bishop recovered Morris Hodgson's fumble.

Long Beach was severely handicapped by the absence of its top three halfbacks. Hodgson and Ray Snyder averaged only 3.2 and 2.6 yards per carry, respectively. The Vikings' lack of speed forced them to punch up the middle and the Knight line did not give way.

THE NORSEMEN drove in to San Diego territory only twice.

Reserve fullback Dan Powell broke loose for 25 and 19 yards on two draw plays to move the Vikings to the San Diego 23. However, the half-time gun ended the drive.

San Diego scoring: TD—Patton 73 (Jackson), Adams 19 (Tomlinson).

If you want the UCLA players' opinion, SC just isn't capable of standing up to a team that is capable.

Wasting through the Bruin dressing room after the 10-3 conquest of the No. 2 ranked Trojans was the conclusion that all it takes to beat SC is a good job of blocking and new or surprising," said Bruin coach Bill Barnes. Though he didn't say it, he left the impression that he and his assistants didn't think it was necessary to fool the Trojans—just necessary to knock them down.

Harry Baldwin, Bruin center who has been an ironman all year, said it was simply a case of "hitting them hard."

"AT THE END," said Baldwin, "they (SC) were all pooped out. After they came out for the second half and made that one drive (it went 76 yards to the Bruin 6) they ran out of gas. They were really bushed."

It may have been the excitement, but the UCLA players did not appear tired and the team trainer said there were no injuries.

Ray Smith, fullback and team captain (who didn't lose to the Trojans in four years of frosh and varsity competition), said "I'm not even tired. They didn't hit any harder than anybody else we played this year."

Ray, who played more rock-sock football than anybody else on the field and proved he's one of the finest blockers in Bruin history.

called it "a team victory." He was completely correct.

BARNES SAID he thought "the whole line played real well."

There was not a Bruin hero. Even Bill Kilmer, who injected the passing threat that proved the difference, was just part of the "team effort."

Kilmer completed six of 19 passes for 76 yards and he added 20 rushing. He didn't play in the first half because he was slowed by a bruised ankle, but Barnes decided at the intermission to shoot the works.

"I told Kilmer to go in there and throw the ball," said Earnes. And throw it he did. He passed on 6 of the first 10 UCLA plays of fender (he didn't know whether it was Willie Wood or Jerry Traynham) as he made his final "cut" in the pass pattern—not on the jump for the pass.

Barnes revealed that he did not set up any special strategy for handling SC terror Mike McKeever. "We played him just like any other player," said Barnes. "No one special was assigned to him. It just depended on which way the play was going. Mike made just one unassisted tackle all day. Brother

Ray Smith commented, "We didn't even know the McKeevers were in there today."

But the McKeevers knew they'd been in a hell of a lot.

THREE LOS ALAMITOS BEAUTIES

A trio of beauties at Los Alamitos Race Course, which opens its 25-day fall meeting Monday, is pictured above. In right photo is new $2,500,000 grandstand and club house as it looks to fan approaching plant. Ultramodern facilities can accommodate 25,000. Above are Maureen McDermott with the "queen" of quarter-horses, Miss Louton. An entrant in Monday's opening day $5,000 Clabbertown G. feature, Miss Louton is considered the fastest horse in the world.

OPEN HOUSE TODAY AT NEW PLANT

'Alamitos Primed for Opener

Quarter horse racing gets under way Monday at Los Alamitos Race Course in the rich setting of a brand new, modern multi-million dollar racing plant.

First post time for the 25-day meeting which runs daily, except Sunday, through Dec. 22, is 12:45 p.m. The early post time will also be held on Thanksgiving Day and the four Saturdays when nine races will be run. On all other days, first post will be 1 p.m.

The modern, spacious addition to Los Alamitos will be open to the public today from 1 to 5 p.m. Visitors will be free to roam throughout the 253,000 square foot grandstand and, as an added attraction, track president Frank Vessels Sr. announced that the horses running at the meeting will hold their workouts in the afternoon instead of in the early morning hours.

The richest purse program, $409,600, has attracted the top quarter horse stars to the meeting and many of them will be running in the opening-day feature, the $5,000 Clabbertown G. at 3:50 yards.

Heading the list of major horses out to get an early dividend is Marion Seward's quick Miss Louton, the star of the spring meeting, who will be ridden by the expert veteran, Jay Fishburn.

Among the leading challengers to Miss Louton, is Guy Furinton's No Butt. The winner of the recent Pomona Championship will be ridden by Ken Chapman, the 1957 Los Alamitos jockey champion.

Others gunning for a share of the $5,000 include Western Stable's Triple Lady with L. G. Littell up, Donald K. Brokaw's Clabber's Win, and Eastern Maiden, Pana Bar, Double

Bid, Tidy Too and Lip Request.

The Clabbertown G. is the first of the stakes races for three-year-olds and up leading to the $25,000 Autumn Championship to be run Dec. 19. Miss Louton is taking dead aim on this prize, for if she wins the Autumn, she will be the first horse in the history of Los Alamitos to capture both the spring and fall crowns.

Long-time patrons of the Los Alamitos track will be amazed and pleased at the new grandstand, which makes Los Alamitos the most modern track in the west and ranks the course as the third major racing plant in California.

The mammoth plant will seat 5,000 in individual theater type chairs and accommodate 25,000. The plant contains every modern facility for the fans' convenience, including four escalators to whisk them to all levels.

Senator Frost Wins, Marks Fall as Harness Meet Ends

The Western Harness Racing Association concluded the most successful season in its 13-year history Saturday at Hollywood Park as a crowd of 17,425 helped establish new marks in both seasonal total and daily average attendance.

The huge crowd was treated to one of the most remarkable two-horse harness races in history as Senator Frost won the American Trotting Classic raceoff in track record time of 1:57 3/5.

IN REELING off the swift time, Senator Frost defeated Charming Barbara, the mare which set the old trot mark of 1:58 just last week in winning the third leg of the Classic.

Dick Buxton drove Senator Frost and he climaxed a big day by winning the Sunset Trot with Fisherman in 1:58. It is believed by harness historians that no man has ever gone two faster trotting miles in the same day.

Joe O'Brien collected two more winners on the closing day card to give him 31 for the 35-day meet. This is a new record and O'Brien was selected unanimously as the top driver.

Casper Boosts Lead to 2 Shots
MOBILE (UPI)—Billy Casper Jr., playing the safe shots all the way, fired his second straight 68 Saturday for a 52-hole total of 207 and a two-stroke lead in the $15,000 Mobile Open golf tournament.

SUNBELLE, winner of 13 straight races including the American Pacing Classic in straight heats, was voted "horse of the meeting."

The track had a total attendance of 382,132 for a daily average of 10,918, up 13.1 per cent over the 1958 fall meeting.

Road Races at Ascot, Twin Bill at Gardena Track

Auto racing is scheduled at two Southland tracks today, including the usual claiming stock cars and destruction derby at Gardena Stadium.

Road racing makes its debut at Ascot Stadium, 182nd at Vermont, when sprint midget cars compete on a new nine-turn figure-eight. A motor thrill show, featuring stunt men Don Woods and Buddy Gates, is an added attraction. First race is at 2 p.m.

Gardena's stock card begins at 2:30 p.m. and the destruction derby is billed for 7 p.m. Chuck Townsend, Downey; Whitey Fuller, Gardena; and Bing Warner, Artesia, are among the area drivers who will compete.

Something new and exciting has been added to the Southern California racing picture. That something new is our modern multi-million dollar plant. We think so much of it, we'd like everyone to see it. Progressing Surprises in Rich Futurity

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Wheatley Stable's Progressing, a failure in four previous stakes this year, Saturday won the $117,320 Fimlico Futurity.

With jockey Hedley Woodhouse in the saddle, Progressing scored by one length over All Hands and Catapult.

Progressing paid more for third than he did to win. The unusual pay-off was $19.20 to win, $10 to place and a whopping $21.20 to show.

CAL HOY Stable's Bald Eagle blazed to a track record at Aqueduct in winning the $55,200 Gallant Fox Handicap by almost two lengths.

Jockey Manuel Ycaza rode Bald Eagle over the grueling mile and five eighths in the sparkling time of 2:41 flat to clip one and three-fifths seconds off the previous record set by Round Table.

Bald Eagle paid $4.30, $2.50 and $2.50 across the board. Whodunit, with Conn McCreary up, returned $5.60 and $4.00 while Whitley, with Eric Guerin riding, paid $7.30.

C. V. WHITNEY's favored Refute nosed out Shimmy in the stretch to win by a nose in the $11,200 San Jose Handicap for 2-year-olds at Bay Meadows.

HARBOR VIEWS

Galleon to Offer Sea-Bottom View

By LEE CRAIG

There'll be a 30-foot model of a Spanish galleon cruising off Catalina Island next summer.

The craft will be the island's newest glass-bottom boat, launched Wednesday at Johnson & Western in San Pedro.

Diesel-powered, the boat will feature a crow's-nest, bowsprit, hand tiller in the rear and imitation Spanish decorations and medallions. Viewing wells are twice as large as any other Catalina glass-bottom boat. Capacity is 30 persons.

MATSON'S NEW 10-day cargo service between here and Hawaii began Friday and a 21-day express service between San Francisco Bay ports and Honolulu will start Tuesday.

In the LA-Hawaii run, three container service freighters are involved, each carrying up to 75 24-foot-long containers on their weather decks and smaller containers and conventional cargo in their holds.

WORK HAS BEGUN in Portland on conversion of Matson's freighter Hawaiian Citizen into a container ship. The 3½-million-dollar job is being done by Willamette Iron and Steel Co., which produced the present versions of the Mariposa and Monterey.

ONE SUBSIDENCE apparently is causing some concern to the good folks in Montana. Bob Metzgar, Long Beach Harbor publicist, has received a request for latest sinkage data from an amateur radio operator in Livingston, Mont. She says people up there have gained the impression from articles and radio reports that we're shipping into the sea and she wants to know if this is true.

Bob says he's tempted to send her a two-word answer: "Glub, Glub!"

Kennecott Pact Up to Workers

SALT LAKE CITY (CP)—A contract was agreed upon Saturday and only union-member ratification stood in the way of an end to the 104-day strike involving Kennecott Copper Corp. and the United Steelworkers of America.

Members of seven Kennecott locals of the steelworkers are expected to vote on the contract today. Most observers feel it will be approved.

An end to the USW strike versus fact that the Kennecott would never cease to exercise sov-

mean that smelter and refinery operations, principally in

Utah, would start up again.

Panama, U.S. Sift Tensions

PANAMA (AP)—U. S. Undersecretary of State Livingston T. Merchant began a series of meetings with Panama officials Saturday to ease tension over the Canal Zone.

He had a 90-minute morning meeting with President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr. in the Presidential Palace and an afternoon session with Foreign Minister Miguel Morero Jr. at the Foreign Office.

A Panama communique said mutual problems were "discussed thoroughly" at the presidential meeting.

Merchant, who arrived Friday, said he hoped the talks would restore "the traditional friendly and warm relationship" between the two countries.

THE RELATIONSHIP was upset Nov. 3, Panama's independence day, when 80 persons were injured, the majority of them while clashing with U. S. Canal Zone police and troops in an attempt to plant the Panama flag in the Canal Zone.

Washington got a perpetual lease to run the canal under a 1903 treaty with Panama, but the question of sovereignty has never been decided.

Friday night, Finance Minister Fernando Elea repeated a statement made Thursday that President Eisenhower's brother, Milton, told him Sept. 13, 1958, the United States would recognize Panama sovereignty Nov. 3.

THE STATE Department denied that Milton, the President's adviser on Latin America, had made "any statement which could be construed to any course of action with respect to the Canal Zone."

Elea said the President's brother "agreed with me, as the contract today. Most other personalities of the government of the United States have done, on the incontro-versible fact that the Kennecott would never cease to exercise sov-

mean that smelter and refinery operations, principally in

Utah, would start up again.

Conference to Put Music Forces in Orbit

By GEORGE ERES
The City Council, Board of Education, State College and The Independent, Press-Telegram Saturday jointly announced endorsement of a call to a city-wide conference on Music.
The call to the conference—first of its kind here—was issued by the Long Beach Music Council committee, under the temporary chairmanship of Dr. Bertram McGarrity, professor of music at Long Beach State College.
One of the possibilities of a concerted city-wide effort is noted in the policy statement adopted by the Music Council:
"Perhaps, in another year, we can establish a Long Beach Music Festival which will provide a focus for the musical life of the entire community..."
THE PURPOSE of the conference, tentatively scheduled for the later part of January, said McGarrity, "is to bring together a report on music in today's Long Beach; to elicit ideas from all segments of our musical life; to generate enthusiasm and give direction to a breakthrough to a new level for musical culture in Long Beach..."
A program for the conference—speakers and subjects—now is being drawn up by Fred Ohlendorf, acting supervisor of music for the Long Beach Unified School District; Royal Stanton, head of the music department at Long Beach City College; Lauris Jones, conductor of the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, and McGarrity.
OTHERS ON THE Music Council's committee are: Dr. Robert Buffum, chairman of the Municipal Arts Committee; H. C. Green, president of the Musicians' Assn., Local 353; Dr. Frank Harnett, director of the City Recreation

Aerial Grab for Satellite Capsule Fails

Surface Search for Cone Due to Start Today
VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — The Air Force said Saturday night that it is sure the lost capsule of its Discoverer VIII satellite separated from the orbiting vehicle and plunged toward the sea near Hawaii.
The Air Force is also sure the retro-rocket which was to slow its descent fired as planned.
But — said a spokesman — there's no indication that the falling capsule's parachute opened.
WITHOUT the chute the capsule might hit the sea moving so fast it could break open and sink, experts said. It normally would float.
The Air Force had hoped to snatch the 300-pound capsule from the air as it fell, using planes dragging trapeze-like rigs behind them. They missed it, and the planes were called back.
A search vessel is due to reach early today the area where the object is believed to have fallen.
THE AIR FORCE said it had positive indications of the successful operation of the recovery sequence up to the point of parachute deployment. According to tracking data, the Air Force said after separation the capsule may have impacted somewhat south of the predicted area southeast of Hawaii.
This was the fifth attempt to recover a capsule that had been in orbit around the earth. The four previous attempts failed.

City Alert to Hit L.A. Bid to Dump Rubbish on County

By GEORGE WEEKS
City officials here are on the alert for a possible move by the City of Los Angeles to dump its maze of rubbish-collection troubles on the county.
"The pressure is on," said two county officials in key positions.
They refused to be quoted by name. But both told The Independent, Press-Telegram that it appears likely Los Angeles city officials, desperate about exposes of inept and costly collections under city administration, will turn to the county for help.
Whether the move will develop at a meeting Monday between the Board of Supervisors and officials of many Los Angeles County cities remained uncertain.
But Long Beach officials who will attend the joint session have been warned to be on the lookout for it. And the Long Beach City Council is on record as favoring home rule in refuse collections—along with home responsibility.
The Los Angeles County Division of the League of California Cities has taken substantially the same position.
APPARENTLY ON GUARD for some proposal for a county-wide system, the league resolved that participation by any city "in consolidated or coordinated disposal or collection of refuse be entirely permissive, and not mandatory, as to that city."
It noted that the cities use many different methods in the house-to-house collection of rubbish, although conceding that disposal of the refuse (once it is collected) is an area-wide problem.
The league emphasized that the existing county sanitation districts, with representation on each board by the mayors or councilmen of all cities within each district, have "demonstrated competency" in the field of disposal.
The districts, of which there are 23 in the county, already are operating two self-financing disposal sites, have initiated proceedings for two more and are negotiating for a fifth.
VICE MAYOR VIRGIL H. SPONGBERG, Long Beach's representative to the league, said he would have no objection to Los Angeles availing itself of this disposal service, as do many other cities, provided it pays the self-liquidating disposal charges.
But he said he would object to any move to impose on county-wide taxpayers the City of Los Angeles' collection or disposal burdens.
Sponberg will represent the City Council at the meeting Monday with the Board of Supervisors. Other local officials attending will be James Kincaid, director of public service, and Jess D. Gilkerson, city engineer.
The supervisors are also on record as generally favoring the present system. Two of them, Burton Chace and Frank Bonelli, both of whom represent portions of Long Beach, are reported as firmly opposed to the county's

Nixon Told Others May Get Approval

Request Initiated in Letter Written Mr. K in August
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has granted permission to four Russians to join relatives in the United States, Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday.
Nixon said his information had come from the State Department.
One of the four is already in the United States.
At the same time, Nixon made public a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko stating that consideration would be given to requests by other Russians who wish to be reunited with relatives here.
"Their requests will be considered with proper attention as is always the case in consideration of such affairs," Gromyko said in a telegraphed letter to Nixon as made public by the vice president's office. Such "consideration" includes clearance by Soviet police.
NIXON'S OFFICE said the four already granted permission to leave Russia are:
Karl Aistrault, husband of Mrs. Amilda Aistrault, Rochester, N. Y.; Jullanna Nicls, mother of Mrs. Valentine Nicls Avotins, Chicago; Mrs. Natali Yaris, wife of John Yaris, Hollywood, Fla.; and Anne-Reet Normm, daughter of Mrs. Amilde Normm, Detroit. Aistraults arrived in this country a month ago.
In a letter to Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev last Aug. 1, Nixon listed the names of more than 100 per-

Boy, 9, Saved After Floating Quarter Mile in N.Y. Sewer

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 9-year-old boy, pushed into a manhole by a playmate, floated a quarter of a mile through a sewer tunnel Saturday and emerged in the Harlem River, where he was rescued by police.
Antonio Batista was pulled from the freezing water by police about 40 minutes after he plunged into the manhole. Taken to a hospital, doctors said he appeared to be in good condition, but would remain there a few days.
The boy, a Puerto Rican, said he and 11 friends had been playing "monster" in High Bridge Park, the same park where teenaged invalid Michael Farmer was stabbed fatally by a youth gang several years ago.
"WHOEVER caught the monster, then they had to be it," the boy told newsmen from his hospital bed. "But some other boys started throwing rocks and then one of those boys pushed me.
"I don't know how far I fell, but I landed in water and I tried to get out. But I couldn't, so I rested and hung on this rock. Finally I let myself go. I knew there would be a place to get out and I floated out."
Police, alerted by the other boys, sped to the mouth of the tunnel where it empties into the Harlem River. The river separates the upper end of Manhattan Island from the Bronx.
A police launch, three radio-cars and an emergency truck were waiting as the boy, a

Ike Picks Military Aid Chief

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower set up in the Pentagon Saturday what amounts to a chief of staff for military aid to friendly nations.
Eisenhower named a four-star Army general, Williston B. Palmer, to boss the military assistance program.
Palmer will work closely with the military Joint Chiefs of Staff—the uniformed heads of the armed services. The temporary White House said he will take over next month and will have the same rank and authority in his field which JCS members have in theirs. He will not be a JCS member, however.
The move to strengthen the military aid program coincided with another presidential conference on the military budget. Military aid will be included in the new defense budget for the first time. The cost for the 1961 fiscal year beginning next July 1 is estimated at some $1,300,000,000.

Pioneer Rock, Roll Disc Jockey Fired

NEW YORK (UPI)—Disc jockey Alan Freed, a pioneer in the rock 'n' roll record craze, was fired Saturday by the American Broadcasting Company's New York radio station WABC.
The National Broadcasting Company announced at the same time that the TV giveaway show, "Treasure Hunt," would go off the air after the Dec. 4 program.
Robert Kintner, president of NBC, disclosed recently that two "warmup men" on "Treasure Hunt" had been taking kickbacks from contestants. Both were fired.
WABC gave no reason for firing Freed, one of the nation's top disc jockeys. His traveling "big beat" shows were banned in various cities because of teenagers' riots.
Meanwhile, the House subcommittee investigating alleged "payola" handouts to radio-TV disc jockeys for playing certain songs disclosed in Washington it is being deluged with "clues and leads" from newspaper reports across the country.
The Freed firing came in advance of a new House subcommittee inquiry aimed at "payola" practices in the disc jockey field. The committee previously exposed TV quiz show rigging.

Diver Cut by Boat's Prop Dies

A Coast Guard mercy mission was unsuccessful Saturday in an attempt to save the life of a skindiver who was hit by a boat near Santa Barbara Island.
The victim, Harold Gavenman, of Canoga Park, was dead on arrival at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport.
Coast Guard officials said Gavenman was struck by the propeller of the boat and suffered extensive leg cuts. The boat was identified as the Vellron.
Gavenman was taken to Isthmus Cove by the boat Native, where he was picked up by a San Diego-based Coast Guard helicopter and flown to the hospital.

23 on Plane Killed as It Strikes Hill

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A four-engined plane of Afghanistan's Ariana Airways crashed Saturday night shortly after taking off from Beirut Airport. Twenty-three persons were reported killed and three injured.
The plane, bound for Kabul, was about two miles from the field when it smashed into a mountain.
One report said the plane's crew included two Americans but this could not be verified.
Witnesses said two engines appeared to catch fire just before the plane plunged into the mountain. Flames from the crash were visible for miles.

HUSKIES-BADGERS ON JAN. 1

Bruins Shock USC, 10-3; Rose Bowl Foes Decided
The University of Southern California Trojans—which had been one of the two remaining unbeaten-untied teams in the country—fell before UCLA, 10-3, Saturday.
Syracuse now stands alone as the goliath of the nation, the only undefeated-untied major team.
Southern Cal, whipped in the last quarter when UCLA scored the game's only touchdown, is on NCAA probation and the defeat has no significance in the bowl picture.
Meanwhile, Wisconsin's Badgers wrapped up the Big 10 title by defeating Minnesota, 11-7, and will meet Washington in the Rose Bowl. (Details in the Sports Section.)

THEY SENT a protest to President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and the United Nations. It said the rationing program is "immoral, dishonest and unfair" and laid most of the blame at the feet of the Jordanian government.
Gore is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee which deals with Middle East affairs. McGee is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.
They said rations have been denied to an estimated 100,000 babies of refugee families from Palestine since Jan. 1, 1951, although thousands of refugee ration cards are being misused in the black market.

Fan Collapses, Dies at Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—A 75-year-old man suffered a heart attack and died Saturday afternoon while attending the UCLA-USC football game at the Coliseum.
Henry Laub of North Hollywood suffered the attack during the exciting tussle which saw UCLA knock USC from the unbeaten ranks, 10-3, in one of the season's biggest upsets.

L.A.C. Says: Temporary Successes

"The past is the land of missing persons, and it is only by a combination of diligence and good fortune that anyone who is not monumentally known can be found there." We cannot remember who wrote that, but it certainly applies to most of us. We have seen many temporary successes in our community who blossomed for a few years, some as many as 10 or 12, only to sink into obscurity. Many of these men ran into hard luck. Most of them let a run of good luck convince them that they were some sort of super being. When the going got tough, they were among the first to fail because they never built upon a sound foundation.

We look at many of our outstanding successes of today and wonder how many will hold that position 10 years from now. On the basis of past records no more than two out of 10 will have maintained the high standard of success with which they are now credited. All up and down Pine Ave. we can recall successes of the past which turned into dismal failures. We recall them on Signal Hill, among our real estate developers and in about every line of endeavor. It is a discouraging view to look backward at these men we have seen on top and find many of them suffering privations now. We recall many others who ended up on charity rolls or who died with a broken heart and spirit.

What brought about their failures no one can say because it was somewhat different in every case. But fundamentally, this writer is convinced, it was because the individual became overconfident and in many cases arrogant. He failed to realize how much luck had to do with his success. When men become so sure of themselves that they lose humbleness, they are in danger. We know of very few men who have held their success over many years who can tell you just what move started them on the right road. These men know that had they taken the wrong turn at some point they might never have risen above the average.

The rolls of country clubs and the records of deposits in banks are depressing evidence that so-called success is fleeting. But they are not evidence that real success is fleeting. To us real success is when a family always spends just a little less than it earns and when it recognizes that real financial success can be assured only after it has had long years of trial. It can be assured only after it has passed through the various ups and downs of inflation and recession, which our economy must pass through to be free.

We may be facing another spiral of inflation during which time many more successes will spring into being. But it may be of extreme danger to the individuals unless they have learned the lessons of others who have passed their way. They would be wise to remember the old admonition, "As you go up the ladder of success, may you not meet a friend coming down." It is a fortunate and wise man who can honestly and fearlessly analyze himself.—L.A.C.

Minister Gives Legacy to Peace

LONDON (AP)—The Rev. Tom Willis, Anglican clergyman from Yorkshire, has opened a London office to promote pacifism with half a $28,000 legacy. He is giving the other half to the Church of England to help finance a theological college.

"I feel much better now that I have given the money away," the self-denying cleric said. "As a member of the church I don't believe in wealth."

Government Plans Steel Peace Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government officials, seeking a solution of the steel strike, plan a strategy session here next week to map new peace moves.

The officials have let two weeks go by since the Supreme Court upheld the Taft-Hartley Law injunction halting the strike for 80 days—in hopes that the disputants would cool off.

This hasn't happened. Both sides still are hot under the collar as was evidenced by the bitterness exchanged when the steelworkers' union rejected a new settlement offer made by the industry last week.

The government feels it must start new efforts to get a negotiated settlement before the injunction expires in late January, leaving the union again free to strike.

THE UNION advised the government this week it had better start stock-piling steel needed for defense purposes. The union said that "in all candor, no settlement is in prospect" before the injunction is due to run out.

Joseph F. Finnegan, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service director, is returning from a vacation early next week. He is expected to meet Wednesday with key aides and members of President Eisenhower's steel inquiry board. Eisenhower has asked the three-man inquiry group which is headed by Prof. George W. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania to assist Finnegan in new settlement efforts.

All Units of City Urged to Join Music Program

Department; City Councilman Gerald Desmond and George Eres of the Independent, Press-Telegram.

There will be no admission charge for the conference and no expense to participating groups. Organizations wishing to send delegates to the conference should contact the Music Council through Eres at The Independent, Press-Telegram.

The City Council's action backing the conference urged that all departments of the city cooperate, with an aim to making the program a success.

IN RECOMMENDING adoption of the motion endorsing the call to the conference, Superintendent of Schools Douglas Newcomb pointed out that the goals "are an extension" of the schools' program of musical education.

McGarrity, in accepting election as temporary chairman of the Long Beach Music Council committee, noted that the history of music in Long Beach is one which "merits recognition and praise."

HE SAID he comes naturally to an interest in the project through a developmental process beginning with his clarinet-playing (on the NBC production staff), conductor of orchestras; lecturer on music; composer of incidental music for State College plays and his concern with socio-economic forces which play on the cultural scene. These forces are part of the material in the course on "Music in General Culture" which he gives at State College.

"Perhaps, from a program that may come about through the conference, we can achieve a new distinction for Long Beach in the larger community of the world of music," said McGarrity.

LEADERS HARMONIZE

Dr. Carl McIntosh (right), president of Long Beach State College, and Dr. Bertram McGarrity, professor of music at Long Beach State, discuss policy statement calling a citywide conference on music in Long Beach. Dr. McIntosh said he "wholeheartedly indorses the call for the conference."

Plane Victims Hunted in Gulf

GULFPORT, Miss. (UPI)—A Navy minesweeper, equipped with underwater detection gear, probed the Gulf of Mexico Saturday for the wreckage of a National Airlines plane which crashed Monday with 42 persons aboard.

Officials said the minesweeper found some wreckage which apparently was not that of the 90-ton airliner. Ten bodies have been recovered from the scene of the crash. The latest one was identified Saturday as that of Arnold Brooks Bates of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

City on Alert Against County Trash Dumping assuming the Los Angeles Dump and Salvage, Inc., 6038 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., is more convenient and economical. The nearest district-owned site is in the Palos Verdes Hills.

The city does have an interest in the district-owned dump, however, for local taxes were used in part to purchase it under a loan arrangement. The taxes were collected chiefly through Sanitation District 3, encompassing most of Long Beach.

Long Beach city councilmen went further than merely seconding the league position. They said they were satisfied with the local collection and disposal system as it now stands.

LONG BEACH does not avail itself of the dump facilities offered by the county sanitation districts, chiefly because disposal of refuse from city trucks under contract with the privately-owned City League board members have endorsed the meeting Monday, which will also discuss a county proposal to require the use of scales at all public waste disposal facilities where a charge is made.

In favoring home rule for the cities, the league noted that 66 cities in the county account for 82 per cent of the population and assessed valuation.

City Manager Sam E. Vick said the time may come when the city will have to seek disposal space at the district site, but he predicted it won't occur for several years.

His office, he added, will oppose any attempt by the county or the county sanitation districts to enter the strictly local field of house-to-house refuse collections.

sons in the Soviet Union who wished to join their families here. The list was compiled by the State Department from its files. The list included the names of the four now granted permission to leave the USSR.

A spokesman for Nixon said he assumed the four would take up permanent residence in the United States.

The spokesman also said the names of 11 U.S. airmen who the United States says were shot down in Russia near the Turkish border in September 1958 were not on the list of 100 names. There has been no word from Russia as to the fate of the airmen.

THE LIST OF 100 names was not disclosed.

Some Russians, mostly women who married American servicemen, have been allowed to leave the Soviet Union in the past and come here to live. This also has applied in a few cases to Russian women who married American newsmen and others.

Diplomatic sources said Saturday they could recall a few cases in which other Russians, in response to specific appeals, had been given permission to leave the Soviet Union and join their families in Western nations. At least one such case involved a Russian, coming to the United States, they said.

WHILE HE WAS visiting Russia last summer, Nixon made a personal appeal for release of Russian citizens who wished to come here. In his letter to Khrushchev, Nixon said:

"In the interest of a continuing improvement in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, I believe that matters such as this, involving principles of nonseparation of families which we both support, should not persist as irritants to larger solutions.

"In this regard, I can state that the United States government does not stand in the way of persons, including its own citizens, who desire to depart from the United States to take up residence in the U.S.S.R."

Nixon Tinkles Piano While Benny Fiddles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Union was delayed for an hour. Vice President Richard M. Nixon ended a politically-busy week Saturday night by playing a duet with comedian Jack Benny—sometime music partner of former President Truman.

Nixon supplied piano accompaniment for Benny's violin before an audience composed of many of the nation's top political writers at the National Press Club. The tune was one of Truman's specialties too—the Missouri Waltz.

BENNY EXPLAINED that he had written Nixon to congratulate the vice president on a "wonderful job" on his trip to Russia. In reply, Benny said, he received from Nixon a note saying "After your program with Truman, I demand equal time."

Benny and Nixon breezed through a speeded-up version of the Missouri Waltz. Nixon's judgment on the performance, as pronounced to the other guests was: "All of us should stay in our own rackets."

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy let a crowd of 1,000 wait for an hour Saturday while he listened to the troubles of five college boys.

The Massachusetts Democrat agreed to huddle with the representatives of student waiters on strike against the University of Iowa's Memorial Union.

The waiters are demanding a boost in their food allowance from $1 to $1.25 an hour.

A 10-man picket line refused to disband until Kennedy and Iowa Gov. Herschel C. Loveless had met with the waiters' leaders. The conference lasted so long that a scheduled reception and news conference at the Memorial

Three Boys Drown as Ice Gives Away

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UPI)—Two brothers, 7 and 9, and their 11-year-old companion drowned Saturday when they fell through thin ice on a rural drainage ditch.

The brothers' caps were found near a jagged hole in the ice. The victims were Tony and David Schultz, 7 and 9, and Ricky Rogers, 11.

Truman Flays Eisenhower for 'Shocking Use of Veto'

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Former President Truman Saturday night accused the Eisenhower administration of "hoodwinking and defeating the American people by shameful and shocking use of the presidential veto."

"In the face of an expanding economy, this won't do," Truman said there has been "considerable glee among Republicans about the uninterrupted record of vetoes by President Eisenhower which Congress could not override."

Flying Boxcar Wins Praise of Pilots During Texas Aerial Rodeo

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The 452nd Troop Carrier Wing, USAF, from Long Beach, is participating in an "air rodeo" at Houston. Accompanying the 452nd is Independent, Press-Telegram Reporter Bill Hunter.)

By BILL HUNTER

ELLINGTON A.F.B., HOUSTON, Tex.—From a layman's point of view the C119 "Flying Boxcar" is the sorriest-appearing airplane since Wilbur and Orville Wright made their historic venture at Kitty Hawk, N.C.

This backbone of the Air Force supply resembles a moving truck in comparison with the sleek fighters and bombers that come most quickly to the public eye.

But the men who fly this ungainly craft call it "a good airplane."

"IT DOES THE JOB. It is an extremely substantial piece of equipment. It will get you there on one engine if necessary," said Capt. Jack Christiansen, a Los Angeles manufacturer.

"It will lift 70,000 pounds, get it where it's going and return," he declared.

The C119, its massive propellers resembling windmill sails, will be the star of the USAF Reserve rodeo currently under way here.

Its role in the Air Force is strictly that of a workhorse sort of an aerial taxi service.

THE PEOPLE of this largest Texas city will defend the ungainly craft as readily as the men who fly it and may possibly raise a monument in its honor.

During a recent oil-tanker fire in Houston Harbor, C119s brought firefighting equipment from across the nation in record time. Without these aerial beasts of burden, the holocaust could have reached proportions of the 1947 Texas City explosion that virtually obliterated that city.

Priest Gives Away $28,000 Inheritance

HULL, England (UPI)—The Rev. Tom Willis, a 28-year-old Anglican minister Saturday was never closer to his parishioners.

Lakewood Man Slain; Jail Wife

A Lakewood man died Saturday night after his wife assertedly shot him in the neck with a .22-caliber rifle at their home.

Sheriff's officers said Dean Lloyd Gebhart, 27, was hit by a bullet fired by Barbara Ann Gebhart, 22, following a domestic quarrel at their home, 6213 McKnight Dr.

The woman, booked on suspicion of murder, claimed her husband beat her and accused her of being "sinful" just prior to the pre-dawn shooting Saturday.

Gebhart was taken to Los Angeles County Osteopathic Hospital, where attendants said some of the fragments of the bullet lodged in his spinal column.

$5,000 Cash Sets Candy Barr Free

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Stripper Candy Barr won release from jail on $5,000 bond Saturday when the money was posted in five $1,000 bills by a Las Vegas businessman.

Candy, 23, was jailed Friday when her bond on a Texas narcotics conviction was rescinded. The bond withdrawal action was taken by Melvin Belli, attorney for Miss Barr's ex-beau, Mickey Cohen.

Airline, Cultural Pact Signed by U.S., Russia

MOSCOW (UPI)—The United States Marine Corps Band will tour Russia and direct air service will open between New York and Moscow next year under a new getting-to-know-you exchange pact signed Saturday.

The 20-page agreement for 1960-61 provides for mutual exchanges in industry, science and education and for a greater flow of Russian tourists to the United States as well as entertainment that will give Russians the smash musical "My Fair Lady" and the United States a glimpse of the Moscow Art Theater.

Soviet culture chief Yuri Zhukov and U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson signed the pact which also calls for:—Cooperation in peaceful atomic research.

—Joint medical conferences on cancer, heart disease and polio.

—Reciprocal tours by experts in the automotive, aluminum and aviation industries.

—Exchanges of American and Russian teachers.

—An exchange of radio and TV broadcasts on non-political topics.

—Greater exchange of movies.

—Exchanges in the fields of sports, agriculture, construction, publishing and literature.

Direct flights between New York and Moscow were to be opened, ending the roundabout method now used on commercial flights which are forced to stop at Western European points.

It was reported the flights might start next summer when Russia had enough TU-114 turboprop airliners in service. The largest commercial airliner in the world, the TU-114 can carry 170 to 180 passengers. Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev flew in one on his trip to the United States last September.

THE MARINE Corps Band was expected to visit Russia when President Eisenhower goes next spring. Russians love music and the band was expected to be a smash hit. "My Fair Lady," already broadcast in part by Radio Moscow, was expected to be sold out just as it was on Broadway.

Raid Nets 6 Bookie Suspects

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—An alleged $5,000,000-a-year bookmaking ring was cracked Saturday as 20 Los Angeles, Glendale, Anaheim and sheriff's vice officers combined to arrest four men and two women.

Authorities said the ring handled as much as $50,000 on some big betting days. Arrested on suspicion of bookmaking were:

Alvin Levitt, 37, Woodland Hills, alleged head of the ring. James P. Marozan, 46, Hollywood.

William J. Miller, 51, South Gate.

Gus Leon Sterling, 39, Glendale.

Georgia Mac Brinson, 32, Highland Park.

Miss Floye Bowman, 30, Los Angeles.

The ring specialized in bets on sports events and horse races, it was reported.

Radioactive Materials in Lab Explode

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP)—The nation's fourth leak of radioactive materials in three weeks—and the third in Oak Ridge—was reported Saturday by Atomic Energy Commission officials.

A cleaning compound at Oak Ridge National Laboratory came in contact with some acid, causing a small chemical explosion which scattered a tiny amount of radioactive material Friday night.

The AEC spokesman said the latest explosion left the level of radiation higher than the desirable maximum, but this maximum is kept so low, he emphasized, that there was no danger.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, NOV. 22, 1959 SECTION W

Dance Will Raise Curtain on Yuletide

Raising the curtain on holiday social events in Long Beach will be the 19th annual Dames Club dance at 9 p. m. Saturday in Petroleum Club—first of a series of organizational tributes to the gay Christmas season.

Santa Claus will lend his presence both in decorations and in an "in-person" appearance with George A. Powell Jr. doing the honors. Highlight of the gala evening will be his presentation of a Norwegian blue fox shrug at midnight as special award.

GUESTS will be greeted on arrival by the Dames Club president, Mrs. Gregory Hoskins, and Dr. Hoskins, as well as the dance chairman, Mrs. John V. Snider, and Mr. Snider.

Serving in party chairmanships are Mrs. John Henderson and Mrs. Warren Eckert, decorations; Mrs. Harry Stafford, tickets, and Mrs. Jere Gunther, door award.

Proceeds from the dance will be added to those of earlier Dames Club benefit bridge efforts and will be presented to Cystic Fibrosis Foundation to further that organization's efforts to find both a cause and a cure for this dread disease.

AMONG THE many pre-dance cocktail parties planned is that being co-hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brock and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Beldon in the Brock home, 5750 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Invited are Messrs. and Mmes. Paul Abernathy, Dick Scott, Sam Savage, Robert Campbell, Alvin Fillipow, Gene Cheak, Jack Mixer, Dale Deatherage, Richard Barry Jr., Don Horton, Robert Johnson, Dave Johnson, Edward Cope, Robert Langslet, Berry Merritt Jr. and Kay Jennings. From the Los Angeles area will come the Ken Davidsons, Robert Kirbys, George Newhouses, Phil Fillipow and Mitch Dion.

Also sharing hosting duties are Mr. and Mrs. Don Hazzard who will entertain in their home, 900 E. Marshall Pl., assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Croxson. Their guests include Cmdr. and Mrs. Donald J. Hardy, Cmdr. and Mrs. Robt. Wadsworth, Capt. and Mrs. Louis R. Burnett, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Palsen, Messrs. and Mmes. William McGuire, Thomas Turner Jr., Norman Hastings, Stephen Guidi, Wayne Lavern, Robert DiTrapani, William Palmer, Jere Gunther, Herbert Cook, William Barry, Bill Welter, Dan Tanahill, Jack Dalton, Robert Sanders, Al Pollack, Bob Mitchell, Jules Brady, Bill Marshall, John Wolf, Bill Hoferer, Douglas Ecnwell and Robert Ivey.

MR. AND MRS. John Henderson, 2310 Pine Ave., plan to entertain for Messrs. and Mmes. Tom Moran, Parker Dale, and Richard Niblack. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Giffin, 3250 Chestnut Ave., include Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Maynard, Don Sullivan, William Moore Jr., Edward Lenz, Jeff Webb and Norman Price.

Bidden to their home by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Horries, 2524 Petaluma Ave., are Messrs. and Mmes. B. Benson, Dick Taylor, Don Lindsay, Jim Knowles, Frank Fishbaugh, Don Berger and Phil Schomer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall, 3025 Marwick Ave., will have as their guests, Messrs. and Mmes. David Miller, Carol Simmons, Philip Tepekser, John Merrian, Stewart Wall, Fred McKibbens, Don Budnick, Milton Churchill and Robert Pugh.

Get the Meaning of Music Itself

By ELISE EMERY

At every symphony concert there are three performances. Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, program chairman, told members of Long Beach Auxiliary to Los Angeles Symphony Assn. at their first symphony preview Tuesday in Assistance League Clubhouse.

There are performances by the conductor, by the orchestra and by the audience. It was the third, the "art of listening," which Royal Stanton, head of Long Beach City College Music Dept., discussed as he analyzed the program to be played tonight at 8:00 in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium. The handsome, exciting young Italian conductor, Arturo Basile, who is continuing in the United States the pattern he set in Europe of winning audiences and critics, will direct the 100-piece orchestra.

Long Beach Auxiliary has played a leadership role in raising the cultural tone of the city, Stanton said, noting that during his 14 years here a higher level of musical technique has been demanded steadily. Yet some concert-goers can enrich further their listening experience.

"WHEN YOU go to a concert, how soon do you start to listen? What do you listen for and how do you do it?"

"Does it take a while for you to settle in your seat, notice the person next to you, observe the friend three rows ahead who is wearing a new fur, wonder if you left the lights on in the bedroom, remark that the conductor is fatter than you expected and speculate about what the members of the orchestra are doing? "These wool-gathering projects distract from your enjoyment of the concert you have paid to hear," Stanton said.

There are two kinds of musical meaning, he continued. The first, associated meaning, is the older concept which raises the question, "What does the music make you think of and feel?" The second approach is to listen to sound itself as it is organized according to the rules of music.

"After all, the composer has only sound to use as a medium of expression. Even though he writes what he considers sad music or gay music, it may convey an entirely different emotional message to the hearer."

DESCRIPTIVE notes about the work may be confusing, too. "It's like receiving a Christmas gift exquisitely packaged in Hawaiian wrappings. But inside the box is a gray boat. It has nothing whatever to do with the outer decoration.

"If the package helps, use it; if not, ignore it. The process of listening takes faith that you can understand and enjoy music in terms of sound, and faith that your understanding is just as good as anyone else's. Give music a chance to speak to you, then acknowledge its meaning for you as an individual."

Tonight's program, which spans nearly three centuries of composition, will open with Concerto in E Major, "Spring," from the "The Four Seasons" by Vivaldi, who died in 1743. A celeparty chairman, looks on. G. A. (Gap) Powell Sr. is pictured as he will appear when he makes presentation of beautiful Norwegian blue fox shrug to party's most fortunate guest, high light event during this benefit for Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Yuletide Fantasy Readied

Spectacular holiday decor for the home—cottage to mansion—will be on display when the Sandlarks-Lamplighters seventh annual Christmas Fantasy takes place the first week of December in Cavalier Room, Lafayette Hotel.

The six highly successful fantasies staged previously have earned the two sponsoring organiza-

last summer's beauty pageant.

The public is being invited to view the display without charge between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. Dec. 1 through 4. The show has been lengthened by a day over those of previous years to allow more persons to view the creative efforts of individuals, businesses and clubs.

All of the entries will be priced for sale, and will be tagged with the name of their purchaser for pickup on close of the Fantasy. The display will remain intact throughout the four-day show.

Among unusual entries will be that inspired by the Miss International Beauty Pageant. The entry is a pink tulle tree with autographs of last year's contestants tucked in the branches as surprise gifts.

A NEW addition to this year's Fantasy will be entries by youth organizations which have adopted the show as holiday project.

Again one of the most interesting groups of decorative pieces will be those from more than 30 women's organizations. Their creators, as well as other donors, will be honored at a coffee hour in the Cavalier Room at 10 a. m. Dec. 1.

Presiding at the refreshment table will be Mmes. Leland B. Irish and Sumi Swanson, associate member of Sandlarks; Mrs. Tim Rogers, member of the board of directors of Children's Home Society, and Mrs. John Price, wife of the commanding officer of Long Beach Air Force Base.

SANDLARKS and Lamplighters donate the entire proceeds from the sale of the beautiful entries to Children's Home Society to further its adoption work throughout California.

Yule Party for Writers

Long Beach Writers Club members and their guests are anticipating their annual Christmas luncheon at noon Dec. 2 in Assistance League Clubhouse, 394 Roswell Ave.

Against the background of priceless antiques housed in the clubhouse, decorations will suggest Christmas in many lands. Louis A. Sisti will further the Forty-eight of the total were children with serious medical problems and physical handicaps, while 125 were of various minority backgrounds. Children's Home Society now has a Long Beach office and is a member of Community Chest.

Carmelite Auxiliary Slates Two Events

Two important events are scheduled this week by Carmelite Nun's Auxiliary, a meeting and program at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday and an organ recital at 8 p. m. Saturday.

During Tuesday's business session in Catholic Center, 6th St. and Alamitos Ave., Mrs. Donald Rice, program chairman, will present the Rev. Joseph F. Ryan, guest speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Ryan was educated at historic St. Mary's College and Seminary in Emmitsburg, Md. He is stationed at Our Lady of Refuge Parish where he conducts twice weekly information classes. His topic will be "Humility."

Hostesses will be from Holy Innocents Parish under direction of Mmes. Paul Travers, James Laing and John Gargas.

RICHER understanding and appreciation of fine music is behind the planning of Saturday's organ recital in Long Beach City College Auditorium, 4901 E. Carson St.

Organist will be Don Lee Ellis, music graduate of the University of Southern Illinois. The vocalist, Lynn Carol, was a winner in Long Beach Philharmonic auditions. The program will include a variety of classical, modern and popular compositions.

Recital proceeds will help to maintain the cloistered nuns at Carmel of St. Joseph, 3361 E. Ocean Blvd. Headed by the prioress, the Rev. Mother Mary Magdalene, cloistered contemplative nuns live in the monastery where they devote their lives to prayer, penance and manual labor.

Coordinating recital plans is Mrs. Robert Prince, 5342 Abbeyfield St., chairman, and Mrs. Charles Boyer, 2203 Vuelte Grande Ave., co-chairman. Tickets are available at Cotters, 3950 Atlantic Ave.

Reciprocity Fete

Members of Presidents Club of Long Beach will be honor guests at the annual reciprocity meeting of Agassiz Nature Club 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in Robert Louis Stevenson School auditorium, 630 E. 6th St. Mrs. Rose E. Berry will preside, with Mrs. Pearl Baker presenting the program.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

GLORIOUSLY thunder-struck were Neville and Harry Tibbet Wednesday when the light finally dawned and they realized they were honorees at an elegantly, ably planned surprise dinner in recognition of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Party hosts Audrey and Arnold Remy were at the bottom of the gay skulduggery which took place at their home, 1000 Bryant Rd. Neville and Harry began the evening with Peggy and Dr. Earl Gates under the impression they were going to Disneyland. A detour to the Remy's soon dispelled the idea for there on the front of the house a big silver 25 glittered under the impact of a spotlight, porch posts were wrapped in silver foil and festooned with white wedding bells and, to clinch the party purpose, the front door had "Harry and Neville" spelled out in silver glitter.

Adding to the shindig's importance was presence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Pyles, Mrs. Florence Tibbet, Neville's sister and brother-in-law, Evelyn and Gordon Miller of Bakersfield and the honorees' daughter and son-in-law, Lynn and Bill Skeen. Assisting the host and hostess for the cocktail and dinner affair were Sue and Bob Driscoll.

YOUNG PRESIDENTS, an organization of men who have become presidents of companies prior to reaching the age of 40 (no, Elmer, the shoe stand doesn't qualify you) had its latest palaver for Western Region members at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach last week which is why Noble and Dixie Millie and Katie and Bob Bailey were absent from our happy hunting grounds (yes, Elmer, they are and so are Elva and Dick Lawson who didn't go because they had been in New York or were or something).

SPEAKING OF Noble and Dixie Millie reminds us of a little joke in this office which we occasionally and inadvertently let the whole town in on. It is the frustrating tendency for certain names to get misspelled in print. Last Sunday's front page bears me out. Noble's name, after three of us had faithfully read the proof page to insure against such error, came out Miller. Which is mild in comparison to what the Sports section has done to Divie. At least twice they have referred to her in golf stories as "Dizzy" Millie.

Take the case of Polly and Burton Chase. They've been called Chase so many times in print they probably have taken to doubting their own spelling.

Or how about Louise and Dr. Phil Voigt? Can it be these people Dr. and Mrs. Philip Voigt are the same people?

Even our own publishers have trouble coming out even. Bonnie and Hank and Betty and Dan Ridder have, more times than we like to recall, been blissfully renamed Rutter.

It's all very easy to understand and we'll be glad to give our theory to anyone who asks, "Mrs. Matthewson — or is it Matter-son — what is the reason?"

JUDGING by the crowd at Executives' Secretaries annual Bosses Night dinner party at Petroleum Club last Monday it's a safe bet the only cool cats who stayed home were the females. To give you a spot-check idea, among those present to hear Erle Stanley Gardner, famous guest speaker, were Rose and "Nish" Nishkian, Julia and Bill Cheney, Florence and John Curtis, Virginia and Bob Hall, Evelyn and Don Sullivan, Tina and John Baby, Nancy and Bill Brooks, Leanna and Leroy Pittman, Terrell and Ralph Stahler, Donna and Bud Ridings, the Jim Foasbergs, the Ralph Settles, George Richards, Gladys and Charles Campbell, Meriam and Harry Jordan and...

Mayor Ray Kealer, Supervisor Burton and Polly Chac(s)e (?), Dottie and Bill Dalessi, Pat and Ralph Settle, Clare and Al Code, Lou and Bessie Reese, Emily and John Cottrell, Ginny and Jerry Desmond.

Ann and Sheriff Pete Pitchess (who introduced the speaker), Vi and Police Chief Bill Dovey, Maud and "Scottie" Scott, Jim Crocker, the Robert Crows, the Charles Dooleys, Norma and Bill Becker, the Kenneth Wings, Sr. and Jr. (Mildred and Bev), and E/S prexy Grace Cooney who someone glowingly described as "the living end" — so that's where we'll end before we wind up with a roster instead of a list.

HOLIDAY eye-opener was Marge and Ed Demler and Betty and Fred Tebbett's cocktail party last night at the Demler's home for peninsula pals. About 100 were bidden to the just-before-Christmas — rush — begins soiree.

Next Saturday the sounds of another party will fill the house as Rae Demler, home from Cal for Thanksgiving, entertains for as many of her college friends, home from campuses everywhere, as she can contact.

THERE wasn't room for anything but ooo's, ah's and gleeful girl-type camaraderie at the Dutcher's yesterday when Pam Dutcher and Judy Benson co-hosted a tea and miscellaneous bridal shower for Betty Lou (Munholland) Gray. Assisting was Pam's mother, Mrs. Doris Dutcher.

THIS PAST week has a very warm spot in its heart for Wednesday night which is one of the reasons it will be remembered as A Good Week. On that date Anabel and Dr. Ben Parks and Myra and Dr. Kirt Parks co-hosted a most amiable cocktail buffet party for a group of their medical friends at Anabel and Ben's beautiful Chinese Modern decorated apartment in Park Estates.

BRIDGE tables were busy at Helen (Mrs. James R.) Bole's Tuesday when she opened her home to members of Ebell Jr.s. for a pass or bid session co-hosted by Lee Bole and Marie Pore. Forgetting all about calorie protocol when the pumpkin pie was served were Phyllis Bruce, Joanna Bruce, Maureen Cone, Madeline Glascock, Enid Hattey, Shirley Oswald, Elaine Seirup, Jody Warner, Gloria Woepse, Norma Marter, Jean Lockett, Dorothy Slayton, Mary Lou Dixon and Jerry McCutcheon. And if Jerry played bridge like a composite of Culbertson, Jacoby and Goren, chalk it up to the "rest" she and husband, John, had during their recent just-to-get-away-from-it-all trip to San Francisco.

ARIZONA style Thanksgiving is in store for Wilma Hastings who headed Bea McCauley's invitation to be her guest in Tucson. Canny Bea had a bee in her bonnet (where else for a hat buyer?) and casually worked in a couple of fashion speaking dates for her authoritative guest — one for Altrusa Club and the other at the fancy emporium she now is buyer for.

TURKEY in the sky at the Idylwild cabin of the John G. Munholland Sr.'s of Palm Springs is planned by Betty and Jim Munholland for sons, Jim and Tom, daughter and son-in-law, Betty Lou and Harry Gray. Betty's parents, Dell and Warren Lewis and Mike Springer, a friend of young Jim's.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the range at Dorothy Dell and Phil Brady's home will corral the bird for Brady family members including the hosts' youngsters, Freddy, Linda and Karen, Mary and Capt. Albert Ryan and their two children, from Alamo, and Fred O'Brien.

Bazaar, Dinner Long Beach Camp 3522, Royal Neighbors of America, will have a bazaar and dinner at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall. Gladys Bender is chairman.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Recounting some of high lights of their first year are Dan E. Baurac, director; Bruce T. Maxwell, president, and Ken Kennerson, director of Off-Broadway Theatre, which is observing first anniversary next Sunday.

Theater Feting Its First Year

Off-Broadway Theatre will celebrate its first anniversary next Sunday evening with a buffet supper at the theatre, 211 Lime Ave. High light of the entertainment program will be the presentation of the Best Actors Awards. Reservations may be made by calling the theater Monday through Thursday, from 8 to 10 p.m.

Founded in 1952 as the Lakewood Players, the little theater group has proven that it is one of the important cultural contributions to the community. In its first year, five full-length plays and two one-act plays were produced. It premiered an original comedy by a local playwright, and brought to Long Beach two visiting groups with some unusual theatre — Ionesco's "The Chairs" and Jean-Paul Sartre's "No Exit."

HIGH LIGHTS of the group's brief history were the premiere showing of

John Green's original comedy, "A Night With the President" and "Bus Stop," directed by Al Rashkow and starring Dorene Porter and Don Wilson.

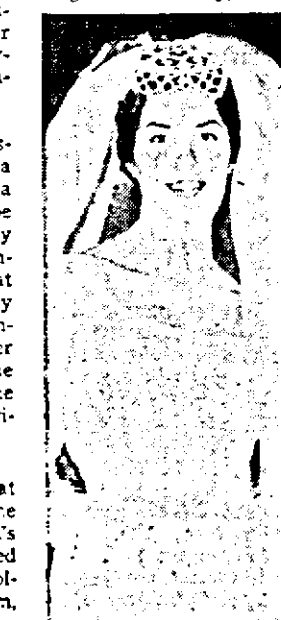

Now on its staff of directors is Dan E. Baurac, long experienced in little theater and professional work; and Ken Kennerson, who has been active in television and motion pictures.

Administrative department is under the direction of S. T. Bruce Maxwell, president; Inez J. Maloof, vice president; Connie Baurac, corresponding secretary, and Gail Tweed, recording secretary.

Original supporters of the group which offers no personal gain other than that each participant derives the opportunity for artistic expression include Vernon Hinze, Stan Cable, Alice Elliott, Eunice Woodward, and Bev and David Perry. Presidents have been Marie Johnson, Jim Beuler, Randy Sare, Bud Watkins, Roy Peterson, Jim Goss and Tom Fitzgerald.

Island Honeymoon for Young Couple

Honeymooning in Hawaii are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kral, whose marriage was solemnized in St. Steven's Serbian Orthodox Cathedral, Alhambra. Following the religious ceremony, the couple greeted guests at a festive reception in Long Beach Petroleum Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milan Vucurevich, Westwood. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kral, Long Beach.

MEMBERS of the bridal party were Patricia Kerchum, maid of honor; the bridegroom's sisters, Darlene, Sally Ann and Mary Helen Kral; Mrs. Donald Kral; Laurel Hoover and Nancy Pilling, bridesmaids. The bridegroom asked Vido Samartzich to serve as best man, and Ted Polich, Robert Doder, George Vukasin, Peter Salata, John Ukropina and Alexander Rados to seat the 450 guests.

The new Mrs. Kral attended Santa Monica City College; her husband attended Southern California Military Academy and was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Claremont Men's College.

After Dec. 1 the couple will be at home in Arcadia.

Goldenweds to Be Feted at Dinner Party Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Hathaway, 315 W. 8th St., will be honorees at a dinner party Tuesday at the Brown Derby in Hollywood on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Hosting the affair will be their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Mullings of Pacific Palisades. Present to fete the goldenweds will be Mr. and Mrs. Harold Porter, Mrs.

Alice Booth, Mrs. Stella Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Locklear and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garrett, the latter two couples from San Diego.

THE HATHAWAYS were married Nov. 24, 1909, in Norfolk, Va., where they resided for 38 years. Hathaway, who started work at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard as a machinist in 1904, later became a U.S. Civil Service employee at the yard. Following World War II he was transferred to the Bureau of Shipbuilding, San Pedro, as machinery inspector then transferred to Long Beach Naval Shipyard where he remained until his retirement in February 1958. He was in Civil Service work 36 years.

Magazine Chairmen to Be Guests

Council magazine chairmen of 33rd District, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be guests when district executive board meets at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Starr King Presbyterian Church.

At that time, Mrs. Thomas J. Drake of Long Beach, district magazine chairman, will present achievement awards and honor roll certificates to council chairmen for all units which qualified.

ALSO INVITED to the meeting are council parliamentarians, treasurers and extension chairmen.

Another important date for district and council officers and chairmen is Nov. 30 when a parent-teacher information workshop will be conducted at 9:30 a.m. in Lynwood Community Center.

Maybe Kids Kiddled--Adults Thought Ball Was a Ball

"Gee whiz, you sure look silly with that stuff on top of your head, Mom" was prelude, undoubtedly, for many a competitor on taking leave of children last Saturday on her way to the Head-dress Ball. However, admiring adults found nothing to complain about in the toppers worn by either winners (you read about them Tuesday) or those who almost won: Jessie Lee Malcolm for her "Greatest Show on Earth" headress; Mildred Dorsey for her fabulous "Snake Charmer" creation; or Wanda Sewak for that "Circus Wonderland" chapeau.

A few of the others competing with imaginative and truly handsome headresses were Ruby Bothwell, Frieda Prichard, Marvella McNulty, Arlene Johnson, Janice Cole, Betty Buffum, Julie De Young, Betty Redinger and Fran Cavaliere.

Audience members (a pretty sharp looking crew, themselves) included Marusia Weaver and Ian Bruce, Geneva and Stan Weiss, Jonnie and Dick Simmons, Ann and Dr. Julius Molina, Marian and Don Locke, Luba and Alex Kadavny, Myrtle and Harry Hachmeister, Sally and Ralph Garrison, Suzanne and Vic Mingers, Judy and Milo Ellick, Marian and Montie Magree, Elaine and Mulford Smith, Pat and Hal Horrocks, Helen and Joe Kellogg, Marian and Tom Hardesty, Bev and Ernie Lockwood and several hundred more.

Max Baer Dies Soon After Giving Car to Grove Youth

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
Ex-heavyweight champion his last hours at Garden Grove making others, happy poolside room at the Holly-wood Roosevelt Hotel after sort of a cornucopia, died Saturday after spending most of open-hearted generosity. Baer dropped dead in his poolside room at the Holly-wood Roosevelt Hotel after appearing at Garden Grove to give an expensive foreign sports car to the son of a longtime friend. With flamboyance that had marked his 30-year career as a top-flight boxer and entertainer, Baer presented the flashy auto to Ronny Owen, 18, son of Oliver (Curly) Owen, 48, of 13291 Clinton St., Garden Grove. Owen was associated with Baer as a sparring partner and associate since 1931.

"WHEN YOU'RE a football player and playing your last game, I'm going to be there and give you a car," Owen said the ex-champ told Ronny when the boy was 5 years old.

Baer kept this promise Friday night when he appeared during half-time activities of a game in which Ronny was playing fullback for Bolsa Grande High School.

Earlier, Baer had appeared at a program sponsored by the auto agency for which Owen works.

Owen, a member of the 1929 Poly High football team, said he drove with Baer to the Santa Ana Freeway after the car presentation. The two men stopped their cars and chatted.

"Max had a tear in his eye.

In what is believed Max Baer's last picture, the former heavyweight champion kneels beside Dale Nichols, 12, at Crippled Children's Home at Phoenix, Ariz., Friday. The two struck a "fighting" pose.—(AP Wirephoto.)

He put his arm around me and said 'I guess we're getting old, champ. It sure made me feel good to do that for Ronny,' Owen related.

Owen said the 50-year-old Baer had complained of a fever from the flu. The Grove man said he called Baer's hotel and talked to him about a half hour before Max collapsed and died of a heart attack at 9 a. m.

BAER CAME to Southern California after refereeing a nationally televised match in Phoenix on Wednesday night and was preparing for several video appearances. He lived in Sacramento, where he had business interests.

A native of Omaha, Neb., Baer was taken to Livermore as a boy by his family and started fighting in 1929. He won the heavyweight crown from Primo Carnera by knocking out the Italian giant in the 11th round of a savage bout on June 14, 1934. He lost the title to James J. Braddock by a decision 11 months later.

Baer quit boxing in 1942 after he was Ko'd by Lou

Wife Climbs Utility Pole to Halt Spat

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A housewife stopped an argument with her husband and startled downtown shoppers Saturday when she climbed a utility pole at a busy intersection.

Annie Jenkins, 24, refused to come down and had to be plucked from her 12-foot perch by a streetcar maintenance crew.

Her husband, Otha B. Jenkins, said she jumped from their car as they were driving. He said she was upset over persons who had broken into their home.

Workmen near Eighth St. and Broadway provided a mobile elevator.

Re-appoint Leader of Heart League

Plan First Seminar for Delphians

Mrs. Walter Crawford, 3401 E. Ocean Blvd., prominent civic leader, this week was appointed president of Women's Heart League, marking the second year she has accepted the top post in the Heart Assn.'s auxiliary unit.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Dr. Myrvin Ellestad, president of Long Beach Heart Assn.

L. R. Raymond Photo

MRS. WALTER CRAWFORD

THE LEAGUE consists of some of the most active women in the area who have taken on the fight against heart disease. Included are Mmes. R. G. Akers, Richard Bixby, Howard Coy, J. Thomas Hardesty, J. Roscoe Howell, Gus Lucking, George P. Taubman, William H. Todd, James W. Wood, William Rhorer and Miss Beatrice L. Hughes.

Also listed as members of Heart League and appointed to prominent posts this week were Mrs. Francis J. Heusel, 4147 Country Club Dr., and Mrs. Harry Hamilton Newton, 3751 Chestnut Ave., co-chairmen of the annual Heart Tea.

MRS. STANLEY D.

Weiss, 4297 Country Club Dr., has offered her home as site for the tea Feb. 4.

In addition to conducting various special events for the benefit of the Heart Fund, the league also plans and promotes programs in the fields of special diet and rehabilitation for the benefit of those suffering from the effects of cardiovascular diseases.

Tau Delta Lambda, newly organized chapter of Delphian Society, will conduct its first seminar Wednesday with Mmes. John E. Griffith, Martin Boe, L. H. Johnson and James Matson presenting discussion questions.

At the organizational meeting in Los Altos Public Library, Mrs. Dean Hunter, regional director, described the three objectives of Delphian Society as learning, thinking and speaking.

Helicopter Travelers Get Close-Up View of Weddell Seal Staying Close to New-Born Pup in Antarctica
RARE EXPERIENCE FOR 1, P-T MAN

Fliers See Birth of Weddell Seal Pup

(Editor's Note: This is the ninth in a series of reports by Independent Press-Telegram military editor James A. Allen on Deep Freeze '60, the U.S. scientific program in Antarctica.)

By JAMES A. ALLEN

MC MURDO SOUND, Antarctic — We were skimming across the frozen surface of McMurdo Sound in a helicopter when suddenly someone spotted a rare sight—a mother Weddell seal giving birth to a pup.

Our pilot quickly landed the "copter near by and we scrambled out, our cameras ready. The baby seal, a mass of yet, tangled fur, looked at us helplessly with huge brown eyes. The frightened mother started to move away to the safety of the main herd.

Then the universal instinct took over and the mother returned to her baby. She nuzzled the pup, then tried to keep her body between us and the young one.

WEDDELL SEALS are classed as harmless, but at the moment we all kept a safe distance from the mother's snapping mouth.

Although most of the seals in Antarctica can be approached without fear, the leopard seal is considered one of the most vicious animals in the world. He has been known to come out of the water to attack men on ice or land.

We kept a wary eye out for these fierce fellows, but fortunately didn't see any.

The seals of the Antarctic live on fish and small organisms which abound in the waters surrounding the continent. Occasionally they enjoy a penguin feast.

SEALS HAVE played an important role in the history of Antarctica. The first men to set foot here were seeking fur seals. They found them by the hundreds of thousands on the islands around the continent, but these hunters were so greedy that fur seals practically disappeared within 10 years.

After a hundred years, the fur-seal population appears to be increasing again. This time the nations of the world will try to protect them by limiting the number sealers may kill each year.

When we returned to the Navy's base here on Ross Island we were told we had witnessed something few men ever see in Antarctica. Luck—and the modern helicopter—had put us in the right place at the right time.

3 Turkish Officers on Trial, Accused of Torturing Yanks

IZMIR, Turkey (UPI)—An Izmir court held a new session Saturday in a trial of three Turkish policemen accused of beating and torturing U. S. airmen arrested on charges of illegal currency transactions.

The court adjourned until Dec. 22 following the session which was held in the presence of two of the American airmen.

The court is awaiting a report from Istanbul concerning testimony of a woman under cover agent who said she saw the alleged currency transactions in the non-commissioned officers club in Izmir.

THE POLICE defendants are Yilmaz Capin, Ilhan Suyolu and Muzaffer Secmen. They have been accused by the airmen of torturing them following the Americans' arrest on the currency charges.

In the court room Saturday were Sgt. Dale M. McGistion, 28, of Van Nuys, Calif., who was released from Turkish jail last week on the equivalent of $1,750 bail, and T/Sgt. James D. King, 41, of Ruth, Miss., also released.

Others involved are Air Force S/Sgt. Joseph Proietti, 33, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., and Air Force S/Sgt. Giancomo Recevuto, 32, of Brooklyn.

Suspect's Handprint a Curio for Police

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Detective Jan A. Kotze did a double take on a culprit whose handprint showed six fingers. Sure enough, the suspect had an extra finger and as he was convicted of bootlegging, police racked up the handprint in its curio display.

"You'd have thought," said Kotze, "the guy would have become a pickpocket."

Bridal Courtesies for Mary Halbert

The forthcoming marriage of Mary Halbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Morrison Halbert, to Lt. Troy Yarbrough has been incentive for a number of bridal courtesies in recent days.

The pair will wed Dec. 4 in Long Beach.

Among parties was a beautifully appointed tea given by Mrs. Francis Hertzog Jr. and Mrs. Helen Wood in Mrs. Wood's Los Cerritos home.

A TEA TABLE centerpiece of pink roses and purple and pink frosted grapes was flanked by slender tapers in silver candelabra. Assisting hostesses were Mmes. LaVern Brinkman, Winchester Stacy, Douglas Burrows, V. Ray Townsend, Burton Chase, George Boardman, Francis Hertzog, William Ingels and Glen Mitchell.

Mrs. Matthew Simpson hosted a brunch and linen shower in her Myrtle Ave. home complementing the bride-elect. A heart, fashioned of white tulle, was placed on the front door while pink roses and pink tulle parasols added to the bridal theme.

Mrs. Richard Secord and Miss Alice Berry of Brentwood feted Miss Halbert

with a delightful afternoon dessert and kitchen shower at Patricia Secord's Seal Beach home.

Mrs. Thomas Noble and her daughter, Mrs. Allen Hertzog, selected Los Coyotes Country Club as setting for a luncheon and glassware shower. A silver watering can, out of which sprayed silvery streamers, provided effective party decor. Completing decorations were white orchids grown by Mrs. Morris Holmgren.

CONCLUDING the party round was a group gift shower in the home of Mrs. Burton Chase, with Mmes. Chase, Winchester Stacy, Douglas Burrows and V. Ray Townsend as hostesses.

Buffet brunch was served from the dining table which was done in a bridal theme with wedding bells, streamers of which were caught by cupids. Assisting in serving were Mmes. Thomas Noble, Helen Wood, Allen Hertzog, Richard Secord, William Ingels and Francis Hertzog Jr.

Good Sports Club will sponsor a noon luncheon and card party Monday in Mottell's and Peek Garden Room. The public is welcome.

Whimsy, beauty, reverence all will be depicted in yule decor on display in Cavalier Room of Lafayette Hotel first week in December during Sandlarks-Lamplighters Christmas Fantasy. Among those cooperating in staging seventh annual event are, seated, from left, Mrs. Martha Ford, Miss Sigrid Thor-valds, who also is Miss Iceland; Mrs. Paul Grandle, Mrs. Allen Hamlin, Fantasy chairman, and Mrs. Gordon Jacobson. Standing are Mrs. John C. Dixon (left) and Mrs. Eric Laddey. Miss Thorvalds will assist in presenting awards after more than 250 entries are judged.

EYE-OPENER FOR LOCAL PAIR

Girls Attend Y Parley

Two Millikan High School girls returned home from Washington, D. C., via jet a week ago with eyes that will not look at themselves or their community in quite the same way again.

Helaine Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Schneider, 2652 Radnor Ave., and Susan McFedders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McFedders, 2402 Heather Rd., both 16, were chosen by Long Beach Young Women's Christian Assn. to be delegates to the Triennial National Y-Teen Conference in New York City and Washington, D. C., in early November.

LEAVING by jet for New York, the two YWCA seniors were joined by 24 other delegates from Southern California and their adult chaperones. Their mission... "to meet with 660 young women from all over the nation and to discuss youth's role in national and world affairs."

The week-long conference gave the young delegates a crammed schedule of sightseeing in the two cities as well as addresses by national figures and their own discussion meetings on topics ranging from food surplus, teenage marriages, Charles Van Doren and segregation, to "something they told us to take home and just think about... just how much in our everyday lives would we be willing to give up for freedom?"

ONE OF THE national

planning committee members for the conference was Miss Carol Nyholm, program director for the Long Beach YWCA.

The two youthful delegates were impressed by the enormous prestige in which the national YWCA organization is held by government agencies as well as by the U. N.

PAIR WELLS

Barbara Marlene Freedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron H. Freedman of Beverly Hills, became bride of Lawrence Ray Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack J. Koch, in recent ceremony at Bel Air Hotel. Pair is now at home in Los Angeles following honeymoon in Carmel and San Francisco. Bride is graduate of University of California; her husband attended UCLA.

'Faith of Our Fathers' to Be DAR Meet Theme

Following the theme, "Faith of Our Fathers—Living Still," Miss Henriette Barwick of Burbank, DAR state chairman of Americanism, will be guest speaker when Western Shores Chapter meets Tuesday in Boulevard Room of Lafayette Hotel.

Mrs. D. M. Libby, program chairman, will present the speaker as well as Miss Viola Kinyon who will read George Washington's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

In explaining, Miss Nyholm said, "because the YWCA has been first into many areas of the world with the kind of self-improvement, self-help program that U. N. is trying to establish, the YWCA often is the first agency consulted on ways and means."

While in Washington, the girls attended services in the National Cathedral in observance of National YWCA World Prayer Week, and on returning via jet to Los Angeles, were met by fellow YWCA club members who had just attended the same National Prayer Week service in Los Angeles.

WHAT ABOUT future activities?

"Well," says Helaine, who is president of Omnis Club at Millikan, "we start right here with our own club group, and we find out what we can do to learn more ourselves and then pass the information on to other people. There are so many things to think about... and if you get people disturbed about problems, they will do things about them, too!"

So Long Beach now has two more young ladies whose eyes are a little clearer and whose horizons have been stretched several thousand miles.

Yule Decorating

Christmas floral arrangements will be demonstrated by Wesley Harrison at the Monday meeting of Realtor's Wives at the Cooper Arms residence of Mrs. Lewis Cox, says the president, Mrs. Sumi Swanson.

Glamour Lunches Add Zest to Job!

By ILKA CHASE

This has been the week of luncheons. The other day I flew to Miami just to get one. That's hunger! I will admit it wasn't only the hotel chicken that tempted me — there was a fashion show involved and I had been asked to do the commentary.

I arrived, actually, the evening before, and a gray and gloomy time it was, but the next morning made up for it. Hot, brilliant sunshine. I was stopping at that incredible Hotel Fontainebleau where the rooms have balconies overlooking the enormous swimming pool and the ocean, and I lay out there soaking up sunshine for a couple of hours and wondering if I'd like to live that kind of life always and deciding no, and deciding that was just as well as I could never afford it. The Fontainebleau comes high. A cup of tea, a chicken sandwich and some cookies, served in your room, costs $4.50. One glance at the check and you've lost your appetite.

IT'S VERY grand, though. Television and radio sets in the rooms and a telephone that has a little red bulb like those bright red eyes on a television camera that winks at you when there's a message waiting. At first I didn't know what in the world was going on and kept picking up the receiver thinking it was a new way of ringing. Finally I noticed an explanatory card. The blinking light means call the operator and ask for the message. The Fontainebleau even talks grand. There's a notice on the dresser, "Our guests request that persons in beach attire enter and leave the hotel by the lower lobby." Personally, I prefer the simple approach. "When wearing bathing suits please enter and leave etc." but that's a matter of taste. Some like it toney. At another luncheon, this time in the brisk north, I met our ambassador to Russia, Llewellyn Thompson.

and Mrs. Thompson. They have now returned to Moscow, but I think they were grateful for a breather on home territory. Mrs. Thompson was slightly bitter over the price she had had to pay to have a dress made in Moscow in view of the fact that she had supplied not only the material but the zipper and thread as well—$110.

Moving from fashion and diplomatic circles, the third big meal of the week was the Book and Author's Luncheon at the Waldorf. The guests of honor were Marchette Chute, her new book is "Two Gentle Men," Moss Hart, whose "Act One" is a runaway best seller and rightly so, and Roy Campanella, whose "It's Good to Be Alive" is truly an inspiring affair.

I'VE KNOWN and admired Moss for several years, and his speech was just as entertaining as his writing. He told a story that might be called "Greater Love Hath No Wife," and it is absolutely true and perfectly understandable to anyone in the theater.

He said that his wife, Kitty Carlisle, attended the first day's rehearsal of "My Fair Lady," which he directed. Driving home in the cab afterwards he asked her what she thought of the cast, and she said she thought Julie Andrews was terrible. She only hoped she was wrong, but that girl was plain awful. And, says Moss, she was. After five days rehearsal Rex Harrison was imploring him to get someone else. "She makes me look like an elderly bully," he snorted. But Moss said there simply was no one else. Julie was young — 19, she could sing, she was English, she was right, if not good. What to do?

At the end of the five days, he dismissed the entire cast and set out to work with her alone. He spared her nothing of his own opinion of her performance and that of everybody else, but it happened they were two people of grit and determination. From 10 until 2, from 3 until midnight, they worked; Moss directing, correcting every reading, every shading, every gesture. At the end she was better. Not good, but better. They did the same thing the next day. When he got home very late, Kitty was waiting for him.

"WELL," she said, "how did it go?" Moss said he was beginning to be hopeful but he didn't know. "These things always seemed to work out better in the old days," he said. "Take David Belasco, he was supposed to be such a wizard with the women in his plays. He'd have done what I've been doing for three days, all meals would have been sent in, they'd probably have had an affair, but at the end he would have emerged with, by George, an actress."

Kitty looked at him, her eyes bright with the faith that animated Joan of Arc. "Go ahead," she cried. "Whatever you do now is for the play!"

Moss Hart stopped short of Belasco, and Julie Andrews' success as Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady" is history.

Roy Campanella was the last speaker at the luncheon, and he was plain wonderful. He spoke quietly about his love of baseball, about the automobile accident that paralyzed him, and of how, by determination and gratitude for what he has in this world, he has come to the conclusion that life, even in a wheelchair, is infinitely worth living. Now he can move his hands a little. "It makes a difference," he said.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Mate Caught 'Off Base'

DEAR MOLLY:

My husband has been an ardent baseball fan for many years. So much so that he has made me just as ardent. We used to attend night games together for many years, but last season he got off to the park by himself—or at least I thought it was by himself.

When Chicago won the American League pennant, he dropped the word he had a business meeting in Chicago which, happily, would coincide with the two opening games of the Series. He said the rush of business, inability to get tickets, etc., etc., made it imperative to leave me at home. I never have seen a Series and was dying to go.

Before he left, I found two sets of two tickets each in his belongings, plus hotel reservations for a double room. I kept mum.

When he arrived in Chicago, I called the hotel where he was registered and, as I suspected, a woman answered the telephone. I told her to relay the pitch to my foul ball that he had been caught off base and don't bother stealing home.

Next day I packed up and have been living in a hotel. I haven't called him. How long can I keep him—and myself—dangling?

DUGOUT DORA

DEAR DUGOUT: I think you have managed your club pretty well for the first few innings. I don't think it is well to fold up because of an errant player.

There is a possibility that your man hasn't been a bad player at all.

At least, before you send him to the showers make sure he gets a chance to bat. He just might show enough to convince you he shouldn't be put up for waivers.

M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What kind of faith and dependence can we place in men of the Air Force? I am a young girl and I believe I am in love with an Air Force man. We went together for six months before he went into the service.

Since that time I have had two letters a week from him, and in each of them he has professed his love for me. But I know he is writing the same message to at least one other girl.

He had a recent furlough and for the first few days he didn't even bother to see me. Finally he came around and informed me he was going steady with this other girl and he was under orders (her's) not to speak to me. He said he wanted to keep writing me because he cared for me.

I am so fond of the guy I can't forget him. I have tried, I have worried so much I have lost 10 pounds. I don't care if I live or die. What should I do?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP:

First of all, it's time to live—not die. Not only breathing and eating, but live differently. Your case sounds a great deal like a severe attack of puppy love—but the pup you are concerned about isn't worth the trouble.

Festive Dinner Honors Golden Wedding Couple

To commemorate Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Neugebauer's golden wedding anniversary, members of the family gathered at Captain's Inn for a festive dinner arranged by Dr. and Mrs. William F. Neugebauer of Pasadena. Dr. Neugebauer is Mr. Neugebauer's brother.

Guests were seated at a table decorated to carry out the golden theme and centered with a money tree from which hung silver dollars wrapped in gold and tied with gold ribbons. On a tray surrounded by gold-embroidered white orchids, a wedding cake frosted with white roses on golden leaves bore the message, "Happy Golden Anniversary." The orchids were the gift of Miss Sarah Witherspoon of Santa Anita Oaks, who raises them as a hobby.

MR. AND MRS. Neugebauer (Catherine E. Steitz) were married Nov. 9, 1909, in Sacred Heart Church, Los Angeles. In 1924 they came to Long Beach to reside and enter business. Since retirement they have lived part time in Morro Bay; at present they are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Donald A. Linn, and her family in Signal Hill.

Dinner guests included their son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Neugebauer of Fresno; Mr. and Mrs. Linn and their daughter, Fern, who came from UCLA to honor her grandparents on their 50th anniversary.

Dear Abby Not FORCED to Give!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Already the stores are showing gifts for Christmas. It is a blasphemy to preach that Dec. 25 is the birthday of Jesus. Jesus was born in October when the shepherds were still out with the sheep. Christ never asked or wanted his birth celebrated by gift-giving.

That idea was invented by man, not God. Christmas is a racket and is getting worse every day.

A CHRISTIAN
DEAR CHRISTIAN: The real Christian spirit is "Peace on earth, good will toward men." If people wish to exchange gifts at Christmas time they need no commandment from the Scriptures to do so. Theologians have neither proved nor disproved the accurate birth date of Christ. Volumes have been written on this subject. But the last sentence always ends with a question mark.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about girls having to take showers together? After every gym period we have to take showers which, of course, we should. But there are no curtains or partitions for privacy and all the girls have to shower together. Some of the girls think nothing of it. But I was taught modesty at home and I do not like this idea. My mother doesn't like it either. Can something be done about it without causing a big fuss?

"MODEST"
DEAR MODEST: In my opinion, no girl should be compelled to shower with other girls if she doesn't want to. Yours is not the first letter I have received from a girl protesting "mass showering." Have your mother talk to the school authorities. Something CAN be done. But it will not be, unless someone complains.

DEAR ABBY: I know a young woman who is 36 years old and is still wearing her sorority pin. Everyone laughs at her because she wears it on every dress and suit she owns. I think it is quite childish, but I feel it is her business. Some of the girls say that because I am very friendly with her I should tell her to put it away. Should I? Or must I defend her every time someone makes fun of her when her back is turned?

NOMINATED
DEAR NOMINATED: To each her own. If your friend wants to wear her sorority pin on her NOSE, let her. Don't permit the other girls to "stick you" with the job of wising her up.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELING FOOLISH": The only "stupid" questions are those that aren't asked. Send me your name and address.

WHAT'S YOUR problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Risk in Old Grease Seen

("Medicine and You," a regular Sunday feature of this newspaper, is prepared in collaboration with the Department of Medical Education, Seaside Memorial Hospital.)

By BEN ZINSER
It is reasonable to believe that constant use of the same cooking grease may lead to cancer of the stomach, says Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society.

Scientists already have discovered that repeated heatings of the same cooking grease can produce cancer-producing agents in the grease.

Other investigators, reporting in the British Journal of Cancer, say that smoked foods probably cause stomach cancer.

The incidence of stomach cancer is very high in Iceland, where the diet is rich in smoked foods. Researchers found large amounts of 3, 4 benzpyrene, a cancer-causing substance, in mutton and trout smoked by Icelanders. One pound of either food after it was smoked was found to contain as much of the dangerous substance as the smoke of 125 cigarettes.

ACUTE APPENDICITIS often can be treated successfully without surgery, says Dr. E. Coldrey in the Journal of the International College of Surgeons. Recommended treatment: Bed rest and nothing by mouth except water. Injections every six hours of penicillin and streptomycin; or, in severe cases, of Chloromycetin or Terramycin. For pain, morphine or pethidine. When pain has subsided and temperature and pulse have fallen, sugar, milk and other fluids are taken by mouth, with gradual return to normal diet.

Since this represents a revolutionary concept in the treatment of appendicitis, readers are cautioned not to expect such a course of treatment until additional research has been completed.

PATIENTS TAKING the tranquilizing drug chlorpromazine (trade-named Thorazine) should be careful about drinking alcoholic beverages, say Madison State Hospital (Indiana) doctors in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Tests applied at the hospital indicate that chlorpromazine, when taken with alcohol, adversely affects coordination and judgment more than alcohol alone. The combination is especially dangerous when a person drives, the researchers say.

TRANQUILIZING DRUGS have little to offer in the treatment of patients with skin conditions, Dr. Wayne Wright of Hayward, Calif., reports after a four-year study. Dr. Wright used nearly every type of tranquilizer in his investigation, which involved 740 patients suffering from a wide variety of skin disorders.

RUTABAGA, TURNIPS, cabbage and kale are known to contain goiter-producing substance called goitrin. Earlier studies indicated that cooking would destroy goitrin so that goiter would not occur. Now, researchers at the University of Oregon Medical School, reporting in the Journal of Clinical Investigation, say that experiments employing radioiodine show that goitrin still exists in these vegetables after cooking.

A RECENT ITEM in this column linked gout to degree of intelligence. Now Army researchers say that patients with Hodgkin's disease, a form of cancer, seem to be more intelligent than average. Doctors at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research said that a check of Army General Classification Test scores of 97 white enlisted men with Hodgkin's disease showed their test marks to be significantly higher than the Army population mean. But there was no significant relationship between their scores and the severity of their disease, the researchers report in Archives of General Psychiatry.

IF SMOKING PLAYS A ROLE in causing heart attacks (as some doctors claim), it is not through any effect on cholesterol, reports Dr. Irvine H. Page, Cleveland heart specialist, in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. Cholesterol is the fat-like substance in the blood that has been implicated as a possible factor in causing heart attacks.

Cleveland Clinic Foundation researchers checked the cholesterol levels of laboratory personnel—both smokers and non-smokers—after they smoked two non-filtered cigarettes within 10 minutes and inhaled the smoke deeply. Cholesterol levels remained "essentially unchanged."

YALE UNIVERSITY DOCTORS have successfully stimulated heart action of a 73-year-old man by remote control for three weeks. Surgeons implanted an electrode in the wall of the lower left chamber of the patient's failing heart, then activated his heartbeats with radio waves. A previous method used in similar cases was to attach an electronic pacemaker to wires running through the chest. Advantage of remote-control method: danger of infection from wires is eliminated.

Have YOU Bought a Magazine Lately?

By TED KREC

Magazines, I have been told, are the reflection of our contemporary life and times. If this is true, I must voice grave alarm for our poor, tired old world.

Have you bought any magazines lately? Certainly, there still are many of the old tried-and-true standbys, but these are being pushed rapidly to the rear of the racks by the publications of the new "era of realism."

To me, the bulk of the publications I see on the magazine racks today are just so much trash. Every one has a lurid cover featuring one of three themes—sex, crime or violence—and it isn't hard to find publications with all three themes depicted.

"SO WHAT?" you may reply. "Normal adults know all about such things!" True—but what about the kids? I am an adult (chronologically, at least) and I like to think that I am normal—and I know about crime and violence and what the human form looks like—but what about the kids? What about the questioning minds of young people in their formative years? What kind of ideas are they going to get from these publications? And please don't tell me that these magazines aren't sold to kids, because I have proved otherwise!

Dad, you remember when you were a kid—you used to sneak copies of so called "dime novels" into the house or hide them behind your big geography book in school. Sure you did—so did I. But these were a different stripe from the stuff they're putting out today. These were mainly tales of derring-do in the Old West or at sea. I can remember reading "G-8 and His Battle Aces" and "Sky Fighters," too. Both of these publications dealt with air battles in World War I, and do you know what? I was the best-informed kid on the block on the subject of World War I aircraft!

But today it's a different story. Even the so-called pocket books are highly offensive in this regard. True, there are many worthwhile pocket books, which are low-priced reprints of books; but a large number of them are publications which definitely are filthy and full of aberrations and physical impossibilities.

SOME OF the publishers have resorted to a money-grabbing device, preying on the depravity of the reading public.

For example, they will feature a lurid cover of a semi-clad damsel in a peril-fraught situation. The title will be something like: "Ordeal of the Silken Doll," and underneath this, or on the inside title page, will be printed, in small type, "Formerly titled: 'Principles of Accounting.'"

I am wholly in accord with the idea of the low-cost pocket book. I believe that good literature should be placed in the hands of as many persons as possible. That's why I'm a great fan of libraries. But it's the subject matter of most pocket books I'm objecting to.

It isn't simply a matter of keeping kids from reading—I think they should be taken off the newstands so kids can't even SEE the inflammatory covers—these often are many times worse than the subject matter.

And now I'll sit back while the "liberal fringe" cries "censorship!" I'll take this form of censorship any day if it will keep our kids from having depraved ideas.

Maybe I'm just a boy at heart, but I still get a kick out of reading "Treasure Island," "Robinson Crusoe" and the Tarzan books. Maybe I'm a "square," but I'm proud of it!

Visit at Ranch

Recent visitors at Warner Springs Guest Ranch were Long Beach residents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Ellsworth, 2533 E. 2nd St., and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon R. Kile, 3718 Weston Pl.

"Orchids to you!" greeted the founder and past presidents who were honored guests at the annual celebration of Charter Day of Ebell Club Monday with Mrs. Arthur A. Knoll presiding.

Founded in 1896 by 17 determined women who then defined the purpose and selected the motto, "Cultivation is as necessary to mind as food to the body," the club and motto still stand after 63 years.

Having a current membership of 1,379, Ebell of Long Beach is not only one of the oldest and largest of this city's women's groups but also has been one of the most effective organizations in the cultural, civic and social life of our community.

PRESENT WAS the only living charter member, a past president, Mrs. Edward H. Jackson. Other honored guests were Mmes.

Walter H. Case, Ernest Hildebrand, R. E. Skinner, Eugene Tincher, Olive Ellis, Gail C. Hudson, Carol K. Scott, J. Roscoe Howell, Ellis Slack, Sidney A. Coco, Josiah S. Mertz, Wilbur Lee Candy, Fred E. King, James Bryan Murray, Will H. Winston, Melvin Neel, Arthur F. Bonzer and Joseph M. Striegel.

Pointing up the theme of the celebration was a lavish display of orchids arrayed in pink and orchid net, and a huge birthday cake. Mrs. Ira Copeland supervised luncheon arrangements, Mmes. J. G. Roper, Irma Wolford and Kent Hanbery, decorations.

Program high light was the Murray Korda Concert Ensemble. Ann Ratliff, accompanied by Mrs. Eunice McPherson, presented musical selections in the dining room.

Invocation was given by Mrs. Robert Skinner.

Mother Goose Characters Were Tough, Rowdy, Violent Group!

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Juvenile delinquency—and man's inhumanity to man—might be traced to Mother Goose and other fairy entertaining children's tales.

Take the Goldilocks yarn. Under today's codes, Goldilocks would be caught bare-handed illegally entering another's abode. What's more, she took goods belonging to others—the stew Mama Bear brewed. She broke Baby Bear's chair, too.

Take, further, Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son. He stole a pig. In addition to that break with the law, Tom's tale tramples grammatical codes by saying — "and away he run."

LOOK, TOO, at Little Boy Blue with an objective eye. He's a truant, a boss-cheater or whatever you want to call one who shrugs off responsibility and takes a nap—on company time.

The "be kind to children" folks must do flip flops when they think about the "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe." She not only had so many children she didn't know what to do, but she "whipped them all soundly and sent them to bed."

And she probably caused ripples in nutrition circles before she did that. The beatings were preceded by a meal of "broth without any bread."

ANOTHER HERO, Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater, must stir the "treat wife kindly" folks. Peter couldn't keep his mate, so he locked her in a pumpkin shell. Closeted her, that is!

And consider Humpty Dumpty. He was so broken by his fall that "all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again."

JACK HORNER, another of the favorites, probably wouldn't fare well with the child psychologists. He sat in a corner with a whole pie—all for Jack. Selfish.

This old adult wonders, too, if Old King Cole was the "merry" old character he's been made out to be. He called for his pipe. He called for his bowl. He called for his fiddlers. Anyone who "calls" that much must be a dictator.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER MINER

Members of Omega Alpha Delta (national honor society of women in extended day classes) at Long Beach State met at Hody's Lake-wood Saturday for the second rush luncheon of the year. Mrs. Lodema Burgess, assisted by Donna O'Sullivan and Florence Allision, was chairman, and all the girls were in their best bib and tucker for yearbook pictures. Plans were made for the Christmas party on Dec. 12.

This evening the Accounting Society has a 7 p.m. dinner meeting in the Hawaiian. Featured speaker is Roscoe Hollinger, chief deputy auditor-controller for Los Angeles County. A social hour at 6 p.m. precedes the dinner.

Wednesday night, the Philosophy Club meets at 7:30 p.m. at 1918 Montair Ave. to hear Prof. Jagdish Mehra of the LBSC Physics Dept. discuss "Physics and Philosophy."

Last week's CSTA (California Student Teachers Assn.) meeting saw the members come away well briefed for job hunting after listening to a panel emphasize the importance of scholastic records, student teaching evaluation, and the personal interview.

WITH the Greeks:

Some 150 Tri-Delts representing 20 of the sorority's 164 chapters gathered last Monday evening at the Petroleum Club to eat a squab dinner and mark the 71st anniversary of the founding of Delta Delta Delta. Alumnae President Rebecca Van Dyke was the featured speaker, candles were lighted as the chapter representatives answered up at roll call, and awards for highest grade-point averages were made to Linda Houlhan (actives) and Loretta Fota (pledges).

Sigma Kappa's dinner meeting last Monday was hosted by the Mothers Club, and the province president, Mrs. Averill, was the honored guest... the sorority plays host Monday night for the All-Greek Coffee Hour at 5:30 in the Belmont Shore Lions Club.

ALPHA PHIS, now busy with a Thanksgiving project to provide a dinner for a needy family, have a similar one on tap for Christmas... on the AP personnel front, sophomore Mary Huss was named corresponding secretary, and frosh Denise Nevin and Carolyn Galbraith are commissioners of organizations and publications, respectively for the freshman class.

Delta Zetas, busy distributing containers and posters for the Exceptional Children's Foundation during November, are looking ahead to their Christmas project—a joint effort with Kappa Sigma fraternity to provide a party for some underprivileged children.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

Two former great dramatic sopranos of the Metropolitan Co. have, curiously enough, gone into the same business since their retirement. They both are impresarios of flourishing opera companies.

Kirsten Flagstad came out of retirement two years ago to organize and manage the Nordiska Opera Co. in Norway. Each morning at 9 she is in her office, discussing repertoire, scenery, artists and musical detail. Often she coaches the singers in roles in which she has had spectacular success throughout the world. She believes in adequate preparation and many rehearsals. She feels that a young company should grow in musical stature with experience. Her vast acquaintance with musicians of the world has been of inestimable value.

The other soprano, Rosa Ponselle, is artistic director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Co. She grooms all the stars personally and they rehearse long and late. When Miss Ponselle was only 15, she was singing between the movie shows in her home town of Meriden, Conn., for $15 a week. Later she and her sister, Carmela, sang in vaudeville. She was the youngest American-trained singer ever to sing at the Metropolitan. In November 1918, she made her debut there singing opposite Caruso in "La Forza del Destino."

THEREAFTER for 20 years she was a leading dramatic soprano of that company. I heard her sing in a performance of "Norma" that excelled anyone I ever heard in the role. She married the son of the mayor of Baltimore, Carl A. Jackson in 1936, and in 1938 she retired. In 1940 she built her famous 17-room home at a cost of $50,000. She calls her home Villa Pace (Peaceful Villa) and the opening notes of the aria, "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" from "La Forza del Destino" are carved in the white stone of the entrance. To raise funds for her opera and also for the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, Rosa Ponselle opens her home at Christmas to visitors for $1 a person. She also sells her records at that time to increase the fund.

ANYONE MAY have an audition with Miss Ponselle, but very few are accepted.

"I tell them the truth, which often hurts," she reports, "but it is better that way." "We do not go by time with our lessons, we work until we are tired," she relates.

Miss Ponselle, now divorced, lives alone in the Villa Pace with 2 servants, 16 dogs, 3 cats. She reports that she always has had dogs and cats around, but "this really sort of snowballed." She started with one black poodle, "Impy," who got lonely when Miss Ponselle was out, so she got a playmate for him. And it's simply gone on from there!

Miss Ponselle thinks the trouble with young singers today is that they are burned out before they begin. They appear on television — success goes to their heads—they won't listen to advice, and so they never become truly great. She wants to pass her gift along to young singers and feels that retired artists should impart their experience to the young.

La Shell Adds Theater School

Enrollments are open in the new School of Theater Arts of the LaShell Playhouse, 5384 Long Beach Blvd., according to an announcement by the school's director, Ilene Ferris.

Students ranging in age from 3 up may study all phases of the dance in the dance workshop and acting and stage technique in the drama workshop. A modeling and charm course also will be offered. More information is available at the playhouse.

Music in Light Mood at Library

Lighter music may mean many things to many people. The following longplay records are recent acquisitions at the Main Library and each one represents lighter music to some patrons: "American Banjo" (tunes and songs in Scruggs style by Joe Stewart and others); "The Goofing-Off Suite" arranged and played by Pete Seeger on his guitar; "Haitian Dances" play by Frantz Casseus, guitarist; "Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy" singing sentimental favorites; "Pop Stoppers" played by the Boston Pops; and Strauss, "Waltzes" played by the New London Symphony Orchestra.

Any of these recordings may be borrowed for two-week periods from the Main Library in Lincoln Park.

Lunt, Fontanne

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are starring in "The Visit," which opened a three-week run at the Baltimore Theatre, Los Angeles, Tuesday.

MODERN CERAMICS

These ceramic paintings by Polia Pillin are typical of her work currently on view at Long Beach Museum of Art. Display will continue through Dec. 6.

brated Italian violinist, he was a contemporary of Bach. Bach in fact, sometimes rewrote Vivaldi's works under his own name. The practice was in keeping with the spirit of the times when the highest compliment one composer could pay another was to use his compositions.

"This," observed Stanton, "has changed with Pettillo."

COMPOSERS at this Baroque period first were derided for their ornate, uneven style, but won acceptance as listeners realized their compositions simply were a different form of music.

"The composer today is in much the same position. Simply because music is not like Beethoven or Brahms, it is not necessarily bad. It may be very good. I stoutly insist that new music is worth bothering about once. It deserves to be heard. If it has something to say it will say it to you and make real sense to your mind, it will establish itself; if not, it will fall by the wayside."

Mendelssohn's Symphony in A Major No. 4, the "Italian Symphony," has even less associative meaning than the Vivaldi work.

"The only possible Italian ingredient is the fourth movement, the Saltarello, which is an Italian dance style. However, this could be one's favorite symphony on the merit of sound alone. There is much melody, and a good melody is one of the toughest things in the world to produce. No one can teach a composer how to write melody—it's a God-given gift."

"LISTEN to the way the composer works out sound, what follows what, how he builds from one theme to another. Don't say, 'This is impossible technical; I could not do it!' Of course you can. It just takes listening practice. Let the emotions fall where they may."

Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun" is based on a mystic nature poem by Mallarme, telling the experience of a mythical faun of the woodland.

Reading fulsome excerpts, Stanton asked wryly "Could sound really express this?"

What the composer actually did was to produce distinctive, beautiful music based on a new concept of harmony which "would have shocked Mendelssohn."

"Romanticism tried to express emotion in such detail that it was a little bit indecent. Debussy, once regarded as decadent, is now considered actually stuffy by some people, but he set out to blur, to use elusive, tonal colors, to be specific in a vague way just as the school of impressionistic painters did. He began the modern music movement."

CLOSING number on tonight's program will be "El Amor Brujo" (Love, the Sorcerer) by Manuel de Falla, a pupil of Debussy. First produced as a ballet in Barcelona in 1915, it survives primarily in its orchestrated version. Again, the story is less important than the music, which abounds in Spanish rhythm. The familiar "Ritual Fire Dance" is from this suite.

Tickets, both for tonight's concert and for the concert season, will be available at the box office before performance time.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. William E. Webb, president, Mrs. Lewis Taylor Dorgan reported that the Long Beach organization to date has contributed $9,101 to the Symphony Assn. continuance fund. Mrs. Ralph G. Bowdler announced that Mary Costa will be soloist for the promenade concert April 29. Mrs. Robert Johnson, president of Symphony Juniors, told of plans to produce a children's musical, "Mother Goose," Dec. 12 as a continuance fund project.

Art Teachers to Show Works

By VERA WILLIAMS

Works by art teachers of local junior and senior high schools, City College and State College will be exhibited, starting Monday, in the City College Lakewood Campus Gallery, Faculty Ave. and Harvey Way.

Sponsored by the Long Beach Chapter of the Pacific Arts Assn., Southern Section, the show will remain through Dec. 18. A reception is slated for 8 to 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Kenneth McKee of Stephens Junior High School is president of the local PAA chapter. The arrangements committee includes Chairman Ted Baird, Lois Briggs, Robert Adams and John Shaak.

Purpose of the exhibit is to show work done by local art instructors and to promote wider understanding of the art education program in the public schools. Included will be paintings, textiles, pottery, jewelry, sculpture, drawings, prints and graphic designs.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 10 a.m. to noon Friday.

PAINTINGS by Vera Hainert, Ashton Overholtzer and Jack Pullen are on display at the Magnolia Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave. The exhibition coincides with the theatre's current production of Noel Coward's "Nude With Violin," which opened Friday and is scheduled to run for four weeks.

Vera Hainert is a newcomer to Long Beach from the San Diego area, where she won an award in an exhibition at the San Diego Museum of Art. Jack Pullen is a member of The Pentagram, a Long Beach group of artists with whom he has exhibited widely; some of his work is shown at the Gambit Gallery, 23 39th Place. Ashton Overholtzer was prominent in Long Beach art circles until his death last year. He had studied at the Long Beach Academy of Art and at the Art Institute of San Miguel, Mexico.

Mother's a Cop on Night Shift

Long Beach has 10 policewomen—1 assigned to Missing Persons Bureau, 1 to warrants and 8 to the jail division.

All of them can shoot straight and slip the cuffs on a rebellious prisoner. More than one boastful male has been surprised to find himself manhandled by a policewoman of sweet and pretty size.

Marksmanship courses and gym work keep the feminine bluecoats fit for emergencies. But they do not like to be confused with muscle girls. In off-duty hours they resort to perfume, sleek hosiery, fluffy lingerie, or even, on occasion, formals cut to reveal a modest amount of femininity.

PICTURED HERE is Mary Ambrosio, who works the jail division "lobster shift" from 11:30 p. m. to 7:30 a. m.

A blue-eyed blonde of Scotch descent, she stands 5 feet 6, weighs a firm, rounded 130. Mrs. Ambrosio has two children: Antoinette, 14, a St. Anthony's High School freshman, and Robert, 17, City College freshman.

Her behind-bars routine includes checking the security and health of from 20 to 35 prisoners, supervising work details, meals and jail facilities, booking new prisoners and fingerprinting repeaters.

LIKE OTHER POLICEWOMEN, her interest in the prisoners extends far beyond the confines of City Jail. She acquaints herself with their families and special problems, contacts their attorneys and bail bondsmen, arranges for court appearances.

Because she would rather keep these troubled women out of jail than in, Mary Ambrosio gives counsel to those who are receptive.

A policewoman's daily task includes many unpleasant chores. Her reward comes from those prison-scarred ones who say, and mean:

"You are my one real friend."

AFTER A NIGHT on "lobster shift" at Long Beach City Jail, policewoman Mary Ambrosio heads for home. Hours are 11:30 p. m. to 7:30 a. m.

MARY CHECKS A PRISONER in cell. Although she is trained for emergency action, a policewoman devotes most of her time to the routine of seeing to the security and welfare of transgressors. Often the woman in blue is the only one to whom a frightened girl can turn.—(Photos by John H. Neagle.)

SGT. JOHN WHATLEY gives Mary a pointer in marksmanship. Regular training on the firing range makes her an expert with the .38-caliber, two-inch police special, for the emergency she hopes will never arrive.

IN HER LEOTARD, Mrs. Ambrosio learns ballet grace in gym class conducted by Audrey Share at Pacific Coast Club three times a week. She must keep in prime shape for the nightly vigil at cells of City Jail.

A POLICEWOMAN finds time for feminine pleasures. The mirror reflects Mary Ambrosio primping for an evening free from the strict regimen of her job.

'Yashimas' Art at Bay Shore

An exhibit of paintings by Taro and Mitsu Yashima will be on view at Bay Shore Branch Library, 195 Bay Shore Ave. through Dec. 16. It may be viewed between noon and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9:30-5:30 Saturdays.

The exhibit is in part a retrospective show of the work of both artists. Paintings typical of their periods of artistic development during 20 years in the United States have been chosen.

YASHIMA'S works are in many collections and he is well known for his illustrations of the beautiful children's books: "The Village Tree," "Crow Boy," and "Umbrella." Mrs. Yashima collaborated with Taro on the book "Plenty to Watch." She was recently awarded an honorable mention in the Los Angeles All-City Outdoor Festival and has had a drawing included in the Los Angeles County Museum's 1959 exhibit of the work of artists of Los Angeles County. Altrusans in Joint Dinner

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Calling it one of the outstanding events of their club year, members of Altrusa Club hosted a joint dinner meeting at Ricart's Restaurant this week with members from Garden Grove, Torrance and Covina-West Covina clubs.

The dinner party was planned by the local club's four program chairmen: Ethelyn Johnson, Isabel Bright, Madge Allensworth and Myrtle Poulney. President Teresa Parker presented Kay Langan, vice president, as mistress of ceremonies.

Irene Davidson, Torrance president, and Francis Kirkland, past president of the Covina group, described their projects and activities since forming a little over a year ago, sponsored as new clubs in Altrusa International by the Long Beach club.

High lighting program was taped recording of talk given at the Altrusa International convention in Chicago by Dr. Kenneth Wells, president of Freedom Foundation, Valley Forge. Monica Ryan was in charge of decorations.

Next important date for the local club is the annual Christmas party to be staged at the home of Dr. Ethel West with Ellen Shumacher as chairman.

Zonta Club

Campus Room of the University Club was setting Thursday evening for the Zonta Club dinner meeting. Robert H. Metzgar, director of public relations for Long Beach Harbor Dept., was guest speaker. He covered the harbor's development and plans for its future in a talk entitled, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," impressing his listeners with the vital role this harbor plays in the lives of all Long Beach residents. Mary Noonan introduced the speaker. Doris Deardon, president, conducted.

National Secretaries

"The Biggest Game of 1960" was topic of Dr. LeRoy C. Hardy, associate professor of political science at Long Beach State College, when he appeared as guest speaker at the November dinner meeting of

Vervyl Sumrall, president, assisted by Norma Gilcrease, first vice president, conducted initiation ceremony for new members: Ruth Blosser, Mrs. Paxman, O'Connor and Lewis; Jessie Dittman, Community Hospital; Rose Mattucci, Hughes Jr. High; Phyllis Mitchell, Southern, Waldrip and Harvick; Virginia Minks, City of Bellflower; Dolores Regas, Star Kist Foods, Inc., and Dorothy Scheele, Continental Can Co.

Welcomed back into active membership was Dorothy Gahry, former treasurer of Queen Beach Chapter, who has been with the Atomic Energy Commission's test site at Mercury, Nev., for two years.

DAR Careerists

Susan B. Anthony Chapter of DAR, composed mainly of career women, had George Pike, director of the Council of the Indian Center, Los Angeles, as its guest speaker at last Sunday's luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel.

Pike said there are approximately 10,000 Indians living in the Los Angeles area with members of the Navajo tribe the most numerous. He described the operation of the center which strives particularly to ease the adjustment of Indians from reservation to metropolitan living. The center, operated by American Indians, provides welfare funds to aid deserving students, helps Indians find suitable jobs and gives assistance and advice in any area where it can be of service.

I made it when West was kind enough to come to my aid twice.

"His double was the first bit of help since it located the king of spades for me. His defense was even more helpful.

"I WON the opening diamond in my own hand, led a club to dummy's jack and another club to my king. West held off! I don't know what he expected to gain by this play but I do know what it cost him.

"I ran off the rest of the diamonds and three hearts discarding the jack of spades.

"Now I led a third club and all too late West saw the error of his ways. He was in the lead and had to play a spade to me."

The hand is interesting indeed. West's double is not approved but, as Green points out, West would have come out all right if he had taken his ace of clubs earlier.

Beer, Money, Work--or Long Walk Are Choices at Homemade Bridge

SURREY, B. C. (AP)—Do-it-yourself John Santics stuck by his guns Saturday and continued to charge tolls for the use of his homemade bridge.

The toll: Work, money or bottled beer.

10 Cubans Arrested in Subversive Hunt

HAVANA (AP)—The army investigation bureau said Saturday night 10 men were arrested at Ciego de Avile in central Cuba on charges of conspiring against the government.

The announcement said the 10 belonged to a subversive group called the "National Commandos." It said anti-government documents were seized.

The privilege: Walking across John's property and using the home-made for bridge over the ravine at the back.

The advantage: Cutting the two-mile walk for school children to a quarter of a mile from two miles.

THE RESULT: 99th Ave. is in turmoil.

It all began last year when John, a 55-year-old millworker, watched his grandchildren trudging two miles to school in this Fraser River delta community.

He asked the Municipal Council to build a footbridge across the ravine. When the Council refused, John and some of the neighbors built the bridge themselves. But other neighbors refused to join the project. And John got mad.

SO HE PUT up a sign on the bridge: "Only kids whose parents have contributed time or materials will cross."

Friday he sat down on a canvas chair at the bridge approach and started charging tolls.

Children whose parents have paid up or worked on the bridge get across free; children of hold-outs were sent the long way around.

Driver, 4 Others Injured in Long Beach Car Crash

Five persons were injured Saturday in a two-car collision at the intersection of Maine Ave. and Third St.

Injured in one car were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Thomas of Loma Linda. They were treated at Seaside Hospital where Thomas, the driver, was X-rayed for injuries to his chest and left leg.

Suffering minor injuries in the other car were Richard W. Knedler, 21, and Jimmy Brignac, both sailors of the carrier USS Yorktown, and Linda Toole, 18, of 12715 Downey Ave., Downey. Knedler was the driver.

TV Red Tape - - Not Dennis - - Real Menace, Mary Learns

By MARY NEISWENDER
What a shock.
Hollywood's glitter peeled off in an eye-opening day with the television industry. The houses had no roofs. The trees weren't trees. The grass wasn't grass. The sky was blue gauze. Even Dennis the Menace wasn't.

Let me explain.
MY BOSS had said, "Go up and see how they make 'Dennis the Menace' for TV. Take a photographer along. See if you can get into the act—be an actress for a day."

In Hollywood, I found out, there are more red tape and protocol than at the Pentagon.

It took 25 minutes to get a pass through to Sound Stage 7 at Columbia Pictures—home of Screen Gems, its television subsidiary.

Then there was no one at the gate to accept the pass—and we walked through. Publicist Lou Dyer, long-time newspaperman, explained that only news photographers from daily papers could get through the gates—otherwise the Still Film Union would require a standby photographer—at $90 per day.

As far as breaking into the acting profession: Screen Actors Guild maintains: You must have a job before you can join the guild—and you must be a member of the guild before you can get a job.

Sound strange? Not when you take things in perspective.

THERE'S AN INSPECTOR from the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals—

SPEAKING OF MENACES . . .

House walls, solid-looking fences and trees come apart at the yell of an assistant director.

For every actor there are a dozen aides.

Along with stand-ins, actors, prop men, grips, camera men, directors, assistant directors, publicity men, dog handlers, Humane Dept. in-

Other stand-ins include a middle-aged midget as stand-in for 7-year-old star, Jay North.

There are two dogs on set—one's a stand-in.

Sound strange? Not when you take things in perspective.

spectors and an assortment of wardrobe and makeup personnel, there's a teacher on hand to make sure the juveniles in the cast get "at least three hours of schooling each day."

And there's where Dennis the Menace—who isn't—spends his between-take time.

DENNIS—JAY NORTH—billed as a "menace" in the popular Sunday night television show is no menace when it comes to acting—or getting his schooling in five-minute sessions.

The boy, who began his acting career at the age of 5, was selected for the part from among 500 youths trying for the show.

His aunt, Mrs. Marie Hopper, whose husband coached the lad into the part, maintains, "he loves what he's doing."

And his teacher, Mary Louise Lowe, his only instructor, since he has never attended a regular school, maintains he's a "genius—or he couldn't learn as quickly or as well."

AS FOR JAY, whose mother, Dorothy, supports him with her salary as an executive secretary, he banks his $600 per week salary, but doesn't bother to watch his own show.

"All I want to do is own my own zoo," Jay claims.

And with his salary—which should triple if the show continues next year—he can buy the best.

And odds are that all the animals, like Dennis' co-acting canine, will wag their tails on cue.

Busy Demo Aspirants Appear to Be Opening Gate for Dark Horse

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I.P.T. Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON—The suspicion is growing here that the hot and heavy contest for the Democratic presidential nomination is already beginning to wear itself thin and that by the time next spring or summer rolls around people will be awfully, awfully tired of the same old faces.

It is the kind of situation made to order for a dark horse or for those candidates who have laid relatively low during the pre-convention maneuvering.

Almost no part of the country is currently safe from one or other of the Democratic candidates. The offices of Sens. Hubert Humphrey and John F. Kennedy issue long and detailed itineraries which show their men to be in practically all parts of this nation's 50 states and dependent territories. Sen. Stuart Symington is due to start in earnest his campaign soon and the air will be filled with the discordant sounds of even more campaign oratory.

JUST HOW MUCH of this the American people can stand without growing weary of the refrain is a matter troubling not only supporters of the various candidates but Democratic politicians who are staying neutral in the battle for the nomination.

In politics, as in everything else, a law of diminishing returns exists and there is a feeling on the part of some that the leading contenders may well wear out their welcome and talk themselves out of contention long before the conventions roll around.

This feeling on the part of experienced political observers results, of course, in their mental scanning of the field and asking themselves the question—"If not these, who?" The answers they come up with are, not necessarily in order, Adlai E. Stevenson and California's governor, Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Stevenson has thus far raised no hand to win the nomination or is he likely to. His interest in capturing a third convention is high, but both he and his advisers believe his best tactics are simply to be on hand, ready, willing and able should the lightning strike.

While his would not exactly qualify as a "fresh face" at least it will not have been too much in evidence in the months preceding the convention. The spectre of two spectacular defeats still haunts the Stevenson candidacy, a fact which is causing eyes to turn in other directions.

AS A DARK HORSE proposition, Pat Brown cannot be discounted. He has, from all accounts, made an admirable record as governor of the nation's second largest state, a natural spring for national office. He has practically no known enemies, his standing is high among his gubernatorial colleagues and other Democratic politicians on the burgeoning West Coast, and he has impressive credentials as a party regular and party leader.

The resurgence of the California Democratic Party came under his aegis and for that he must receive the credit just as certainly as he would have been blamed had the party decomposed during his tenure. Politically he is probably acceptable to most wings of the Democratic Party which, as of now, have no strong feelings about him one way or another.

Nixon Piles Up Big Margin Over 7 Others in Poll at Fair

By BOB HOUSER
Vice President Richard M. Nixon polled over 2½ times as many votes as any of 7 other presidential contenders in a tabulation of 14,650 ballots early last October at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Both voting machines and voting booths were used in the survey by Pair, Inc., official research agency for the Fair Assn. The agency said this is the largest poll yet conducted anywhere on next year's election.

THE BALLOT question was: "If the presidential election were held tomorrow, who would you vote for?" Respondents also were asked to indicate their party registration. Eight presidential candidates—six Democrats and two Republicans—were listed without party designation.

The over-all count, with "don't know" response eliminated, showed:

RICHARD NIXON
Over-All Leader

Brown 5.3
Symington 3.5
Humphrey 2.3

Among registered Republicans only, Nixon polled 65.5 per cent of the vote, over 4½ times as many as his only Republican opponent, Nelson Rockefeller:

Rockefeller 14.4
Kennedy 9.2
Brown 1.9
Stevenson 1.8
Humphrey -1.0
Johnson -1.0
Symington -1.0
Others 1.7
Don't know 5.5

Among registered Democrats, Nixon ranked a close third to Stevenson and Kennedy:

Stevenson 23.8
Kennedy 19.0
Nixon 17.9
Rockefeller 12.8
Brown 4.3
Johnson 2.8
Symington 2.5
Humphrey 1.8
Don't know 15.2

Russ Peace Talk Opens Mexico Fair

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan opened his country's big scientific and cultural fair Saturday with a message of peace.

Mikoyan said the Soviet Union "is far from launching another war" and on the contrary "is a peace-loving and hard-working country."

MIKOYAN spoke from an open air platform in front of the National Auditorium. On the platform behind him were President Adolfo Lopez Mateos and his cabinet. Above them fluttered the flags of Mexico and the Soviet Union.

"We never have been an aggressor country and we never will," said the Soviet trade expert, the highest ranking Moscow official ever to visit Latin America.

"We are for peace, always peace. We favor peaceful co-existence with countries with political systems different from ours. We are against the intervention of one state in the affairs of another."

Neckties OK'd for German Reds

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communist regime officially backed away Saturday from the idea that a good Communist never wears a necktie.

Neues Deutschland, the official Communist Party newspaper, ruled such a concept outdated, and said workers should dress properly when they go out in the evenings.

"We Socialists (Communists) have great respect for work," said the paper, "but we would be using the fruits of our mutual efforts badly if we failed to make our life more pleasant and worthwhile. And this means proper clothing on special occasions."

Appraisal Meet Set

R. D. Boggs, president of Chapter 94 of the Society of Residential Appraisers, announced that the next meeting will be held Wednesday at the Petroleum Club in Long Beach. The history of a subdivision, from the original idea to the sale, will be discussed.

Featured speaker will be Ray C. Cherry, newly elected president of the Home Builders Assn. of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties.

CHERRY WAS educated at the University of Colorado, where he studied engineering. He came to California in 1926 and entered the construction industry. During World War II he was overseas, principally in the British Isles, as a construction engineer for the United States Air Force.

In 1947 he joined forces with John Hadley. They have built shopping centers, restaurants and other commercial projects in addition to more than 4,000 homes in the last 10 years. A notable Hadley-Cherry project is the fashionable Cave des Roys, luxurious private club on La Cienega.

RAY C. CHERRY
To Speak at Dinner

The meeting will begin at 6:30 with cocktails followed by dinner at 7.

Wins Contracts

NEW YORK (AP)—Dynamilis Corp. of America said its subsidiary, Reeves Instrument Corp., had been awarded contracts totaling more than $600,000 by the Defense Ordnance Fuze Laboratory to design, engineer and build new type electronic fuzes.

Ford Coming Out Soon With 'Hottest' Engine

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Automotive Writer

Without fanfare or advertising Ford will begin offering a new engine next week which develops 360 horsepower—highest in the industry.

This represents a jump of 60 horsepower for Ford and pushes it 25 horsepower above the hottest stock engines available from Chevrolet or Plymouth.

A Ford Starliner equipped with the new engine has been clocked in excess of 145 miles per hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., and at the Ford test track at Romeo, Mich.

THERE WAS a time when introduction of such an engine would have been accompanied by blares from the publicity trumpets. Claims such as "the hot one's even hotter" which Chevrolet once used would have echoed from the airwaves.

Why the silence now? Three years ago the heads of the various auto companies, all members of the Automobile Manufacturers' Assn., got together and decided the hullabaloo about speed and horsepower had gotten out of hand. With the highway death toll rising, critics of the industry were becoming extremely vocal. So the AMA directors agreed on a policy statement which became known as the "speed and horsepower" resolution.

The industry executives agreed not to publicize or advertise speed or horsepower or even to suggest speed in their advertising. Additionally they agreed to refrain from participating in any event featuring speed.

As a result factories withdrawing sponsorship of stock car racing teams; quit furnishing factory mechanics at race tracks; dropped the traditional pace car from the Indianapolis 500 mile race.

HORSEPOWER remained, but it was played down in the ads.

All companies still officially abide by the resolution although the AMA has no enforcement powers. The executives agreed to police their own firms. Some companies have made mild complaints about competitors' advertising, but apparently there has been no serious violation.

This fall, when 1960 models were introduced, economy was the key word. Several makes cut horsepower for the first time in years. The compact cars made their debuts. The Corvair, at 80 horsepower, has the lowest such rating for an American car since the days of the 4-cylinder Henry J and the Allstate.

THE FACTORIES' withdrawal did not kill stock car racing. The National Assn. for Stock Cars, Inc. (NASCAR) reports business booming as never before. And hot engines have continued to be available in stock cars, particularly in Ford's competitors.

The new engine from Ford—actually a fairly complete modification of the 352 cubic inch V-8 which has been built the past two years—represents a move to catch up, although Ford doesn't say so.

In fact, the only advertising so far has been by an independent Charlotte, N. C., firm known as T-Bird Power Products Co., which headlines its page in the Nascar newsletter "Want To Go 150 Mph?"

IF FORD PUT out such an ad it would be in direct violation of the AMA resolution. These are the details on the engine: 360 horsepower at 6,000 revolutions per minute; 352 cubic inches (which means Ford has achieved the goal of at least one horsepower per cubic inch); 10.6 to 1 compression; aluminum intake manifold; single 4-barrel Holley carburetor; large exhaust manifold; solid lifters borrowed from the Falcon six.

Chevrolet offers a number of options in its engine line topped with a 348 cubic inch V-8 with triple 2-barrel carburetors and special cam which develops 335 horsepower at 5,800 r.p.m.

PLYMOUTH TOPS its line with a 333 cubic inch V-8 developing 330 horsepower at 4,800 r.p.m., using dual 4-barrel carburetors.

Lee Petty of Randleman, N. C., Nascar's 1959 grand national champion, drove a 1959 Plymouth much of the year using a 361 cubic inch engine with single four-barrel carburetor which developed 305 horsepower.

The average motorist probably wouldn't be satisfied with any of these engines. He rarely can use the horsepower available in standard which tend to idle "rough" in city traffic, certainly aren't noted for fuel economy.

But if speed is what you want, you can still get it—and how!

Pageant Plaza Is Appealing

Pageant Plaza, a spacious planned community of homes in Westminster, is offering 4 big bedrooms, or 3 big bedrooms and a convertible den in plans that are sized for elbow room. These large homes include 2 complete baths, and are "sectionalized" for maximum privacy and comfort.

Priced from $14,600, Pageant Plaza features easy FHA terms for non-veterans, with a down payment lay-away plan provided by the McCarthy Co., sales agents. In addition, there is a trade-in plan provided whereby older homes may be employed as down payments.

Pageant Plaza offers forced air heating, room length walk-in wardrobe closets, and superior appointments throughout. Available at builder's cost are a series of optional features, too, including built-in gas range and oven, hardwood parquet flooring, and automatic dishwashers.

To visit the homes, drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to the Grand Ave. turnoff. Follow Hwy. 39 markers around and down to Westminster Blvd., and go left on Westminster to the furnished model homes.

Animal Fats in Less Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture department says it expects the nation's fat consumption pattern in 1960 to continue a trend away from animal fats.

The agency predicts an average per capita consumption of 46 pounds of fat next year, the same as this year. It said products using vegetable oils have been gaining in recent years over butter and lard. No change in this trend was foreseen.

Farm Highways Cut Truck Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agricultural marketing service says that producers and haulers of farm products will benefit materially from the 40,000-mile interstate highway system now being built. It said in a transportation report that better roads and shorter routes will tend to reduce truck operating costs and reduce the transit time from farm to market.

Fairless Award to C. M. White

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers, Inc. has named Charles M. White as recipient of its Benjamin F. Fairless award. White is chairman of Republic Steel Corp. The award is in recognition of "his ability, energy and determination in starting the top-pressure blast furnace and foresight in providing it with prepared burdens have created the world's dominant metal producer."

AN EASTGATE HOME

Record-breaking sales have been chalked up in Eastgate in Garden Grove where homes such as this are priced from $11,950. Close to everything, the homes have great appeal to families seeking to escape the smog.

Smogless Eastgate Community Is Appealing to Many Families

The rapidly increasing number of families moving into western Orange County to escape the smog and heat of the metropolitan area is reflected in the continuing record-breaking home sales at the popular 2500-home Eastgate residential community in Garden Grove.

Frank H. McFarland, Eastgate sales agent, reports that the comfortable year-round climate and numerous recreation facilities in the area have been major factors in the sale of more than 1200 Eastgate homes during the past 90 days.

EXPANDING freeways and thoroughfares for convenient commuting have also contributed to the great demand for the Eastgate homes, he said. Both the Santa Ana Freeway and proposed San Diego Freeway pass close to Eastgate and through streets make driving to the rapidly expanding employment centers in the local area easy and fast.

FHA Assets Top Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Assets of the Federal Housing Administration have topped the billion dollar mark, commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman announced.

The mortgage-insuring agency closed its 25th year of operation on June 30 with assets of $1,002,047,965 and liabilities of $244,135,794 Zimmerman's report showed.

The assets included $757,912,171 in the insurance reserve funds built up to cover possible defaults by homebuyers on their mortgages.

Over the quarter-century, losses on home insurance were only 7/100 of 1 per cent of the insurance written, and on apartment, co-op and other projects only 6/100 of 1 per cent.

Going Abroad

complete conveniences in the community itself including shopping facilities, churches, parks and attractively landscaped streets with sidewalks, ornamental lighting and all improvements.

The homes at Eastgate are designed for average income families and include an unusual degree of custom styling, quality construction and built-in features for their moderate price.

Slump in Building

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The value of new construction completed in October declined by 5 per cent partly because of the steel strike, the Commerce Department said. It amounted to $4,600,000,000.

Both private and public construction slumped for the month, showing a more-than-normal change.

However, the October total was 1 per cent above the corresponding figure for October, 1958.

The value of private construction last month was $3,400,000,000, a decrease of 4 per cent from September. Private housing construction, which amounted to $2,000,000,000, also dipped 4 per cent. Public building spending declined 7 per cent in October to $1,400,000,000.

However, the department said construction expenditures in the first 10 months of this year totaled nearly 46 billion dollars, an increase of 13 per cent over the 1958 figures.

BUYERS HAVE a selection of 15 exterior designs and a variety of floor plans to choose from. The spacious interiors have 1102 to 1361 sq. ft. of living area with 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, large living room with optional fireplace, family room and well-equipped kitchen. There is an attached double garage with laundry alcove and a large yard area for outdoor family activities.

The home are exceptionally well built with quality materials used throughout. Typical are the ceramic tile kitchen counters, aluminum frame sliding glass windows and full-height patio doors with screens, textured plaster walls accented with wallpaper, and acoustical ceilings.

UNUSUAL construction features include a plastic membrane moisture barrier in the foundation and rigid truss roofs with wide overhang eaves and wood shingle trim.

Among the many built-in features of the Eastgate homes are solid hardwood kitchen cabinets, a linen cabinet work center, waste disposal and installed laundry plumbing. Wall-to-wall carpeting and a counter top gas range and wall oven are included in the larger homes.

McFarland advises that the homes are priced from $11,950 to $14,450 with liberal financing terms available to non-vets, including a down payment as low as $195 plus 90 costs.

Four furnished model homes at Eastgate are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily and are conveniently located at the corner of Knott and Chapman Ave. in Garden Grove, just west of Hwy. 39.

'WHO'S EXCITED?'

Little Kim Cain seems surprised by all the excitement as her father holds the 14-month-old child following her solo ride in the family car. The auto plunged down an incline, through fence (background) and onto top of two parked cars in Los Angeles. Kim was not hurt. Car rolled away after her father, Paul S. Cain, stopped car on incline and left it momentarily.—(AP Wirephoto.)

700,00 Compact Car Sales Seen Boom Spark

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The auto industry is expected to sell 700,000 new compact cars next year to spark a 1960 boom that will send production, earnings and jobs to record-high levels, business forecasters said Saturday.

They said the accuracy of their predictions depended entirely on the outcome of the steel dispute and on the railroads, which face a spring strike threat.

The forecasts were made at the annual business-outlook conference sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Representatives of the steel, construction, auto, railroad and banking industries took part.

In brief, they predicted:

A half-trillion-dollar economy next year, with the total of all goods and services produced reaching the 500-billion-dollar mark for the first time.

A surge in the economy during the first six months of 1960, with a slowdown possible in the fall.

Total auto sales of 8,700,000, including 500,000 foreign imports, 700,000 compact U.S. cars and 5,500,000 conventional cars.

Sleepy Admission

BERLIN (AP)—A policeman awakened a youth he found sleeping in a phone booth and heard him say sleepily, "Oh, you've come about that burglary." In the youth's apartment he found a stolen portable radio.

Higher interest rates—up by one-half of 1 per cent before mid-1960.

Critical steel shortages early next year, even if a settlement is reached without another walkout. A settlement, however, should result in record steel production of 130 million tons for the year as a whole.

Slowly rising prices—up by about 1 per cent over the year.

Construction probably will have a record-breaking, 56-billion-dollar year if the steel strike is not resumed.

KETTLE CALL

Salvation Army Bells to Ring

The familiar sight of the Salvation Army soldier with his kettle will reappear in the major shopping areas of Long Beach and Lakewood Friday.

The kettle program is the first phase of the Salvation Army's annual Christmas program. Second phase of the program is the Christmas Cheer Clearing House, where new clothing, toys and food are collected for distribution to the needy.

Mrs. Mabel Johns and Mrs. Sally Proctor are in charge of the kettle program.

"PERHAPS NOTHING brings the spirit of the pre-Christmas season as sharply into focus as the tinkling of the bells on the Salvation Army kettles," said Senior Major Howard Sloan, head of the organization in this area.

"They seem to be a gentle, but insistent reminder of the true meaning of Yuletide: that of giving, not only to those we love, but to those less fortunate than ourselves."

THEY were breaking ground for a new boys' club in the Carmelitos area. A crowd was gathered around, and drew the attention of two tiny boys playing in a nearby yard within earshot of a scout for this column.

One of the boys said: "What do you s'pose the big crowd's doing over there?" The other tot looked things over and replied: "I see a man with a shovel. I guess somebody must've died."

IT WAS a bit unusual but all in the line of duty for Co-Publisher Dan Ridder of The I. P-T when he was routed out of bed at 6 a.m. the other morning by the ringing of the doorbell.

The caller turned out to be a motorized carrier for Bro. Ridder's newspaper. He had delivered the morning sheet at the Ridder door and then couldn't get his car started because of a faltering battery.

"I've still got most of my route to deliver," he said. "Be right with you," said Ridder, who quickly dressed, got out his car, and gave the carrier's auto a shove to get it started.

When he related this later at the office, somebody asked the publisher:

"You're sure that wasn't a carrier for the —" mentioning an unprintable word. "Don't be silly," said Ridder. "I wasn't that sleepy."

BIG SIGN on Jerry Pickles' hobby shop on Seventh St. the other morning told the world: IT'S A BOY.

Beneath it was a small notice: Back in 15 minutes.

That's quick work.

I AM WELL aware that too much personal comment can become offensive in a column like this, but I've had some recent experiences I want to discuss briefly because this might be encouraging and reassuring to others.

For the first time, I've just gone through surgery. It wasn't anything critical, but sort of major and I approached it with the apprehension I'm sure is common with others in similar situations. I sort of wondered if I'd ever be the same healthy fella again.

Those fears lingered for the first day or two after I came out of the general anesthetic. I was glad it was over but I felt lousy and sort of depressed.

Then things began to happen. Good health began flowing back. My spirits rose accordingly. Everything looked brighter. Though I still had some pains and discomforts, I felt optimistic and grew, as mentioned here before, so loquacious that I fired volleys of words at my good nurses at Seaside Hospital and visitors at my bedside. Even small things, and my own little predicaments, became interesting and humorous.

AFTER eight days, came the time to go home. I discarded the hip-length hospital nightgown that must have made me look laughably ludicrous, and got on my street clothes all by myself. Though I had no complaint about the hospital, home never looked so good.

The subsequent recovery was one of the most exhilarating periods of my life. There were ups and downs, but the general trend was up. The tendency to see sunshine and humor in everything, which began in the hospital, continued and grew.

Now I feel fine and looking back on this happy experience, it seems as if it were almost worth a bit of surgery even if I hadn't needed it. That's ridiculous, of course, but I hope it conveys the idea for any who may be facing a bout with the anesthetic and the knife for the first time. Those who have been there can check their experiences with mine.

NAME RINGS NO BELL

On the charter of the Federation of Musicians there is the honor list of familiar names: Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart, Mendelssohn, Haydn, Schubert—and Dudley Buck. Dudley Buck? Mary E. Dickenson, secretary-treasurer of Local 353, tries, but can't place the name.—(Staff Photo)

MUSICAL MYSTERY

Who Remembers Mr. Dudley Buck?

By GEORGE ERES

The name, Dudley Buck, is one to ponder on. It is a name coupled with Beethoven and Schubert. But not too many people know who or what he was—not even the people closest to him.

And the people closest to him these days are the staff members of the various locals of the American Federation of Musicians.

For in the eyes of the designers of the charter of the American Federation of Musicians, the name Dudley Buck stands with those of Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart, Haydn, Mendelssohn and Schubert. True, his name stands at the bottom of the list on the charter, but there it is.

THE CASUAL VISITOR to the local union's office seeing the charter nods cognizantly at the list of names—all testimony to the pure classical taste of the charter's designers. He pulls up short at the name of Dudley Buck.

"Who," he inquires of the office staff, "is Dudley Buck?"

"Dudley Buck? Where? Why, that charter's been here since 1914 and I never even noticed the name of Dudley Buck." The staff gathers around. Heads are scratched. No one remembers Dudley Buck.

The girl in the office of the Orange County Musicians Local found the name on her charter, too, but he was "not known here."

IF DUDLEY BUCK is known to the members of the staff of the big Los Angeles Musicians local, it is apparently a policy matter that could not be discussed since no one authorized to talk to the press was available at the moment.

Poor Dudley Buck is dead. He died in 1909. He was a composer, primarily of church music. Apparently all paid up in his union dues, he remains in good standing.

And wherever, and as long, as an American Federation of Musicians charter hangs from an office wall, the name of Dudley Buck will remain just below that of Schubert and bring forth the query:

"Who was Dudley Buck?"

65 Attend Meeting of Braille Workers

Sixty-five persons—blind and helpers of the blind—met Saturday at the home of Mrs. Charles C. Park, 3934 Pacific Ave.

The ones with sight reported on the books they have transcribed into Braille since they met last November. Their estimate was 45,000 pages.

The Braille transcribers are "graduates" of the Braille section of the Long Beach branch of the American Association of University Women, taught by Mrs. Park for the past eight years.

Mrs. H. R. Brudno of San Mateo, president of the Peninsula Braille Transcribers Guild, flew here for the session. From San Bernardino came Mrs. T. J. Gladden, teacher, and William S. Cornell, executive directors of the San Bernardino Valley Lighthouse for the Blind. Both Cornell and Mrs. Gladden are blind.

Mrs. Bernard Schechter of West Covina brought Mrs. Margaret Valencia, blind teacher. The Braille Institute of Los Angeles was represented by Henriette Sprangers and Cecile Wyckaert, head of transcribing services.

Tax Subject Set at Forum

Local government—specifically city and county budgeting and tax assessing—will be discussed at the Wednesday meeting of the World Affairs Forum in the Bayshore Branch Library, 2nd St. and Bayshore Ave.

Speakers at the forum, usually devoted to national and world affairs, will be Warren Heistand, chief of the Budget Research Division of the City of Long Beach, and Richard T. Reid, assistant chief of the County Budget Division.

Subsidence Curbs Save L.B. Harbor $2,250,000

Piers Stop Sinking to Sea Level

By LEE CRAIG

Long Beach Harbor's battle to halt subsidence already has saved the port an estimated $2,250,000 in Pier A remedial work that now will not have to be done. And a current study may show that substantial additional savings may be made, according to Chief Harbor Engineer Bob Hoffmaster.

Two years ago, the wharf at Berths 1 and 2 became inoperable because of the sinkage. At high tide, the sea lapped over the pier and sloshed ankle-deep into the transit shed.

SURVEYING the picture, engineers calculated—on the basis of predicted future subsidence—that Berths 1 through 7 would have to be raised and their transit sheds renovated, a long and costly procedure.

So a $2,127,330 contract was let in July, 1958, to Guy F. Atkinson Co. for the first phase of the project, wharf reconstruction and raising of the shed at Berths 1 and 2. The job will be completed next February.

Now, however, water injection virtually has stopped subsidence at Berths 6 and 7 and slowed it at other berths.

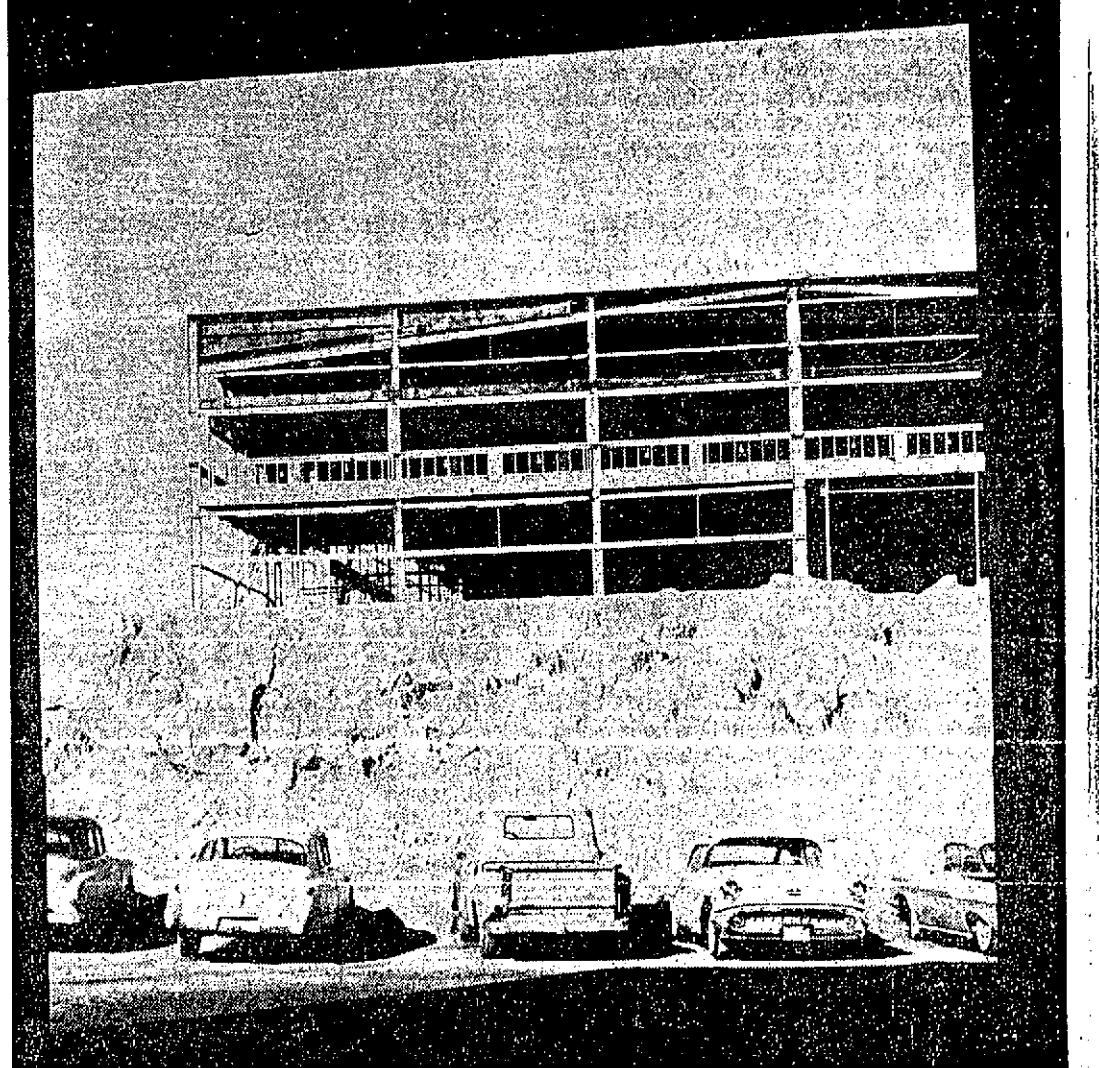

"We're pretty sure now," Hoffmaster said, "that we won't have to raise 6 and 7, which would be a $2,000,000 job."

"The situation at 3, 4 and 5 is under study now and there's a possibility we may be able to find a cheaper way to keep those berths operating."

ALSO, CUTTING of expansion and contraction joints in the Berths 6-7 transit shed, planned to relieve horizontal subsidence stresses, now will not have to be done. Cost of the work would have been $250,000.

In the Berths 1 and 2 project, the old timber wharf was replaced by a higher concrete structure and the transit shed is being jacked up and rebuilt on a fill which raises it some 20 feet above its previous elevation.

MOLE'S EYE VIEW

New Hospital Wing Dedicated to 'The American Way of Life'

By BEN ZINSER

Long Beach Community Hospital's new 2.5-million-dollar wing was formally dedicated Saturday to the principle that "the American way of life shall not end."

Larry A. Collins Sr., principal speaker at dedication ceremonies in the six-story addition's new assembly hall, warned that "medicine and hospitals," more than any other segment of American life, face the threat of "a great sweep of totalitarianism."

The dedication was the highlight of a week of opening ceremonies. Final event is today's open house from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

COLLINS, EDITORIAL COLUMNIST for The Independent, Press-Telegram, said American medicine today teeters precariously on a borderline.

"The realm of hospitals and medicine could be pushed into socialism overnight," he said.

Twenty-three bills that could socialize medicine are currently before Congress, he disclosed.

"This means there are 23 members of Congress who are dedicated to the principle that socialism will start in our hospitals," Collins declared.

"THE DOOR HAS NOT YET closed on our free way of life," he went on, "but it threatens to do so."

Collins said government-operated hospital beds outnumber private-hospital beds in Long Beach.

In the very near future, he said, Long Beach will have a total of 2,300 government-operated hospital beds in the projected Seaside Hospital chronic-illness facility, Long Beach General Hospital and Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

"When the city's hospital expansion program has been completed," he said, "there will be 1,700 private hospital beds, 600 fewer than available from the government."

COLLINS ADDED: "This is a trend that must be fought by delaying action."

The speaker paid tribute to the Long Beach Health Plan, a full-payment fee program of medical insurance offered by local physicians.

"If this insurance program falls down, there's no hope to stop the socialistic trend," Collins warned.

Collins lauded Long Beach voters for their approval, 9 to 1, of 10½ million dollars in hospital improvement bonds in 1956.

"We the people of Long Beach did it ourselves, without government," he said.

MAYOR RAYMOND C. KEALER termed Community Hospital's new wing "another milestone in community progress due to your foresight and sacrifice."

Master of ceremonies was William T. J. Harris, first vice president of the hospital's board.

"This new hospital," he said, "would not have been possible without the cooperation of all the people of Long Beach."

ONE-DAY CAMPAIGN

Retarded Children's School Will Benefit

More than 1,000 volunteers Monday morning will begin the annual campaign walk through the residential areas of the city in an attempt to aid retarded children through the Exceptional Children's Foundation.

The campaigners—including 700 mothers and 300 children and teenage groups—hope to raise $25,000 in the one-day, door-to-door drive. The walk will cover Long Beach, Lakewood and surrounding areas.

The drive, headed by Mrs. Vincea McDonnell, will aid the foundation's school and training center at 4519 E. Stearns St., by providing more than half of the school's annual budget of $45,000.

More than 80 retarded persons, from five years up, are enrolled in the school.

State Should Clean S.D. Freeway Route

LONG BEACH HAS a bone to pick with the State Highway Commission.

It results from the Commission's recent withdrawal of funds originally allocated for work on the Long Beach section of the San Diego Freeway.

Insult is heaped on injury. Long Beach is left with a pile of trash in its lap from the preliminary work on the freeway route.

THAT WORK HAS INVOLVED purchase and removal of structures standing in the way. Eighty houses in the eastern part of Long Beach and in the Wrigley Heights area already have been removed. Remaining are foundations, heaps of broken concrete, and a rich variety of litter which is a joy to the heart of childhood, a menace to the public health, and a blight on the city's beauty.

UNDER ORIGINALLY FREEWAY planning, construction would have proceeded in the coming months, and the clutter would have been hauled away in good time.

But postponement of San Diego Freeway construction in Long Beach leaves this city in doubt as to when the area will be cleaned up. There is no assurance that the freeway project will be resumed a year or even two years from now. Removal of the rubble should not be delayed that long. The state should clean up after itself and soon.

The foundations and the other trash left by the movers have advertised the area as a dumping place, and the vacated properties are acquiring additional trash. These trash heaps are unsightly, and they have become a hazard to curious children.

NO COMMUNITY HAS GIVEN the state better cooperation on the freeway program than Long Beach. Ten years ago this city took steps to keep open the route for the San Diego Freeway. It has waited patiently while state planning and construction inched along. The recent postponement perhaps was the result of too much patience on the part of Long Beach. Whatever the case, the very least the city can expect at this time from the state is good housekeeping at the scene of the neglected freeway route.

Blues Gone, GOP Has Confidence

By Walter T. Ridder, Robert E. Lee and Bill Broom

WASHINGTON — As the White House shapes its budget and legislative programs for next year, it is receiving glowing reports on last term's successes from Republican congressmen visiting their home districts.

Back in the grass roots, the legislators report, the Eisenhower 1959 program of spending cuts and labor reform met with overwhelming approval. The GOP blues over election losses in 1958 have been largely dispelled. There's a new surge of confidence and optimism over the party's chances of retaining the presidency in 1960.

Legislative strategists in the administration would be less than human if they aren't tempted to stick with the 1958 formula which worked so well last year. This they'll probably do, but there will be some refinements, some new wrinkles in connection with the defense and farm programs. As yet, these haven't been firmed up.

House and Senate leaders anticipate an easy time maintaining party discipline, even in an election year. The GOP's 1959 bloc voting tactic in the House against big numerical odds has been ratified at the grass-roots level, the Republicans claim.

Much of the burden for guiding the domestic program will rest on White House aides and the party leadership in Congress next year. The President's preoccupation with the peace issue, international negotiations, summit conferences will require a major part of his concentration during his last year in office.

DEFINITION OF THE UNHAPPIEST man in the world: the rigged TV quiz winner who sunk all his money in cranberries.

CONVERSATION THE OTHER night got around to the subject of the late Gen. George C. Marshall. A man who had worked for him and knew him long and intimately said he had never called him anything but "General Marshall." We asked one of the most famous of first-name dropers in this first-name calling town if he had ever called Gen. Marshall "George."

The man looked at us with unabashed incredulity. "Who, me? Call George George to his face? Are you out of your mind?" he replied.

The General exuded such an aura of rectitude, dignity and righteousness that he managed to freeze up most people with whom he came into contact. We know of one great conversationalist, a man not accustomed to underestimating his own ability, who sat next to Gen. Marshall at dinner one night. When it was over, we asked him what he and the General had talked about.

"Nothing," was the almost unbelievable reply. "You see," he explained, "I just couldn't think of anything to say to the General which wouldn't sound silly."

Engle Gets Strong Support for Defense Revision Plans

Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.), Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), and Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.), of the Armed Services Committee, are three of the stars in the serialized drama of defense policy and philosophy.

The "angels" of this

SEN. ENGLE

show are the American people who not only foot the bills but who gamble their lives on whether or not the drama is a success.

The ranking luminary is, of course, President Eisenhower but he, Defense Secretary McElroy, and the Chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Arleigh Burke, probably will all have retired from active participation in the defense thriller by January, 1961. Barring acts of God, the Senators will all be in the national picture long after that date.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) is the long time chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Burdened by the complexities of this task and by less than perfect health in the past few years, Sen. Russell has delegated much responsibility and power to Sen. Stennis and Sen. Symington.

Sen. Symington, former Air Force Secretary, much discussed as a presidential possibility, has long believed in the philosophy advocated by many Air Force officers: a single military service and a single Chief of Staff. This is the concept feared by many in the Navy and Army as "the man on the white horse."

Sen. Symington is extremely influential on the Armed Services Committee—not only with the Democrats but with the ranking Republican, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall. The handsome Missouri Senator is almost as close as a brother to Sens. Russell, Stennis and Engle.

In turn, Sen. Stennis, a moderate and former judge, as he has frequently expressed to this writer, has a real liking and admiration for Sen. Engle.

IN THE CLOSING days of Congress, Sen. Engle delivered a long and important speech on reorganizing the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the entire Defense Department. Asked by Sen. Symington if he does not think a single Chief of Staff an important step towards this reorganization, Sen. Engle said yes and that favors a single Chief of Staff.

To the astonishment of Sen. Engle—who did not expect such a public tribute—Sen. Stennis extemporaneously endorsed Sen. Engle's proposals, including a single service in the most glowing terms.

President Eisenhower opposes a single service and a single Chief of Staff. Some believe that Secretary McElroy has been won over to the single service—single chief concept as a matter of economy.

SEN. ENGLE has stated that it might take five years to see his defense reorganization plan enacted by Congress. Considering the strong support he has in the Senate, it could come about in much less time than that.

Soap-Washing Machine Tie-up in TV Ads Claimed 'Deceptive'

WASHINGTON — Charles Van Doren and those who rigged the TV quiz shows are not the only ones on television guilty of fooling the public.

One of the biggest deceivers is Procter & Gamble, one of the big three soap companies, which up until two years ago operated under the guidance of Neil McElroy. Mr. McElroy is now Secretary of Defense.

Meanwhile his soap empire has now been officially charged with "false, misleading, and deceptive" advertising on television. Linked with Procter & Gamble are some of the biggest washing machine manufacturers in the U.S., including Kelvinator, General Electric, Apex, Speed Queen, Norge, and Whirlpool.

The Federal Trade Commission has officially charged Procter & Gamble with ganging up in exclusive advertising deals with these companies to make it appear that Procter & Gamble's soap powders and soap products are about the only soaps on the market. The Federal Trade Commission charges that this tie-in advertising is not only false and misleading but also monopolistic and unfair to competing soap companies.

Here is how the "deceptive" advertising deals between Procter & Gamble and the washing machine manufacturers operate:

Procter & Gamble makes a deal with Westinghouse Laundromat to feature "Dash" in the TV commercials of Westinghouse. The TV commercial reads: "Dash is the only detergent packed in every Westinghouse Laundromat."

General Electric will carry the following TV blurb—"yes, General Electric puts Tide in the new automatics."

Partisan Aspect of Water Election Escaped the Voter

TURNOUT IN LAST WEEK'S Water Replenishment District election might have gone well over the 11 per cent mark if the contest's partisan swing had been publicly dramatized.

Although the issues of establishing the district and of naming five division directors to administer it were prima facie non-partisan ones, a last-minute challenge had the effect of making both matters partisan. But the partisan character attracted almost no public note.

As you'll recall, the replenishment district was approved by a 4-1 vote. This authorized creation of the state's second largest water agency, second only to the Metropolitan Water District.

The first five to file for the five directorships of the new district were Republicans. County Democratic Central Committee officials told the Independent, Press-Telegram that Gov. Brown's office urged the committee to get some Democrats in the race "to try to get a couple of men on the board." The reasoning was that some of the GOP candidates were avowedly hostile to the Governor's $2 billion water program, which comes up for voter approval next year.

So, at the last minute, the Democrats filed five men for the division directorships. However, neither side campaigned on the basis of political faith or on merits of the Governor's water program.

As it turned out, the 4-1 approval of the district demonstrated a strong "pro-water" sentiment among voters. The five directorships were much closer contests, with three going to Republicans, two to Democrats.

It seems a reasonable conclusion that the district vote reveals by way of the low interest, the lop-sided approval of the district, the three Republican-two Democrat selection of directors that:

(1) The public was unaware of the partisan nature of the directorships. (2) The public was unaware of candidate sympathies about the Governor's water program, since candidates with both pro and con leanings were elected. (3) The public believes in planning for future water requirements through sound methods. (4) The public, harassed as it is by taxes, will permit itself to be taxed even more in the interests of underwriting sound water policy for the state's future.

IT'S NO SECRET THAT Vice President Nixon is astronaut-high on polls these days. So, it's not surprising that the latest, and reputedly the largest to date, gives the Veeep his characteristic edge. It's a 14,050 ballot sample taken by Fair, Inc., last October during the three-week Los Angeles County Fair.

Nixon blasted Stevenson 44 to 16 per cent among voters of both parties; led Rockefeller 65 to 14 among Republicans; was a respectable third behind Stevenson and Kennedy among Democrats, 23-19-18, and led Kennedy and Stevenson, 25-21-19 among independents.

And yet, there were crumbs for Democrats in this poll:

In the two-party ballot, Nixon's 44 per cent still leaves a 56 per cent opposition vote. Among Democrats only, Nixon scored 18 per cent, perhaps not enough of the Democratic registration he would need to overcome that party's superior numbers. Among independents, often acknowledged as the bloc which will decide, Nixon grabs 25 per cent, still leaving a 75 per cent opposition bloc.

Bumper Black Walnut Crop

STOCKTON, Mo. (AP)—It's the nuts from trees or off the Oklahoma. black walnut time in Missouri and it looks like a bumper crop.

To those who pick them it means extra money, as much as $5 an hour for some. Some dealers call the crop nature's harvest, pointing out there is no planting, no care, no cultivation, no fertilizing—just picking. Some trees may yield as much as $18 worth of nuts.

The walnuts grow in parts of Missouri, but the best stands are in the Ozark hills and valleys.

If you think processing is a hammer-and-nut-pick operation, you are old-fashioned. Automation has taken over in Missouri and Arkansas, with everything except gathering with a few in Kansas and fertilizer.

THESE MACHINES have revolutionized the black walnut business. Before the hullers, farmers were reluctant to market the nuts because of the trouble and time it took to clean them.

Hammons' general manager Clarence Cavender estimated payments to farmers this year will run around $700,000.

A hundred pounds of nuts will process out about 10 pounds of kernels for sale to the candy, baking and ice cream trade. The shells are ground up and used for abrasives in sand blasting, as a

Motel Chain Seeking Site

A motel chain has notified the Chamber of Commerce here it intends to build in Long Beach.

Imperial 400 Motels, Inc., asked the Chamber to help it find a local site. Russell F. Martini, Chamber industrial manager, referred the query to local real estate firms.

Imperial 400 already has three motels under construction in Los Angeles and Phoenix. It also has leases on several additional locations. It hopes eventually to build 33 motels, according to L. N. Aikman, vice president.

Imperial 400 did not indicate size of the Long Beach outlet pending location of a site. Other motels projected are pegged to cost from $100,000 to $250,000.

Imperial 400 generally builds in close-to-downtown areas, Aikman said.

Formica Available for Do-It-Yourself

For the last few years city folks have been borrowing on a theme long practiced in rural areas. More and more people are doing things themselves around the home. This applies to such jobs as fixing the plumbing, painting the house, or wiring for an extra light in the basement or garage. Now it applies to using Formica, the popular laminated plastic for covering kitchen cabinet sink tops, bathroom Vanities and table and counter tops. The city folks find this an easy and satisfying new experience.

Shusterman's, 6629 Atlantic Ave., knew people would take fast to the idea of installing Formica themselves. That's why they recently became a Formica outlet offering a nice selection of colors and patterns from this popular line of laminated plastics. They

Painting Assn. Says to Check On Contractor

The Painting & Decorating Contractors Assn. is cooperating with the Better Business Bureau and the Contractors State Licensing Board in an effort to protect home owners from unlicensed, incompetent persons preying upon the public through misleading advertising regarding painting.

A call to the association office will enable any home owner to ascertain if a person is licensed as a painting contractor. If a person is licensed and also is a member of this association, we are in a position to assure the home owner that the contractor is properly insured, a spokesman says. The association spokesman voiced concerned over calls received from home owners who have received literature through the mails advertising a metal siding. The question most frequently asked is, "Does this type of siding really eliminate painting expense?" The association points out that when painting a home, the cost of painting the siding is quite often less than 50 per cent of the total cost of the paint job. The overhang, trim, windows and doors still have to be painted periodically. The overhang, and trim take up the larger part of the total time consumed in painting the building.

also stock the Formica Contact Bond Cement you'll need to hold the Formica in place. With it comes an applicator. The other tools you'll need are few and simple. Chances are you already have them. Formica cuts easily with a wood saw to the desired shape. After cleaning the surface on which the Formica is to be applied you spread on the adhesive and let it dry for about 40 minutes. Then you position the Formica and roll it down tight with an ordinary rolling pin.

Shusterman's say: "This is about all there is to installing Formica yourself. When anyone purchases a sheet of Formica we give them a folder which tells the step-by-step procedure to follow, including finishing edges and replacing the sink. How to do it pictures illustrate this folder which means you can't miss."

Longer Hair Now Favored

Long hair is back! So says beauty hair stylist Mr. Don of the Casa de Beaute Salon, 210 Heartwell Bldg., 1st and Pine Ave., Long Beach.

Furthermore, he added, now, before the holidays, is the time to become accustomed to these new hair styles and be ready for the occasion.

So, get busy now girls and consult your social calendar, and book all of your appointments through the first of the year, as most of the salons will be very busy from now on.

Men and women with scalp troubles are advised to see Susan Rush, scalp specialist in this salon, to rid their scalp of unsightly dandruff. Have that well-groomed appearance at all times and have that "no snow on your shoulders" look.

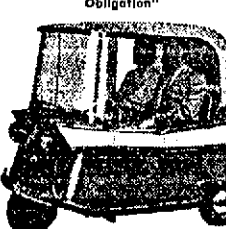

Their special now is a haircut for only 1 cent with a shampoo and set for the regular price of $3, or $3.01 for both. This is really a great buy.

36 Hurt in N.Y. Subway Collision

NEW YORK (AP)—Thirty-six persons were injured Saturday when a Manhattan-bound subway train rammed into a work train halted in a Brooklyn tunnel.

Only one person, John Cinque, 38, who was on the work train, was seriously hurt. He underwent surgery to save his right leg. Of the other injured, 22 were taken to hospitals, where they were treated and released.

The three-car passenger train, a BMT Seabeach local, had just left the 8th Ave. station in the Bay Ridge section when it crashed into the six-car work train at about 20 miles an hour.

Garner to Mark 91st Birthday

UVALDE, Tex. (UPI)—John Nance Garner celebrates a quiet 91st birthday today and vows he won't have another big party until he reaches the ripe old age of 100.

The white-haired former vice president is confident he will attain the century mark, and attributes his longevity to his daily custom of eating grapefruit.

Nothing was scheduled for Garner's birthday except visits by friends at his modest white frame home, and a traditional birthday cake.

New Cuba Law Hits Oil Firms

HAVANA (AP)—The government adopted legislation Saturday requiring oil exploration and exploitation firms to work their Cuban claims or lose them.

Petroleum executives said the new law appears meant to force suspension of operations by most large companies.

The law also imposes a 60 per cent royalty on production, based on commercial rates; establishes refinery production quotas, and limits exploration concessions to about 19,000 acres, far below acreages held by some firms.

U. N. Votes Ban on A-Bomb Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations General Assembly voted 60-to-1 Saturday to appeal to all powers to stop nuclear weapons test voluntarily.

The lone vote against a 23-power Afro-Asian resolution was cast by France, which plans to hold its first atomic test in the Sahara Desert soon. The United States and Britain abstained.

The resolution appeals to the United States, Russia and Britain, now negotiating a permanent nuclear test ban at Geneva, to continue their voluntary suspension of tests and asks "other states to desist from such tests."

Morals Charge Jails Johnnie Ray

DETROIT (AP)—Sob-singer Johnnie Ray, 32, Saturday was ordered to stand trial Dec. 1 on a morals charge of accosting and soliciting a policeman.

Ray was released under $500 bond after he pleaded innocent at his arraignment in Detroit Recorder's (criminal) Court. He had been held overnight in jail.

The singer paid a $25 fine when he pleaded guilty in the same court to the same charge June 5, 1951. In each instance a policeman accused him of making an indecent proposal.

"I can only say that the whole thing is a complete misunderstanding," Ray told newsmen.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Parcel post rates won't go up until Feb. 1, well after the Christmas mailing rush is over.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced Saturday the effective date for the increased rates that will average 17.1 per cent and net about 88 million dollars a year.

Inquest Planned in Shotgun Death

TORONTO, Ont. (AP)—Canadian authorities announced Saturday there will be an inquest into the shooting last Wednesday of Harry Anderson, former General Motors vice president.

No date has yet been fixed, but it probably will be within two weeks in Sombra Township.

Anderson was shot in a duck blind on the St. Clair River by former General Motors President Harlow Curtice, a friend of long standing. Curtice said his friend moved into his line of fire as he was shooting at a duck.

Enraged Hill Raps Penalty Sets Up UCLA TD in 4th Period

'Better Show in Films, or Else!'

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Another Southern California football controversy flared today in the wake of Troy's 10-3 upset loss to UCLA Saturday as bitter Jess Hill, SC's athletic director, raged at officials in their dressing quarters: "That pass interference better show up in the movies, or else. I just hope for your sakes that the movies prove you right!"

Hill referred to a pass interference play called against little Jerry Traynham, SC halfback, in the waning minutes of the traditional game. The play cost the Trojans 46 yards and gave UCLA a first down on SC's seven-yard line.

Three plays later the Bruins had their winning touchdown—and SC went down to its first defeat of the season!

Hill, alongside this reporter, charged into the officials' quarters in a frenzied mood.

Official 20 Yards From Scene

"I don't see how such a play could have been called by an official 20 or 30 yards from the scene," raged Hill at the assembled officials, "especially when another official closer to the scene made no call at all."

"This is a heckuva way to lose a game and wreck an unbeaten season—by a 46-yard penalty!"

After Hill stormed from the room, this reporter attempted to secure the name of the official who had called the controversial play, which will be recalled by Trojans and Bruins for many years.

Not one official would even mention the man who called the penalty, until one linesman timidly pointed to a fellow next to this writer.

"I can't tell you my name," steamed the "fingered" official. "You'll have to get it from the referee."

When referee Jimmy Cain, still suffering from a withering blast levelled at him by Notre Dame coach Joe Kuharich after the Cal-Irish game at Berkeley, finally sneaked into the room, he also refused to divulge the official's name.

'Fair Call,' Claims Field Judge

Finally, he whispered to this reporter, "We don't like to make our officials scapegoats, but the man who called the play is George Wilson. We don't want to make a big issue out of this, either."

Issue or not, Wilson—the field judge—would not comment on the play that beat SC, other than to say "it was a fair call."

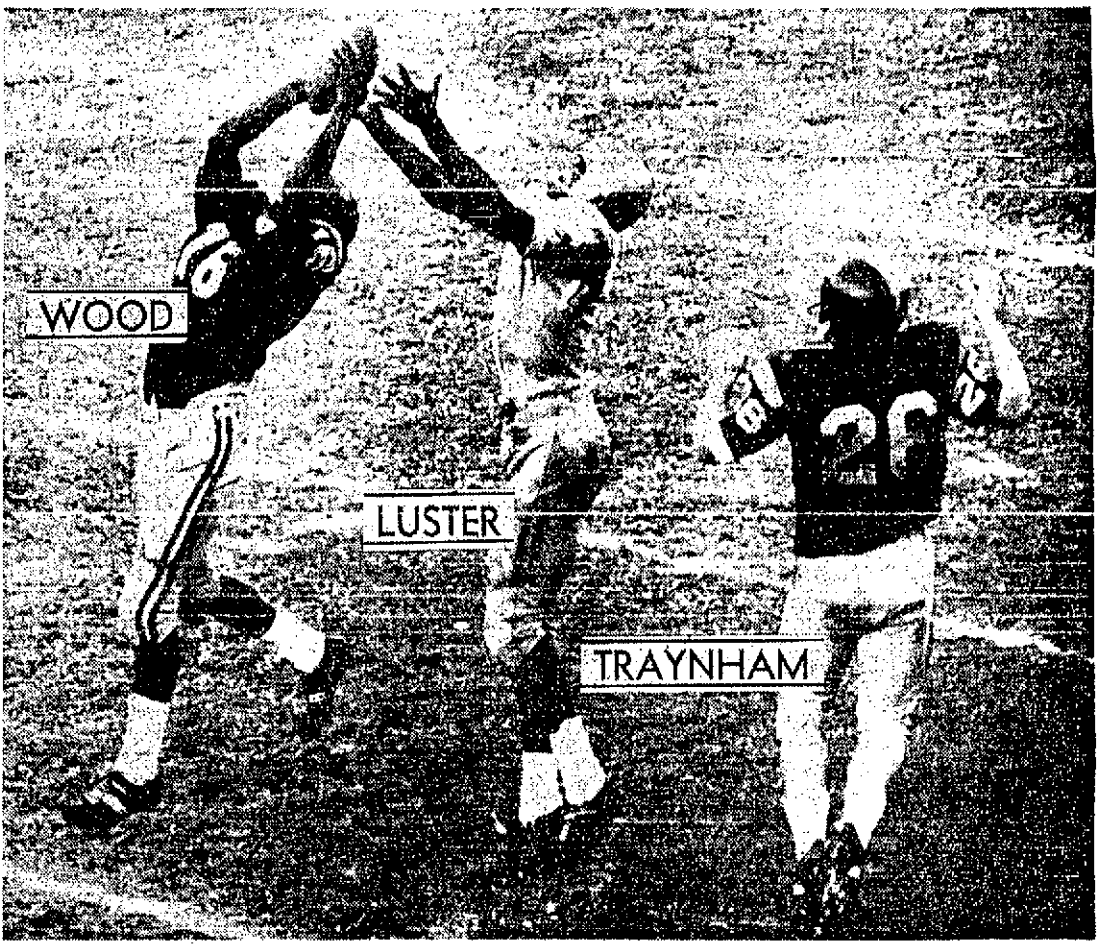

Willie Wood, who intercepted the pass intended for Marv Luster on the controversial play, was irate about the call.

"Traynham went on one side of Luster and I went on the other side," explained Wood. "We had Luster sandwiched between us and I don't see how Jerry could have interfered with Luster because Luster went up with me and was at least a yard away."

Dejected Traynham said he thought he didn't touch the Bruin.

"I was shocked when the official ran up to me and yelled, 'you grabbed him,' then tugged on my jersey," sighed Traynham. "I don't remember grabbing anybody, although we all were pretty close together. I didn't argue because I knew it wouldn't help."

"I was especially surprised at the penalty because an official who was closer to the play didn't even call it."

CONTROVERSIAL PLAY
Willie Wood of SC snatches long pass intended for Bruins' Marv Luster on Trojan seven-yard line. However, pass interference was called on SC's Jerry Traynham and play went for 46-yard gain for UCLA. Bruins scored three plays later to upset SC, 10-3.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Badgers in Rose Bowl Date With Washington

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Limp-legged quarterback Dale Hackbart ran and passed Wisconsin to an 11-7 win over Minnesota Saturday clinching the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl invitation.

The Badgers gained their first undisputed Big Ten title since 1912 and sure selection to the Rose Bowl in a last-period, come from behind surge sparked by Hackbart's 51-yard pass play to Al Schoonover.

Wisconsin will get a chance to erase the 1953 stigma of being the only Big Ten team in recent history to be defeated in the Rose Bowl when it meets Washington, at Pasadena, Jan. 1. Washington appeared sure of the Western bid by blanking Washington State 20-0.

Until the last nine minutes of play, Wisconsin was on the ropes and the title appeared to be going to Michigan State, which rounded out its season last week with a 4-2 record.

The Gophers, who were to end in the Big Ten cellar with only one conference victory, were ahead of Wisconsin, 7-3.

That was when Hackbart, a senior who has been a Badger standout for two seasons, lifted Wisconsin to the title with an 80-yard scoring parade. He scored the touchdown himself on a SC's dreams of a No. 1 national ranking were turned into a nightmare Saturday when UCLA sent the Trojans crashing from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 10-point surge in the fourth quarter that carried them to a rousing 10-3 conquest before 85,917 breathless fans in the Coliseum.

The blow that brought an end to SC's eight-game win streak was struck at 6:54 of the final period when full-back Ray Smith ripped three yards through left guard for the touchdown that broke a 3-3 tie.

But the play that broke the backs of the Trojans came less than a minute earlier when a pass interference penalty gave the Bruins a first down on the SC seven.

It was a 46-yard penalty and came after Troy's Willie Wood had intercepted Bill Kilmer's long pass intended for Marv Luster. The call immediately touched off a wild controversy.

Wood and Jerry Traynham were defending against Luster on the seven when all three leaped into the air. Wood came down with the ball, but field judge George Wilson came running onto the scene signalling a penalty. He singled out Traynham as guilty of interference.

Three Stabs at Line Bring Score

Smith covered the final seven yards to the game-winning score in three stabs at the line, and Ivory Jones kicked the conversion.

Five minutes earlier, Jones booted a 31-yard field goal to knot the score after SC's Don Zachik had given Troy a 3-0 lead in the first period with a 27-yard kick.

In between the two field goals, the Trojans muffed three scoring opportunities. They were held for downs on the 22 in the first quarter; were stopped on the nine-yard line by the halftime gun, and missed a first down on the Bruin four by three inches at the outset of the third quarter.

UCLA hammered its way to the very chalk line of the Trojan end zone in the second quarter before being held for downs on the one-foot line.

The Trojans desperately tried to mount a counter-attack after falling behind 10-3 in the final quarter, but the touchdown and two-point conversion that could have pulled the game out of the fire was never within their reach.

Kilmer, who didn't play for two and one-half quarters because of an injured ankle, came off the bench in the third period to lead the Bruins to the brilliant triumph which earned them a tie for first place in AAWU standings with SC and Washington. All three wound up with 3-1 conference records.

Bruins Win Third in Succession

UCLA's seasonal record now stands at 4-3-1 following its third straight win while SC is 8-1.

UCLA was hanging on for dear life until Kilmer came in to mount the Bruins' two scoring drives and force the Trojans to push the "panic button" in a frantic effort to catch up.

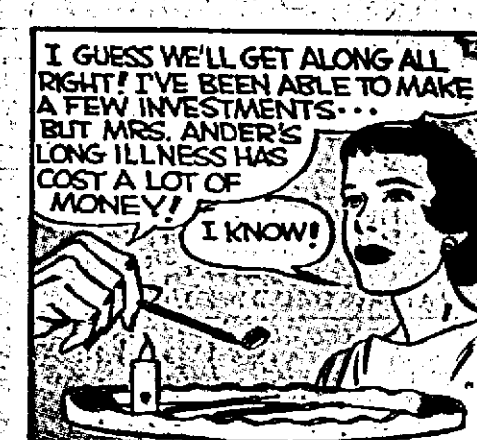

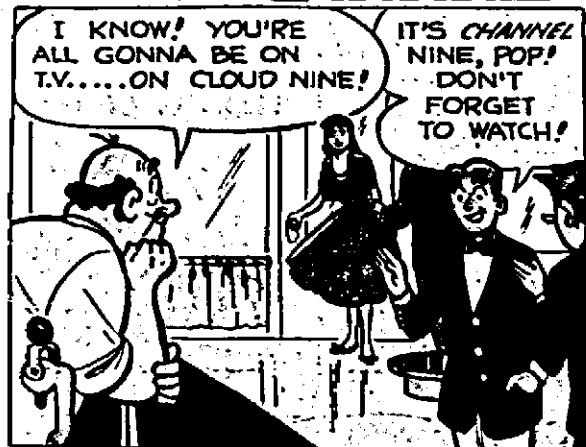

Southern California blew a tremendous opportunity to crack the game wide open in the opening moments of the third quarter by missing a first down on the Bruin four by inches.

The Trojans took the second half kickoff on their own 18 and rolled 78 yards before the determined Bruin defense held. Traynham missed the first down by an

Chargers Just a Laughing Stock

If they continue along their present path, the L. A. Chargers of the new pro American Football League may become the biggest bust in the history of U. S. sports!

As a result of a ridiculous turn-of-events during the past few days, the Chargers right now are the biggest laughing stock in sports that Southern California has seen in many years.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Why, the Three Stooges couldn't have concocted a more ridiculous slapstick comedy situation!

Only two men in the Charger organization at this time know the first thing about football — or any sport, for that matter. One is Leahy, the other is part-time publicist George Goodale, a familiar figure in the Southland for many years and the old L. A. Angel public relations boss.

But they're not the real operators of the club. At this time, both are nothing more than "yes" men for wealthy Baron Hilton and his entourage of hangers-on. If practical sports men like Leahy and Goodale are not allowed to take the reins, the Chargers will remain like the show window dummy decked out in extravagant duds which are too impractical for anyone to buy.

GOODALE IS only one-half of Hilton's "public relations" team. The other is a Hollywood publicity outfit known as the Lou Smith Agency. The Madison Ave. type agency was supposed to have contacted the press regarding the important announcement of McBride's hiring.

Goodale, as per schedule, broke the news at the sportscaster's luncheon Thursday in L. A. BUT — the Lou Smith boys "forgot" to inform any newspapers at the same time, thus every newspaper in Southern California received the information second-hand.

When the Smith boys got around to "breaking" the news to the papers, they put the frosting on their lemon cake by simply handing out a release as stiff and formal as a deceased Eskimo in a tux.

The Chargers better leave the Smith boys at home when they sit down to draft college players shortly. Lou and his gang of how tie crewcuts might wind up drafting 10 Ubangis and a dozen Aborigines!

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

A major beer company is ready to chuck in $30,000 (or more) to sponsor a PGA golf tourney on the January, 1960, dates vacated by the Tijuana Open. The company wants to land the tourney either in San Francisco or Long Beach. The brewers are hot to go — and is anybody around here listening?

Note to Mac Epley, who was wondering in his column a few days ago if those of us who still backed the Rams were loyal or just stubborn: Who's loyal? We're just like the horse player who keeps losing one race after another, but who continues to plunge in an attempt to get even!

Are you wondering why Bob McBride quit the Chargers after only 24 hours? A well-grounded suspicion is that he learned (too late) that the real coach would be Frank Leahy, NOT the guy hired as "coach."

Long Beach's Julie Besco was absent Friday night because of a business commitment when the '34 SC football team was honored at Troy's annual grid banquet. Julie, one of the great Troy gridders, was end and captain of Howard Jones' 1934 group.

The remark in Sports Illustrated that "watching films of Mike McKeever injure Steve Bates was like viewing a movie of Richard Widmark assaulting a cripple," has infuriated Don Clark. "Nothing has disturbed me so much since I came to SC," raged Don this week. "A man who writes junk like that must be warped!" I'll buy that statement.

Huskies in Rose Bowl

SEATTLE (UPI)—Bob Schloredt, Washington's one-eyed magician, rolled up 209 yards running and passing Saturday as he led the Huskies into the Rose Bowl with a 20-0 victory over arch-rival Washington State before the largest crowd in Washington history.

Schloredt made 111 yards rushing and 98 more with his passing arm. He scored one touchdown himself on a one-yard quarterback sneak and played a key part in Washington's other two scoring drives.

A CROWD of 56,000 gave him a standing ovation when he left the game midway in the final period.

Schloredt paced an 80-yard drive that resulted in a touchdown when Don McKeta bulldozed his way into the end zone from the Cougar four on the first play of the second period.

Schloredt's own score came in the third period to climax a 53-yard march. Washington's last score was in that same quarter when Washington State was called for pass interference on its own one-yard line. Fullback Joe Jones cracked over on the next play.

Washington threatened twice more in the first half, penetrating to the Cougar 22 once and to the 20 the second time. Both times, the Husky attack bogged down and George Fleming's field goal attempts went wide.

Washington's defense was magnificent. The hard-charging Husky line, led by Bill Kinnune, Kurt Gagner and Chuck Allen, held Keith Lincoln, the Cougars' great triple-threat back, in check throughout the afternoon. He managed only 33 yards running and two yards passing, but his booming punts averaged 44 yards.

The Husky defense stopped the Cougar attack so well that Washington State did not make a first down in the second half until the third period was more than 13 minutes gone.

THE VICTORY climaxed Washington's greatest season in modern times and assured the Huskies of their first bona fide trip to the Rose Bowl since 1937. The Huskies' opponent next January 1 will be Wisconsin, which sewed up the Big Ten title with its victory over Minnesota.

Washington State's statistics: First downs 10, Rushing yards 106, Passing yards 106, Total yards 212, Fumbles lost 1, Punting 3, Yards penalized 15.

ANDREWS IN TKO VICTORY AT OLYMPIC

By FRANK HARVEY

Paul Andrews, promising young heavyweight, battered 6-7 giant Otis Fuller about the ring at will Saturday night to score a technical knockout at 2:07 of the seventh round in the featured Olympic Auditorium fight.

Fuller, a willing puncher, threw all he had against Andrews but the latter managed to avoid most of the punches thrown by the wild-swinging Otis and appeared to be carrying the fight.

Andrews really opened up in the seventh, however, and had Fuller floundering around the ring in confusion when referee John Thomas stepped in and stopped the one-sided affair.

Fresno St. Rips L.A. State, 21-0, Cops CCAA Title

FRESNO (UPI)—The Fresno State Bulldogs scored three touchdowns in the second period Saturday to defeat Los Angeles State 21-0 for their second consecutive California Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

The victory gave Fresno a 5-0 conference record to 3-2 for the second place Diablos. Halfback Dale Messer went over for the first score on a 12-yard romp through the middle. The scoring drive totaled 57 yards with Messer getting 36 of the yards.

Fresno's statistics: First downs 10, Rushing yards 106, Passing yards 106, Total yards 212, Fumbles lost 1, Punting 3, Yards penalized 15.

Ducks Surprised by Beavers, 15-7

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon, the line, going over for the State's fumbling Beavers got off to another frustrating start, then pulled themselves together Saturday to upset mighty Oregon, 15-7, in a climax to a previously dismal season.

The Beavers fumbled the first two times they had the ball, presenting Oregon with a 7-0 lead after only 6½ minutes of play. Then came the comeback.

The Beavers, who started the game with a 2-7 record compared to Oregon's 8-1, drove 52 yards for a touchdown and added a 30-yard field goal to take a 9-7 lead by halftime.

DON KASSO, a spraddled halfback who seemed not to be bothered by the slippery footing that hampered everyone else, scored State's first touchdown and set up a clinching fourth-quarter touchdown with a 27-yard run.

Kasso rambled 17 yards for his first score, turning left end, then spinning from the arms of five tacklers before reaching the end zone.

In the final quarter, after halfback Amos Marsh intercepted a pass in Oregon territory, Kasso again turned end, cut back and raced 27 yards to the Oregon 4.

From there, fullback Jim Stinette took three cracks at

YALE FALLS TO HARVARD

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)

Clever quarterbacking by Charley Ravenel and hard running by Chet Boullis paced fiery Harvard to a 35-6 triumph over Yale Saturday. The victory gave the Crimson the Big Three title for the first time since 1954.

Harvard tallied four times in the final half after Ravenel opened the gates by consistently outsmarting Yale's defense. He tallied twice himself.

A near capacity crowd of 66,053 thrilled or moaned as Harvard scored on an 85-yard pass and run, and runs of one and six by Ravenel, 14 by Boullis and 31 by Al Cullen.

yards to go as the game ended with 90,000 fans in hysteria.

Trailing 14-0 at halftime, Stanford came ripping back to deadlock the count at the end of the third quarter and go ahead 17-14 on Skip Face's field goal from the 23 early in the fourth period.

Then the bruising Bear ground game piloted by quarterback Wayne Crow pushed the Stanford line aside on a 68-yard march. Jerry Scattini romped over from the two.

But it was Norman who was the hero. The nation's leading passer completed 34 out of 39 for 401 yards.

The other national leaders on Stanford's team, Face and Chris Burford, also fared well.

BURFORD upped his receptions for the year to 60 with 11, and Face, who had 89 points, scored 11 more.

California scored twice in the second period. The first came on a 48-yard pass from Crow to end Gael Barsotti. The next was a pass from Crow to Billy Patton from the 10.

During that first half Crow completed eight for eight for 151 yards. Norman had 16 for 18 for 182 yards.

But Norman went wild in the second half. He set up the first Stanford touchdown with a 45-yard pass to end Ben Robinson. Face scored from the three.

STANFORD tied it on a 10-yard pass from Norman to Burford, and then went in front with Face's field goal from the 23.

LBCC Bows to San Diego, 12-0

By JIM HANCHETT

SAN DIEGO — San Diego JC's speed and Long Beach City College's lack of it spelled a 12-0 victory for the Knights Saturday night in the Metropolitan Conference football finale in Balboa Stadium.

The Knights struck twice through the air for touchdowns and each time it was an extra burst of speed by the receiver that proved the difference.

Late in the second quarter, end Neal Petties got a step behind the Long Beach secondary, reeled in quarterback Bobby Jackson's pass on the two and stepped into the end zone. The 33-yard aerial came five plays after San Diego recovered a 10-yard LBCC punt on the Viking 43.

ON THE first play of the fourth quarter, halfback Clarence Adams grabbed a pass from quarterback John Tomlinson on the five, ran away from one tackler and bowled over another pair as he went into the end zone.

The pass was good for 19 yards and it capped a 63-yard drive which began when guard Henry Bishop recovered Morris Hodgson's fumble.

Long Beach was severely handicapped by the absence of its top three halfbacks. Hodgson and Ray Snyder averaged only 3.2 and 2.6 yards per carry, respectively. The Vikings' lack of speed forced them to punch up the middle and the Knight line did not give way.

THE NORSEMEN drove into San Diego territory only twice.

Reserve fullback Dan Powell broke loose for 25 and 18 yards on two draw plays to move the Vikings to the San Diego 23. However, the half-time gun ended the drive.

By JEROME HALL
If you want the UCLA players' opinion, SC just isn't capable of standing up to a team that is capable.
Waiting through the Bruin dressing room after the 10-3 conquest of the No. 2 ranked Trojans was the conclusion that all it takes to beat SC is a good job of blocking and tackling.
"We didn't do anything new or surprising," said Bruin coach Bill Barnes. Though he didn't say it, he left the impression that he and his assistants didn't think it was necessary to fool the Trojans—just necessary to knock them down.

Harry Baldwin, Bruin center who has been an ironman all year, said it was simply a case of "hitting them harder than they hit us."

"AT THE END," said Baldwin, "they (SC) were all pooped out. After they came out for the second half and made that one drive (it went 76 yards to the Bruin 6) they ran out of gas. They were really bushed."
It may have been the excitement, but the UCLA players did not appear tired and the team trainer said there were no injuries.

Ray Smith, fullback and team captain (who didn't lose to the Trojans in four years of frosh and varsity competition), said "I'm not even tired. They didn't hit any harder than anybody else we played this year."
Ray, who played more rock-sock football than anybody else on the field and proved he's one of the finest blockers in Bruin history, called it "a team victory." He was completely correct.

BARNES SAID he thought "the whole line played real well."
There was not a Bruin hero. Even Bill Kilmer, who injected the passing threat that proved the difference, was just part of the "team effort."

Kilmer completed six of 19 passes for 76 yards and he added 20 rushing. He didn't play in the first half because he was slowed by a bruised ankle, but Barnes decided at the intermission to shoot the works.
"I told Kilmer to go in there and throw the ball," said Barnes. And throw it he did. He passed on 6 of the first 10 UCLA plays of the third quarter.

Bruin blocking back Ivory Jones, who kicked the field goal, said he was not nervous. "It was just like practice. Everything went perfect. They opened up a big hole for me and the ball went right through the middle."
It was Jones' first field goal try in college ball. He kicked two in jaycee (at Santa Monica last year) and three in high school.

BARNES, IN A gentlemanly gesture, lauded SC as "a real great football team." He said he never expected his team to hold SC without a touchdown, but said he and his players felt all week long they were going to win.

Barnes said he did not see the disputed pass interference play that set up the touchdown. "I wasn't looking that way," he commented, "but someone standing beside me said 'that's interference' and when I looked the official was calling it."
Bruin end Marv Luster said he was held by a Troy defender (he didn't know whether it was Willie Wood or Jerry Traynham) as he made his final "cut" in the pass pattern—not on the jump for the pass.

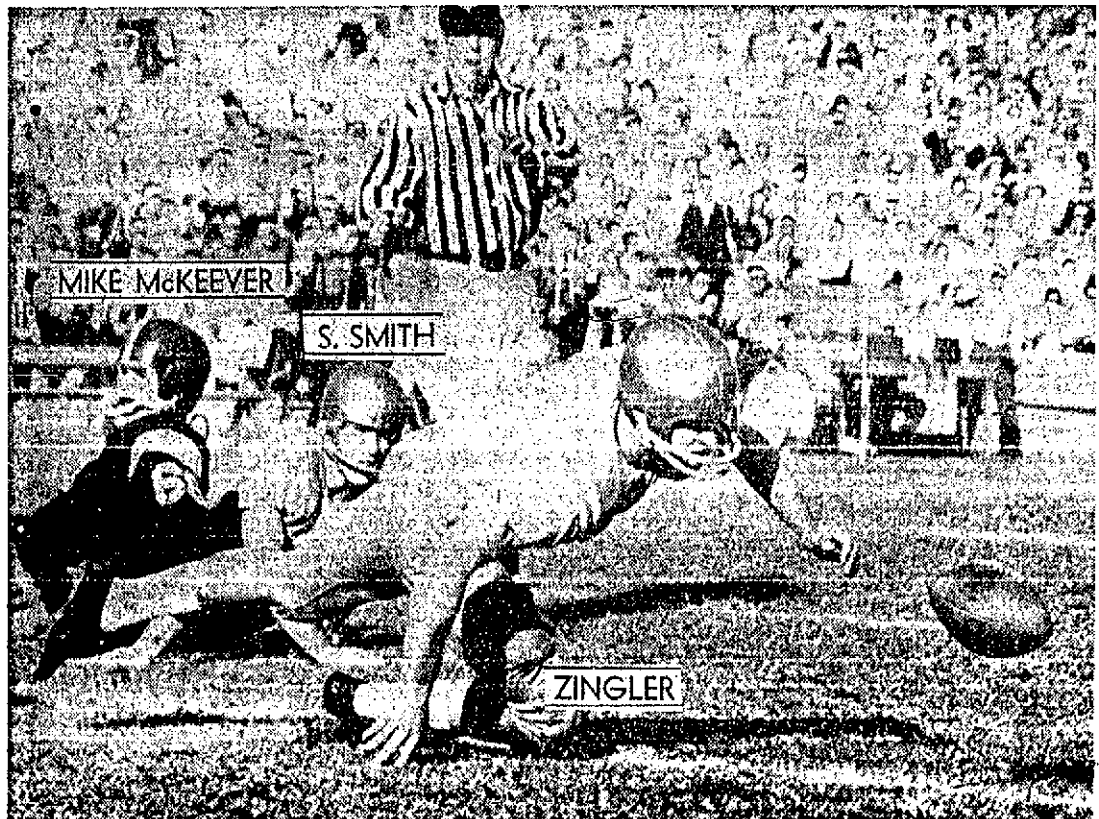

Barnes revealed that he did not set up any special strategy for handling SC terror Mike McKeever. "We played him just like any other player," said Barnes. "No one special was assigned to him. It just depended on which way the play was going." Mike made just one unassisted tackle all day. Brother Marlin made four.
Ray Smith commented, "We didn't even know the McKeevers were in there today."
But the McKeevers knew they'd been in a ball game!

ELIOT RETIRES ON 28-0 SHOCKER

Inspired Illinois Routs Wildcats

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Inspired Illinois scored in every period to shatter Northwestern's Big Ten title and Rose Bowl bid, 28-0, Saturday, climaxing the 18-season Illinois coaching career of Ray Eliot.

The Big Ten title went to Wisconsin with its 11-7 victory over Minnesota.

FULLBACK Bill Brown scored two touchdowns in the one-sided victory which marked Illinois' second successive triumph over a conference championship contender. Last Saturday, the Illini scored on the last play of the game to defeat Wisconsin, 9-6.

Although the Rose Bowl nod usually goes to the conference champion, Eliot's Illini, with a final 4-2-1 league record, could be considered in the bowl ballot to be announced Sunday.

Eliot, who has said he'd retire as coach at the end of this season, was carried off the field on the shoulders of his jubilant players.

Northwestern, after winning six in a row, bowed in three consecutive Big Ten games, losing to Wisconsin, Michigan State and Illinois.

IN THE FIRST two periods, Illinois produced touchdowns on one-yard plunges by quarterback Johnny Easterbrook and Brown. In the third period, speedy halfback Johnny Counts scored on a 17-yard run.

Brown's second touchdown came in the final quarter on a 69-yard run from scrimmage.

Northwestern's farthest advance was to the Illinois 17 in the third period.

Penn St. Bows to Panthers

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Pittsburgh turned loose sophomore sensations Bob Clemens and Fred Cox on touchdown runs of 35 and 86 yards Saturday to upset Bowl-bound Penn State, 22-7.

It was a long afternoon for the fifth-ranked Penn Staters, who came here with a Liberty Bowl bid in hand and with hopes of improving their 8-1 season record.

IN A PERSONAL duel between Pitt's Ivan Tonic and State's Richie Lucas, the Pitt signal caller completed three of four passes and ran for 13 yards. Lucas, jinxed in two previous appearances at Pitt Stadium, hit on only five of 14 passes, had one interception and gained nine yards rushing.

But it was the ground-chewing combine of Clemens and Cox which spearheaded Pitt drives that hammered Penn State's once proud defense for a staggering 287 yards rushing.

Izo's Passes Nip Iowa

IOWA CITY (AP)—Notre Dame, struggling through one of its worst seasons, upset Iowa 20-19 Saturday on the long-range passing of senior George Izo.

Izo exploited Iowa's defense with scoring passes of 29, 45 and 56 yards.

The longest of the three, to George Sefcik, came with 3 minutes and 25 seconds remaining in the game and after Iowa stopped the Irish inches from a touchdown.

Monty Stickles, who caught a first quarter touchdown toss of 29 yards, kicked the extra point which won the game.

Izo's second touchdown pass to Pat Heenan, brought the Irish up to 19-13 at halftime.

The second quarter was less than three minutes old when Iowa burst into a 19-7 lead on an 80-yard touchdown run by Jerry Mauren with a punt, and a 14-yard scoring run by Bob Jeter.

Iowa, closing out the season before 58,500 fans, turned two Izo passes into touchdowns before Mauren broke free behind good blocking.

Don Horn opened the scoring with a one-yard plunge after Ray Jauch brought back one of Izo's passes 61 yards to the Notre Dame 22.

Late in the first period it was substitute halfback Donald Tucker who picked off an Izo toss and ran it 33 yards to the Irish 25.

Jeter climaxed the five plays needed to score by spurring the last 14 yards at the outset of the second period.

Sooners Win 12th Straight Big 8 Crown

NORMAN (AP)—Oklahoma's bruising ground game carried too much power for outmanned Iowa State Saturday and the Sooners rolled to an easy 35-12 decision to capture their 12th straight Big Eight Conference football championship.

The Cyclones fashioned a 62-yard march at the start of the third quarter for a touchdown to keep their hopes alive as Oklahoma held a 21-12 lead at this point. PURDUE NIPS INDIANA ON FIELD GOAL

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Quarterback Bernie Allen kicked a 39-yard field goal, his first in five attempts this year, and Purdue defeated its ancient football rivals at Indiana, 10-7, Saturday.

Buckeyes Upset by Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Michigan reached into its storied past for some old-fashioned power and dazzle that stumbled Ohio State, 23-14, Saturday before 90,093 chilled spectators.

This 56th meeting, meaningless except for prestige, turned into a personal tug of war between Michigan's Stan Noskin and Ohio's Roger Detrich.

TIME AFTER time Noskin came through with clutch passes on third down. He passed for Michigan's first score, ran for the second and set up the third with a pair of daring, third-down passes.

Darrell Harper provided the insurance with a 29-yard field goal with 5½ minutes to play.

OPEN HOUSE TODAY AT NEW PLANT

'Alamitos Primed for Opener

Quarter horse racing gets under way Monday at Los Alamitos Race Course in the rich setting of a brand new, modern multi-million-dollar racing plant.

First post time for the 26-day meeting which runs daily, except Sunday, through Dec. 22, is 12:45 p.m. The early post time will also be held on Thanksgiving Day and the four Saturdays when nine races will be run. On all other days, first post will be 1 p.m.

The modern, spacious addition to Los Alamitos will be open to the public today from 1 to 5 p.m. Visitors will be free to roam throughout the 253,000 square foot grandstand and, as an added attraction, track president Frank Vessels Sr. announced that the horses running at the meeting will hold their workouts in the afternoon instead of in the early morning hours.

The richest purse program, $409,600, has attracted the top quarter horse stars to the meeting and many of them will be running in the opening-day feature, the $5,000 Clabbertown G. at 350 yards.

Heading the list of major horses out to get an early dividend is Marion Seward's quick Miss Louton, the star of the spring meeting, who will be ridden by the expert veteran, Jay Fishburn.

Among the leading challengers to Miss Louton, is Guy Purinton's No Butt. The winner of the recent Pomona Championship will be ridden by Ken Chapman, the 1957 Los Alamitos jockey champion.

Others gunning for a share of the $5,000 include Western Stable's Triple Lady with L. G. Littell up, Donald K. Brokaw's Clabbert's Win, and Eastern Maiden, Pana Bar, Double

Bid, Tidy Too and Lip Request.

The Clabbertown G. is the first of the stakes races for three-year-olds and up leading to the $25,000 Autumn Championship to be run Dec. 19. Miss Louton is taking dead aim on this prize, for if she wins the Autumn, she will be the first horse in the history of Los Alamitos to capture both the spring and fall crowns.

Long-time patrons of the Los Alamitos track will be amazed and pleased at the new grandstand, which makes Los Alamitos the most modern track in the west and ranks the course as the third major racing plant in California.

The mammoth plant will seat 5,000 in individual theater type chairs and accommodate 25,000. The plant contains every modern facility for the fans' convenience, including four escalators to whisk them to all levels.

Senator Frost Wins, Marks Fall as Harness Meet Ends

The Western Harness Racing Association concluded the most successful season in its 13-year history Saturday at Hollywood Park as a crowd of 17,425 helped establish new marks in both seasonal total and daily average attendance.

The huge crowd was treated to one of the most remarkable two-horse harness races in history as Senator Frost won the American Trotting Classic raceoff in track record time of 1:57 3/5.

Dick Buxton drove Senator Frost and he climaxed a big day by winning the Sunset Trot with Fisherman in 1:58. It is believed by harness historians that no man has

Progressing Surprises in Rich Futurity

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Wheatley Stable's Progressing, a failure in four previous stakes this year, Saturday won the $117,320 Pimlico Futurity.

With jockey Hedley Woodhouse in the saddle, Progressing scored by one length over All Hands and Catapult.

Progressing paid more for third than he did to win. The unusual pay-off was $19.20 to win, $10 to place and a whopping $21.20 to show.

CAIN HOY Stable's, Bald Eagle blazed to a track record at Aqueduct in winning the $85,200 Gallant Fox Handicap by almost two lengths.

Jockey Manuel Ycaza rode Bald Eagle over the gruelling mile and five eighths in the sparkling time of 2:41 flat to clip one and three-fifths seconds off the previous record set by Round Table.

Bald Eagle paid $4.30, $2.80 and $2.50 across the board. Whodunit, with Conn McCreary up, returned $5.60 and $4.00 while Whitley, with Eric Guerin riding, paid $7.30.

C. V. WHITNEY'S favored Refute nosed out Shimmy in the stretch to win by a nose in the $11,200 San Jose Handicap for 2-year-olds at Bay Meadows.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Alturas Lake to Rival Sun Valley

Paul Hiller, assistant civil engineer with the Long Beach Water Department, recently has become associated with an Idaho project, into which he is putting his heart and soul.

That may seem like a broad statement, but Hiller primarily is an outdoorsman and the project in which he is interested concerns development of Alturas Lake Lodge, 43 miles north of Sun Valley, Idaho, and just two miles off Hwy. 93.

Hiller joined Berkeley H. Curtis, Reno investor and developer, who has been responsible for some rather startling land changes in the Sierra Nevada and also in Nevada, particularly around Silver Springs.

Together, they hope to make Alturas Lake one of the greatest recreational spots in Idaho, perhaps even rivaling Sun Valley for summer and winter sports.

They bought the 255-acre tract from Hugh Bradford, who filed a patent on the land in 1912. President Wilson signed the land patent and Bradford's property became the first such acreage to be developed privately within the Sawtooth National Forest.

ALTURAS LAKE LIES at an elevation of 7,000 feet. Perkins Lake is nearby and Lake River, which feeds both, then flows into the Salmon River. Both lakes are noted for rainbow, golden, brook, cutthroat, Dolly Varden, steelhead and salmon, plus a strange variety of land-locked salmon, often called redfish.

For the hunters there are elk, deer, bear, bighorn sheep and Rocky Mountain goats, plus such feathered species as Canadian honkers, pheasants, duck, quail and sagehen.

While Bradford had the property, he started the lodge and constructed some crude cabins. Hiller says that the lodge will be rebuilt and refurbished, with 14 rooms. The 15 cabins will be reconstructed, with modern sanitary facilities and individual showers and baths.

The property is being subdivided for 1,500 lots, where building will be restricted to structures that will enhance the natural beauty of the area; all of which lies almost within the shadows of the famed Sawtooth Range.

Plans also are being made for construction of ski runs that should be open by the winter of 1960. An 18-hole golf course will be laid out adjacent to Alturas Lake.

HILLER MADE A TRIP to Alturas just as the first snow was falling last month and caught four limits of trout, all of which exceeded 13 inches. He would be there fishing yet if that first storm had held off into December.

Alturas Lake Lodge will be opened in March or April, depending on weather conditions this winter. After that opening, the lodge will be run on a year-around basis by Buddy Jordan and Victor Carichner, both rich in experience as hosts and caterers.

Such fantastic places as these surround Alturas: Shoshone Indian Caves, the wildly plunging cascades of the River of No Return (Salmon), Idaho's Miniature Grand Canyon, Craters of the Moon National Monument and Shoshone Falls.

Alturas will be accessible by automobile, railroad and airplane. Limousine service is planned for those railroading to Ketchum, planning to twin falls.

Information on Alturas may be had by calling Hiller at Geneva 8-3976. He lives at 333 Claremont Ave.

Tolan Joins Turkey Night Midget Field

A pair of former national midget champions, Johnnie Toland of Norwalk, and Leroy Warriner of Indianapolis, head the latest entries for the 19th annual Thanksgiving night 150-lap USAC Grand Prix midget auto race at Gardena Stadium.

They join a field that includes two Indianapolis winners, Rodger Ward and Johnnie Parsons for J. C. Agajanian's four-event card. Other Indianapolis chauffeurs who'll be tooling powerful Offenhausers include Tony Bettenhausen, Gene Hartley, Jimmy Davies, Johnny Baldwin, A. J. Foyt, Earl Motter and Danny Oakes.

Tolan, a veteran of three Indianapolis races, won the 1952 national midget crown and the 1950 and '52 Midwest midget titles. Warriner won his national midget title in 1953, the same season he grabbed off the Midwest crown.

State Wins Polo Crown

Long Beach State won the State College Water Polo Championship in its own pool Saturday by walloping San Francisco State, 24-6, in the finals.

The 49ers advanced with a bye and a 28-1 shellacking of Los Angeles State, while San Francisco got to the finals with a 32-6 rout of Cal Poly of Pomona and a 14-12 win over San Jose State.

San Jose defeated Long Beach, 4-3, to win the championship last year.

Panama, U.S. Sift Tensions

PANAMA (AP) — U. S. Undersecretary of State Livingston T. Merchant began a series of meetings with Panama officials Saturday to ease tensions over the Canal Zone.

He had a 90-minute morning meeting with President Ernesto de La Guardia Jr. in the Presidential Palace and an afternoon session with Foreign Minister Miguel Moreno Jr. at the Foreign Office.

A Panama communique said mutual problems were "discussed thoroughly" at the presidential meeting.

Merchant, who arrived Friday, said he hoped the talks would restore "the traditional friendly and warm relationship" between the two countries.

THE RELATIONSHIP was upset Nov. 3, Panama's independence day, when 80 persons were injured, the majority of them while clashing with U. S. Canal Zone police and troops in an attempt to plant the Panama flag in the Canal Zone.

Washington got a perpetual lease to run the canal under a 1903 treaty with Panama, but the question of sovereignty has never been decided.

Friday night, Finance Minister Fernando Eleta repeated a statement made Thursday that President Eisenhower's brother, Milton, told him Sept. 13, 1958, the United States would recognize Panama sovereignty Nov. 3.

THE STATE Department denied that Milton, the President's adviser on Latin-America, had made "any statement which could be construed to commit the U. S. government to any course of action with respect to the Canal Zone."

Eleta said the President's brother "agreed with me, as other personalities of the government of the United States have done, on the incontrovertible fact that Panama never ceased to exercise sovereign rights over the Canal Zone."

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, NOV. 22, 1959 SECTION W

Dance Will Raise Curtain on Yuletide

Raising the curtain on holiday social events in Long Beach will be the 19th annual Dames Club dance at 9 p. m. Saturday in Petroleum Club—first of a series of organizational tributes to the gay Christmas season.

Santa Claus will lend his presence both in decorations and in an "in-person" appearance with George A. Powell Jr. doing the honors. Highlight of the gala evening will be his presentation of a Norwegian blue fox shrug at midnight as special award.

GUESTS will be greeted on arrival by the Dames Club president, Mrs. Gregory Hoskins, and Dr. Hoskins, as well as the dance chairman, Mrs. John V. Snider, and Mr. Snider.

Serving in party chairmanships are Mrs. John Henderson and Mrs. Warren Eckert, decorations; Mrs. Harry Stafford, tickets, and Mrs. Jere Gunther, door award.

Proceeds from the dance will be added to those of earlier Dames Club benefit bridge efforts and will be presented to Cystic Fibrosis Foundation to further that organization's efforts to find both a cause and a cure for this dread disease.

AMONG THE many pre-dance cocktail parties planned is that being co-hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brock and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Beldon in the Brock home, 5380 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. Invited are Messrs. and Mmes. Paul Abernathy, Dick Scott, Sam Savage, Robert Campbell, Alvin Fillipow, Gene Cheak, Jack Mixer, Dale Deatherage, Richard Barry Jr., Don Horton, Robert Johnson, Dave Johnson, Edward Cope, Robert Langslet, Berry Merritt Jr. and Kay Jennings. From the Los Angeles area will come the Ken Davidsons, Robert Kirbys, George Newhouses, Phil Fillipow and Mitch Dion.

Also sharing hosting duties are Mr. and Mrs. Don Hazzard who will entertain in their home, 909 E. Marshall Pl., assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Croxson. Their guests include Cmdr. and Mrs. Donald J. Hardy, Cmdr. and Mrs. Robt. Wadsworth, Capt. and Mrs. Louis R. Burnell, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Ralston, Messrs. and Mmes. William McGuire, Thomas Turner Jr., Norman Hastings, Stephen Guidi, Wayne Lavern, Robert DiTrapani, William Palmer, Jere Gunther, Herbert Cook, William Barry, Bill Welter, Dan Tanahill, Jack Dalton, Robert Sanders, Al Pollack, Bob Mitchell, Jules Brady, Bill Marshall, John Wolf, Bill Hoferer, Douglas Benwell and Robert Ivey.

MR. AND MRS. John Henderson, 2310 Pine Ave., plan to entertain for Messrs. and Mmes. Tom Horan, Parker Dale, and Richard Niblack. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Giffin, 3250 Chestnut Ave., include Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Maynard, Don Sullivan, William Moore Jr., Edward Lenz, Jeff Webb and Norman Price.

Bidden to their home by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Horries, 2824 Petaluma Ave., are Messrs. and Mmes. B. Benson, Dick Taylor, Don Lindsay, Jim Knowles, Frank Fishbaugh, Don Berger and Phil Schomer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hall, 3025 Marwick Ave., will have as their guests, Messrs. and Mmes. David Miller, Carol Simmons, Philip Tepesker, John Merrian, Stewart Wall, Fred McKibbens, Don Buddick, Milton Churchill and Robert Pugh.

Get the Meaning of Music Itself

By ELISE EMERY

At every symphony concert there are three performances, Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, program chairman, told members of Long Beach Auxiliary to Los Angeles Symphony Assn. at their first symphony preview Tuesday in Assistance League Clubhouse.

There are performances by the conductor, by the orchestra and by the audience. It was the third, the "art of listening," which Royal Stanton, head of Long Beach City College Music Dept., discussed as he analyzed the program to be played tonight at 8:30 in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium. The handsome, exciting young Italian conductor, Arturo Basile, who is continuing in the United States the pattern he set in Europe of winning audiences and critics, will direct the 100-piece orchestra.

Long Beach Auxiliary has played a leadership role in raising the cultural tone of the city, Stanton said, noting that during his 14 years here a higher level of musical technique has been demanded steadily. Yet some concert-goers can enrich further their listening experience.

"WHEN YOU go to a concert, how soon do you start to listen? What do you listen for and how do you do it?"

"Does it take a while for you to settle in your seat, notice the person next to you, observe the friend three rows ahead who is wearing a new fur, wonder if you left the lights on in the bedroom, remark that the conductor is fatter than you expected and speculate about what the members of the orchestra are doing? "These wool-gathering projects distract from your enjoyment of the concert you have paid to hear," Stanton said.

There are two kinds of musical meaning, he continued. The first, associated meaning, is the older concept which raises the question, "What does the music make you think of and feel? The second approach is to listen to sound itself as it is organized according to the rules of music.

"After all, the composer has only sound to use as a medium of expression. Even though he writes what he considers sad music or gay music, it may convey an entirely different emotional message to the hearer."

DESCRIPTIVE notes about the work may be confusing, too. "It's like receiving a Christmas gift exquisitely packaged in Hawaiian wrappings. But inside the box is a gravy boat. It has nothing whatever to do with the outer decoration.

"If the package helps, use it; if not, ignore it. The process of listening takes faith that you can understand and enjoy music in terms of sound, and faith that your understanding is just as good as anyone else's. Give music a chance to speak to you, then acknowledge its meaning for you as an individual."

Tonight's program, which spans nearly three centuries of composition, will open with Concerto in E. Major, "Spring," from the "The Four Seasons" by Vivaldi, who died in 1743. A cele-

Yuletide Fantasy Readied

Spectacular holiday decor for the home—cottage to mansion—will be on display when the Sandlarks-Lamplighters seventh annual Christmas Fantasy takes place the first week of December in Cavalier Room, Lafayette Hotel.

The six highly successful fantasies staged previously have earned the two sponsoring organiza-

last summer's beauty pageant.

The public is being invited to view the display without charge between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m. Dec. 1 through 4. The show has been lengthened by a day over those of previous years to allow more persons to view the creative efforts of individuals, businesses and clubs.

All of the entries will be priced for sale, and will be tagged with the name of their purchaser for pickup on close of the Fantasy. The display will remain intact throughout the four-day show.

Among unusual entries will be that inspired by the Miss International Beauty Pageant. The entry is a pink tulle tree with autographs of last year's contestants tucked in the branches as surprise gifts.

A NEW addition to this year's Fantasy will be entries by youth organizations which have adopted the show as holiday project.

Again one of the most interesting groups of decorative pieces will be those from more than 30 women's organizations. Their creators, as well as other donors, will be honored at a coffee hour in the Cavalier Room at 10 a. m. Dec. 1.

Presiding at the refreshment table will be Mmes. Leland B. Irish and Sumi Swanson, associate member of Sandlarks; Mrs. Tim Rogers, member of the board of directors of Children's Home Society, and Mrs. John Price, wife of the commanding officer of Long Beach Air Force Base.

SANDLARKS and Lamplighters donate the entire proceeds from the sale of the beautiful entries to Children's Home Society to further its adoption work throughout California.

Yule Party for Writers

Long Beach Writers Club members and their guests are anticipating their annual Christmas luncheon at noon Dec. 2 in Assistance League Clubhouse, 394 Roswell Ave.

Against the background of priceless antiques housed in the clubhouse, decorations will suggest Christmas in many lands. Louis A. Sisti will further the Forty-eight of the total were children with serious medical problems and physical handicaps, while 125 were of various minority backgrounds. Children's Home Society now has a Long Beach office and is a member of Community Chest.

Reservations may be made through Nov. 28 with Mrs. Mary Campbell or Mrs. Esther Leary.

Carmelite Auxiliary Slates Two Events

Two important events are scheduled this week by Carmelite Nun's Auxiliary, a meeting and program at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday and an organ recital at 8 p. m. Saturday.

During Tuesday's business session in Catholic Center, 6th St. and Alamitos Ave., Mrs. Donald Rice, program chairman, will present the Rev. Joseph F. Ryan, guest speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Ryan was educated at historic St. Mary's College and Seminary in Emmitsburg, Md. He is stationed at Our Lady of Refuge Parish where he conducts twice weekly information classes. His topic will be "Humility."

Hostesses will be from Holy Innocents Parish under direction of Mmes. Paul Travers, James Laing and John Gargas.

RICHER understanding and appreciation of fine music is behind the planning of Saturday's organ recital in Long Beach City College Auditorium, 4901 E. Carson St.

Organist will be Don Lee Ellis, music graduate of the University of Southern Illinois. The vocalist, Lynn Carol, was a winner in Long Beach Philharmonic auditions. The program will include a variety of classical, modern and popular compositions.

Recital proceeds will help to maintain the cloistered nuns at Carmel of St. Joseph, 3361 E. Ocean Blvd. Headed by the prioress, the Rev. Mother Mary Magdalene, cloistered contemplative nuns live in the monastery where they devote their lives to prayer, penance and manual labor.

Coordinating recital plans is Mrs. Robert Prince, 5342 Abbeyfield St., chairman, and Mrs. Charles Boyer, 2203 Vuelte Grande Ave., co-chairman. Tickets are available at Cutlers, 3960 Atlantic Ave.

Reciprocity Fete

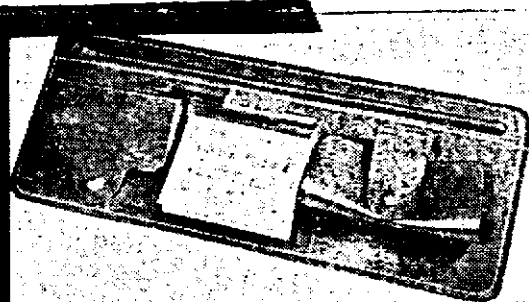

Members of Presidents Club of Long Beach will be honor guests at the annual reciprocity meeting of Agassiz Nature Club 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in Robert Louis Stevenson School auditorium, 630 E. 6th St. Mrs. Rose E. Berry will preside, with Mrs. Pearl Baker presenting the program.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

GLORIOUSLY thunder-struck were Neville and Harry Tibbet Wednesday when the light finally dawned and they realized they were honorees at an elegantly, slyly planned surprise dinner in recognition of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Party hosts Audrey and Arnold Romeyn were at the bottom of the gay skulduggery which took place at their home, 1000 Bryant Rd. Neville and Harry began the evening with Peggy and Dr. Earl Gates under the impression they were going to Disneyland. A detour to the Romeyns soon dispelled the idea for there on the front of the house a big silver 25 glittered under the impact of a spotlight, porch posts were wrapped in silver foil and festooned with white wedding bells and, to clinch the party purpose, the front door had "Harry and Neville" spelled out in silver glitter.

Adding to the shindig's importance was presence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Pyles, Mrs. Florence Tibbet, Neville's sister and brother-in-law, Evelyn and Gordon Miller of Bakersfield and the honorees' daughter and son-in-law, Lynn and Bill Skeen. Assisting the host and hostess for the cocktail and dinner affair were Sue and Bob Driscoll.

YOUNG PRESIDENTS, an organization of men who have become presidents of companies prior to reaching the age of 40 (no, Elmer, the shoe stand doesn't qualify you) had its latest palaver for Western Region members at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach last week which is why Noble and Dixie Millie and Katie and Bob Bailey were absent from our happy hunting grounds (yes, Elmer, they are and so are Elva and Dick Lawson who didn't go because they had been in New York or were or something).

SPEAKING OF Noble and Dixie Millie reminds us of a little joke in this office which we occasionally and inadvertently let the whole town in on. It is the frustrating tendency for certain names to get misspelled in print: Last Sunday's front page bears me out. Noble's name, after three of us had faithfully read the proof page to insure against such error, came out Miller. Which is mild in comparison to what the Sports section has done to Dixie. At least twice they have referred to her in golf stories as "Dizzy" Millie.

Take the case of Polly and Burton Chace. They've been called Chase so many times in print they probably have taken to doubting their own spelling.

Or how about Louise and Dr. Phil Voigt? Can it be these people Dr. and Mrs. Philip Voigt are the same people?

Even our own publishers have trouble coming out even. Bonnie and Hank and Betty and Dan Ridder have, more times than we like to recall, been blissfully renamed Ritter.

It's all very easy to understand and we'll be glad to give our theory to anyone who asks, "Mrs. Mathtewson — or is it Mathterson — what is the reason?"

JUDGING by the crowd at Executives' Secretaries annual Bosses Night dinner last at Petroleum Club last Monday it's a safe bet the only cool cats who stayed home were the felines.

To give you a spot-check idea, among those present to hear Erle Stanley Gardner, famous guest speaker, were Rose and "Nish" Nishkian, Julia and Bill Cheney, Florence and John Curtis, Virginia and Bob Hall, Evelyn and Don Sullivan, Tina and John Biby, Nancy and Bill Brooks, Leanna and Leroy Pittman, Terrell and Harold Stahler, Donna and Bud Ridings, the Jim Foasbergs, the Ralph Settles, George Richards, Gladys and Charles Campbell, Meriam and Harry Jordan and...

Mayor Ray Kealer, Supervisor Burton and Polly Chac(s)e (!), Dottie and Bill Dalossi, Pat and Ralph Settle, Clare and Al Code, Lou and Bessie Reese, Emily and John Cottrell, Ginny and Jerry Desmond, Ann and Sheriff Pete Pitchess (who introduced the speaker), Vi and Police Chief Bill Dovey, Maud and "Scottie" Scott, Jim Crocker, the Robert Crows, the Charles Dooleys, Norma and Bill Becker, the Kenneth Wings, Sr. and Jr. (Mildred and Bev), and E/S prexy Grace Cooney who someone glowingly described as "the living end" — so that's where we'll end before we wind up with a roster instead of a list.

HOLIDAY eye-opener was Marge and Ed Demler and Betty and Fred Tebbett's cocktail party last night at the Demler's home for peninsula pals. About 100 were bidden to the just-before-Christmas - rush - begins soiree.

Next Saturday the sounds of another party will fill the house as Rae Demler, home from Cal for Thanksgiving, entertains for as many of her college friends, home from campuses everywhere, as she can contact.

THERE wasn't room for anything but oon's, ahhh's and gleeful girl-type camaraderie at the Dutcher's yesterday when Pam Dutcher and Judy Benson co-hosted a tea and miscellaneous bridal shower for Betty Lou (Munholland) Gray. Assisting was Pam's mother, Mrs. Doris Dutcher.

THIS PAST week has a very warm spot in its heart for Wednesday night which is one of the reasons it will be remembered as A Good Week. On that date Anabel and Dr. Ben Parks and Myra and Dr. Kirt Parks co-hosted a most amiable cocktail buffet party for a group of their medical friends at Anabel and Ben's beautiful Chinese Modern decorated apartment in Park Estates.

BRIDGE tables were busy at Helen (Mrs. James R.) Bole's Tuesday when she opened her home to members of Ebelle Jrs. for a pass or bid session co-hosted by Lee Bole and Marie Price. Forgetting all about calorie protocol when the pumpkin pie was served were Phyllis Bruce, Joanna Bruce, Maureen Cone, Madeline Glascock, Enid Hatelly, Shirley Oswald, Elayne Seirup, Jody Varner, Gloria Woepse, Norma Marter, Jean Lockett, Dorothy Slayton, Mary Lou Dixon and Jerry McCutcheon. And if Jerry played bridge like a composite of Culbertson, Jacoby and Goren, chalk it up to the "rest" she and husband, John, had during their recent just-to-get-away-from-it-all trip to San Francisco.

ARIZONA style Thanksgiving is in store for Wilma Hastings who headed Bea McCauley's invitation to be her guest in Tucson. Canny Bea had a bee in her bonnet (where else for a hat buyer?) and casually worked in a couple of fashion speaking dates for her authoritative guest — one for Altrusa Club and the other at the fancy emporium she now is buyer for.

TURKEY in the sky at the idylwild cabin of the John G. Munholland Sr.'s of Palm Springs is planned by Betty and Jim Munholland for sons, Jim and Tom, daughter and son-in-law, Betty Lou and Harry Gray, Betty's parents, Dell and Warren Lewis and Mike Springer, a friend of young Jim's.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the range at Dorothy Dell and Phil Brady's home will corral the bird for Brady family members including the hosts' youngsters, Freddy, Linda and Karen, Mary and Capt. Albert Ryan and their two children, from Alamo, and Fred O'Brien.

Bazaar, Dinner Long Beach Camp 3822, Royal Neighbors of America, will have a bazaar and dinner at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall. Gladys Bender is chairman.

OBSERVE ANNNIVERSARY

Recounting some of high lights of their first year are Dan E. Baurac, director; Bruce T. Maxwell, president, and Ken Kennerson, director of Off-Broadway Theatre, which is observing first anniversary next Sunday.

Theater Feting Its First Year

Off-Broadway Theatre will celebrate its first anniversary next Sunday evening with a buffet supper at the theater, 211 Lime Ave. High light of the entertainment program will be the presentation of the Best Actors Awards. Reservations may be made by calling the theater Monday through Thursday, from 8 to 10 p.m.

Founded in 1952 as the Lakewood Players, the little theater group has proven that it is one of the important cultural contributions to the community. In its first year, five full-length plays and two one-act plays were produced. It premiered an original comedy by a local playwright, and brought to Long Beach two visiting groups with some unusual theatre — Jonesco's "The Chairs" and Jean-Paul Sartre's "No Exit."

HIGH LIGHTS of the group's brief history were the premiere showing of

John Green's original comedy, "A Night With the President" and "Bus Stop" directed by Al Rashkow and starring Dorene Porter and Don Wilson.

Now on its staff of directors is Dan E. Baurac, long experienced in little theater and professional work; and Ken Kennerson, who has been active in television and motion pictures.

Administrative department is under the direction of S. T. Bruce Maxwell, president; Inez J. Maloof, vice president; Connie Baurac, corresponding secretary, and Gail Tweed, recording secretary.

Original supporters of the group which offers no personal gain other than that each participant derives the opportunity for artistic expression include Vernon Hlnze, Stan Cable, Alice Elliot, Eunice Woodward, and Bev and David Perry. Presidents have been Mario Johnson, Jim Beuler, Randy Sare, Bud Watkins, Roy Peterson, Jim Goss and Tom Fitzgerald.

Island Honeymoon for Young Couple

Honeymooning in Hawaii are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kral, whose marriage was solemnized in St. Steven's Serbian Orthodox Cathedral, Alhambra. Following the religious ceremony, the couple greeted guests at a festive reception in Long Beach Petroleum Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milan Vucurevich, Westwood. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kral, Long Beach.

MEMBERS OF the bridal party were Patricia Kerchum, maid of honor; the bridegroom's sisters, Darlene, Sally Ann and Mary Helen Kral; Mrs. Donald Kral; Laurel Hoover and Nancy Pilling, bridesmaids. The bridegroom asked Vido Samarzich to serve as best man, and Ted Polich, Robert Doder, George Vukasin, Peter Salata, John Ukropina and Alexander Rados to seat the 450 guests.

The new Mrs. Kral attended Santa Monica City College; her husband attended Southern California Military Academy and was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Claremont Men's College.

After Dec. 1 the couple will be at home in Arcadia.

Maybe Kids Kiddled--Adults Thought Ball Was a Ball

"Gee whiz, you sure look silly with that stuff on top of your head, Mom" was prelude, undoubtedly, for many a competitor on taking leave of children last Saturday on her way to the Head-dress Ball. However, admiring adults found nothing to complain about in the toppers worn by either winners (you read about them Tuesday) or those who almost won: Jessie Lee Malcolm for her "Greatest Show on Earth" headdress; Mildred Dorsey for her fabulous "Snake Charmer" creation; or Wanda Sewak for that "Circus Wonderland" chapeau.

A few of the others competing with imaginative and truly handsome headdresses were Ruby Bothwell, Frieda Prichard, Marvella McNulty, Arlene Johnson, Janice Cole, Betty Buffum, Julie De Young, Betty Kedinger and Fran Cavaliere.

Audience members (a pretty sharp looking crew, themselves) included Marusia Weaver and Jan Bruce, Geneva and Stan Weiss, Jonnie and Dick Simmons, Ann and Dr. Julius Molina, Marian and Don Locke, Luba and Alex Kadvany, Myrtle and Harry Hachmeister, Sally and Ralph Garrison, Suzanne and Vic Mingers, Judy and Milo Ellik, Marian and Montie Magree, Elaine and Mulford Smith, Pat and Hal Horrocks, Helen and Joe Kellogg, Marian and Tom Hardesty, Bev and Ernie Lockwood and several hundred more.

The forthcoming marriage of Mary Halbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Morrison Halbert, to Lt. Troy Yarbrough has been incentive for a number of bridal courtesies in recent days.

The pair will wed Dec. 4 in Long Beach.

Among parties was a beautifully appointed tea given by Mrs. Francis Hertzog Jr. and Mrs. Helen Wood in Mrs. Wood's Los Cerritos home.

A TEA TABLE centerpiece of pink roses and purple and pink frosted grapes was flanked by slender tapers in silver candelabra. Assisting hostesses were Mmes. LaVern Brinkman, Winchester Stacy, Douglas Burrows, V. Ray Townsend, Burton Chase, George Boardman, Francis Hertzog, William Ingels and Glen Mitchell.

Mrs. Matthew Simpson hosted a brunch and linen shower in her Myrtle Ave. home complimenting the bride-elect. A heart, fashioned of white tulle, was placed on the front door while pink roses and pink tulle parasols added to the bridal theme.

Mrs. Richard Secord and Miss Alice Berry of Brentwood feted Miss Halbert

with a delightful afternoon dessert and kitchen shower at Patricia Secord's Seal Beach home.

Mrs. Thomas Noble and her daughter, Mrs. Allen Herzog, selected Los Coyotes Country Club as setting for a luncheon and glassware shower. A silver watering can, out of which sprayed silvery streamers, provided effective party decor. Completing decorations were white orchids grown by Mrs. Morris Holmquist.

CONCLUDING the party round was a group gift shower in the home of Mrs. Burton Chase, with Mmes. Chase, Winchester Stacy, Douglas Burrows and V. Ray Townsend as hostesses.

Buffet brunch was served from the dining table which was done in a bridal theme with wedding bells, streamers of which were caught by cupids. Assisting in serving were Mmes. Thomas Noble, Helen Wood, Allen Herzog, Richard Secord, William Ingels and Francis Hertzog Jr.

Girls Attend Y Parley

Two Millikan High School girls returned home from Washington, D. C., via jet a week ago with eyes that will not look at themselves or their community in quite the same way again.

Helaine Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Schneider, 2652 Radnor Ave., and Susan McFeders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McFeders, 2402 Heather Rd., both 16, were chosen by Long Beach Young Women's Christian Assn., to be delegates to the Triennial National Y-Teen Conference in New York City and Washington, D. C., in early November.

LEAVING by jet for New York, the two YWCA seniors were joined by 24 other delegates from Southern California and their adult chaperones. Their mission . . . "to meet with 660 young women from all over the nation and to discuss youth's role in national and world affairs."

The week-long conference gave the young delegates a crammed schedule of sightseeing in the two cities as well as addresses by national figures and their own discussion meetings on topics ranging from food surplus, teenage marriages, Charles Van Doren and segregation, to "something they told us to take home and just think about . . . just how much in our everyday lives would we be willing to give up for freedom?"

ONE OF THE national

planning committee members for the conference was Miss Carol Nyholm, program director for the Long Beach YWCA.

The two youthful delegates were impressed by the enormous prestige in which the national YWCA organization is held by government agencies as well as by the U. N.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA... NOVEMBER 22, 1959

OUR COVER

Typical of literally hundreds of youthful keggers who bowl under the banner of the American Junior Bowling Congress in the Long Beach area is pretty cover girl Marilyn Travis, 15-year-old Poly High School student. Marilyn took up the sport three years ago, mainly because her mother, father and brother were avid bowlers. Currently she is maintaining a 166 average and has to her credit a 235-603 in sanctioned league play, which ranks her as the top junior bowlerette in the city. Marilyn has 20 trophies, evidence of her skill, and has participated in exhibition matches throughout the Southland. "No doubt about it," says Independent, Press-Telegram bowling writer-photographer Alice Meglemre who snapped the cover photo, "this young lady is a rough competitor. Furthermore, she's a real credit to the AJBC program." More about bowling on Page 9.

NEXT WEEK

Much history of the Old West has been written around the branding iron, and many a tale of fiction has been spun about roundup time on the great ranches, when brands are seared on animals' backsides as proof of ownership. How did all this start? How was a brand selected? Is cattle branding still practiced on the wide open spaces? Southland has the answers next week in a story called "Hieroglyphics of the Cowpoke."

Glamour Lunches Add Zest to Job!

By ILKA CHASE

This has been the week of lunches. The other day I flew to Miami just to get one. That's hunger! I will admit it wasn't only the hotel chicken that tempted me — there was a fashion show involved and I had been asked to do the commentary.

I arrived, actually, the evening before, and a gray and gloomy time it was, but the next morning made up for it. Hot, brilliant sunshine. I was stopping at that incredible Hotel Fontainebleau where the rooms have balconies overlooking the enormous swimming pool and the ocean, and I lay out there soaking up sunshine for a couple of hours and wondering if I'd like to live that kind of life always and deciding no, and deciding that was just as well as I could never afford it. The Fontainebleau comes high. A cup of tea, a chicken sandwich and some cookies, served in your room, costs $4.50. One glance at the check and you've lost your appetite.

IT'S VERY grand, though. Television and radio sets in the rooms and a telephone that has a little red bulb like those bright red eyes on a television camera that winks at you when there's a message waiting. At first I didn't know what in the world was going on and kept picking up the receiver thinking it was a new way of ringing. Finally I noticed an explanatory card. The blinking light means call the operator and ask for the message. The Fontainebleau even talks grand. There's a notice on the dresser, "Our guests request that persons in beach attire enter and leave the hotel by the lower lobby." Personally, I prefer the simple approach, "When wearing bathing suits please enter and leave etc.," but that's a matter of taste. Some like it toney.

At another luncheon, this time in the brick north, I met our ambassador to Russia, Llewellyn Thompson.

Homecoming Meet

William McKinley Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, will have homecoming and roll call of all members Wednesday in Veterans Bldg. Noon potluck luncheon will be followed by a business session.

and Mrs. Thompson. They have now returned to Moscow, but I think they were grateful for a breather on home territory. Mrs. Thompson was slightly bitter over the price she had had to pay to have a dress made in Moscow in view of the fact that she had supplied not only the material but the zipper and thread as well—$110.

Moving from fashion and diplomatic circles, the third big meal of the week was the Book and Author's Luncheon at the Waldorf. The guests of honor were Marchette Chute, her new book is "Two Gentle Men," Moss Hart, whose "Act One" is a runaway best seller and rightly so, and Roy Campanella, whose "It's Good to Be Alive" is truly an inspiring affair.

I'VE KNOWN and admired Moss for several years, and his speech was just as entertaining as his writing. He told a story that might be called "Greater Love Hath No Wife," and it is absolutely true and perfectly understandable to anyone in the theater.

He said that his wife, Kitty Carlisle, attended the first day's rehearsal of "My Fair Lady," which he directed. Driving home in the cab afterwards he asked her what she thought of the cast, and she said she thought Julie Andrews was terrible. She only hoped she was wrong, but that girl was plain awful. And, says Moss, she was. After five days rehearsal Rex Harrison was imploring him to get someone else. "She makes me look like an elderly bully," he snorted. But Moss said there simply was no one else. Julie was young — 19, she could sing, she was English, she was right, if not good. What to do?

At the end of the five days, he dismissed the entire cast and set out to work with her alone. He spared her nothing of his own opinion of her performance and that of everybody else, but it happened they were two people of grit and determination. From 10 until 2, from 3 until midnight, they worked; Moss directing, correcting every reading, every shading, every gesture. At the end she was better. Not good, but better. They did the same thing the next day. When he got home very late, Kitty was waiting for him.

"WELL," she said, "how did it go?" Moss said he was beginning to be hopeful but he didn't know. "These things always seemed to work out better in the old days," he said. "Take David Belasco, he was supposed to be such a wizard with the women in his plays. He'd have done what I've been doing for three days, all meals would have been sent in, they'd probably have had an affair, but at the end he would have emerged with, by George, an actress."

Kitty looked at him, her eyes bright with the faith that animated Joan of Arc. "Go ahead," she cried. "Whatever you do now is for the play!"

Moss Hart stopped short of Belasco, and Julie Andrews' success as Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady" is history.

Roy Campanella was the last speaker at the luncheon, and he was plain wonderful. He spoke quietly about his love of baseball, about the automobile accident that paralyzed him, and of how, by determination and gratitude for what he has in this world, he has come to the conclusion that life, even in a wheelchair, is infinitely worth living. Now he can move his hands a little. "It makes a difference," he said.

ANNUAL COLONIAL COTILLION

Angela Ernst, president of local society of Children of American Revolution, and Lon Peek II, slate president, check musical selections in anticipation of gala annual Colonial Cotillion slated for Saturday in Terrace Room of Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena. Dick Slavett's orchestra will supply music.

DUV Meeting Set

Anna Etheridge Tent 58, Daughters of Union Veterans, will meet at 12:30 p.m. Monday in Veterans Bldg. for nomination of officers and a business session.

Carpenter Girls on Community Show Monday

Bebe Carpenter of Theatrical Arts will present an hour of variety entertainment on the Community Program, sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Dept. in Exhibit Hall, Municipal Auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

High light of the show will be the Carpenter Girls in a novelty routine, "The Fireflies," using 10 lighted batons. This dance was performed Nov. 8 at the Moulin Rouge for USO-JWB Pal Day program. These performers appear regularly at various Navy, Marine and Air Force bases throughout California and Arizona.

MANY GROUP specialty acts are lined up for this show including a "Precision Tapperoo," and a "Hawaiian Holiday" number. Soloist, Judy Van, who appeared on the Milton Berle Show in Las Vegas for one month, will present an acrobatic tumbling act.

Others in the show include Linda Kawabe, Hawaiian dancer and double knife twirler; Nancy Kawabe, tap dancer specialist; Cynthia Cook, Miss Personality and song stylist; Karen Wetbekam, toe dancer; Judy Alcorn, tambourine dancer; Eileen Cayne, buck and wing dancer; Carol Hasselle, "Personality Plus" and pantomime specialist; Paula Grosswald, rumba dancer; Betty Stewart, Oriental dancer and Starr Anderson, tiny acrobatic performer.

Mate Caught 'Off Base'

DEAR MOLLY:

My husband has been an ardent baseball fan for many years. So much so that he has made me just as ardent. We used to attend night games together for many years, but last season he got off to the park by himself—or at least I thought it was by himself.

When Chicago won the American League pennant, he dropped the word he had a business meeting in Chicago which, happily, would coincide with the two opening games of the Series. He said the rush of business, inability to get tickets, etc., made it imperative to leave me at home. I never have seen a Series and was dying to go.

Before he left, I found two sets of two tickets each in his belongings, plus hotel reservations for a double room. I kept mum. When he arrived in Chicago, I called the hotel where he was registered and, as I suspected, a woman answered the telephone. I told her to relay the pitch to my foul ball that he had been caught off base and don't bother stealing home.

Next day I packed up and have been living in a hotel. I haven't called him. How long can I keep him—and myself—dangling?

DUGOUT DORA

DEAR DUGOUT: I think you have managed your club pretty well for the first few innings. I don't think it is well to fold up because of an errant player.

There is a possibility that your man hasn't been a bad player at all.

At least, before you send him to the showers make sure he gets a chance to bat. He just might show enough to convince you he shouldn't be put up for waivers.

M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: What kind of faith and dependence can we place in men of the Air Force? I am a young girl and I believe I am in love with an Air Force man. We went together for six months before he went into the service.

Since that time I have had two letters a week from him, and in each of them he has professed his love for me. But I know he is writing the same message to at least one other girl.

He had a recent furlough and for the first few days he didn't even bother to see me. Finally he came around and informed me he was going steady with this other girl and he was under orders (her's) not to speak to me. He said he wanted to keep writing me because he cared for me.

I am so fond of the guy I can't forget him. I have tried. I have worried so much I have lost 10 pounds. I don't care if I live or die. What should I do?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP:

First of all, it's time to live—not die. Not only breathing and eating, but live differently. Your case sounds a great deal like a severe attack of puppy love—but the pup you are concerned about isn't worth the trouble.

Festive Dinner Honors Golden Wedding Couple

To commemorate Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Neugebauer's golden wedding anniversary, members of the family gathered at Captain's Inn for a festive dinner arranged by Dr. and Mrs. William F. Neugebauer of Pasadena. Dr. Neugebauer is Mr. Neugebauer's brother.

Guests were seated at a table decorated to carry out the golden theme and centered with a money tree from which hung silver dollars wrapped in gold and tied with gold ribbons. On a tray surrounded by golden-throated white orchids, a wedding cake frosted with white roses on golden leaves bore the message, "Happy Golden Anniversary." The orchids were the gift of Miss Sarah Witherspoon of Santa Anita Oaks, who raises them as a hobby.

MR. AND MRS. Neugebauer (Catherine E. Steitz) were married Nov. 9, 1909, in Sacred Heart Church, Los Angeles. In 1924 they came to Long Beach to reside and enter business. Since retirement they have lived part time in Morro Bay; at present they are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Donald A. Linn, and her family in Signal Hill.

Dinner guests included their son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Neugebauer of Fresno; Mr. and Mrs. Linn and their daughter, Panna, who came from UCLA to honor her grandparents on their 50th anniversary.

Voice of the Viking

Definitely lending a cosmopolitan air to the Long Beach City College scene this fall are the many foreign students now enrolled.

On the Lakewood campus alone there are 21 visa students representing 15 countries, six continents and four Pacific island groups.

Four countries have two or more delegates each: Iran (Keshvad Dorafshan, Hossein Naeili, Ardeshir Roshan and Moteza Vakili), Greece (Marily Callimopoulos and Christos Smyrniotis), Mexico (Adelina Chee and Teresa Villicana) and the Philippines (Gaudencio Pereyra Jr. and Loretta Suelen).

Other nations with one representative each: Argentina (Robert Brunst), Australia (Marie Dod), Canada (John Kelso), Fiji (Lakshman Iyer), Israel (Yoave Neta), Italy (Luigi Bida), Japan (Kunio Yoshihara), Jordan (Munir Dauod), Korea (Esook Chung), Tahiti (Franklin Shiu) and Venezuela (Paul Rista).

A later column will report on foreign students enrolled in other divisions of the City College, and the "Voice of the Viking" also plans to interview several on their impressions of the U.S.A.

LBCC STUDENTS will hear from Dr. Fred Myers on the topic "Taft-Hartley and the Steel Strike" at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the college auditorium. Dr. Myers is professor of personnel management and industrial relations at UCLA and a former member of the War Labor Board and National Labor Relations Board. The program is another in the bi-weekly series sponsored by the Student Forum, Lakewood campus discussion group.

FALL SEMESTER officers of the Evening Liberal Arts Division student body include president, James Ellis (serving his second term); vice president, Wallace P. Boyd; recording secretary, Glenda Hemsley; corresponding secretary, Donna Kesselhorn; treasurer, Margaret L. Smith; sergeant-at-arms, Tom Milner; scholarship chairman, Gerald Hamilton, and publicity chairman, Ann Bertsch.

After attending the recent convention of evening student body officers in San Diego and sponsoring the Yehudi Menuhin reception, the "swing shift" student leaders are now planning ahead to their Christmas dance and the semesterly award of three $150 scholarships to outstanding night school students.

What's remarkable about all this is that most of the LAD evening student council members hold full-time jobs, carry two or three night classes, and still find the energy and enthusiasm to promote worthwhile activities for their classmates.

STRANGE as it may seem, the biggest and hand-somest trophy on the Lakewood campus is not given for sports, but for scholastic achievement. It's presented by the Lakewood Rotary Club to those students achieving a 4.0 average, more commonly known as "straight As," which are not easy to come by. Winners receive individual trophies and have their names engraved on the yard-high permanent trophy.

Current officers of Alpha Gamma Sigma, the LBCC equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa, are Sue Koehler, president; Sharon Hale, vice president, and Ingrid Altman, secretary-treasurer.

TWO LBCC drama students, Ron Hogue and Tom Puckett, are directing a production of Robert E. Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest," scheduled to open Friday at the San Pedro Playhouse. Both were involved simultaneously with this play and the recent City College production of "Winterset."

Other City College actors to appear in "Petrified Forest" include Bill Wildman, Jim Moran, William DeMuelle, Clint Lev, Bruce Starratt, Richard Bass, Mike Semasko and Bob Crayle.

Card Party by City Club on Friday

A holiday card party is planned by Group 23 of Woman's City Club at 1 p. m. Friday in the clubhouse, 1309 E. 3rd St., with Mrs. Charles Yeam as chairman. Husbands and guests of WCC members are particularly invited.

Social Service Committee will stage a special party and luncheon Saturday for Indoor Sports Club at Rancho los Amigos. Birthday cakes, gifts and a musical program by the club ensemble, directed by Mrs. Myranna R. Coon, will highlight the occasion. Mrs. Clarissa Haugen is in charge of arrangements, and Mrs. Lucille Swenson, president, will extend greetings.

NEW MEMBERS presented by Mrs. Marble Wells, membership chairman, at a recent City Club meeting were Mmes. Clara H. Hanson, Jessie Sharp, Margaret Duthie, Harold Lerner, Ruby M. Rodruck, Lucille C. Jones, Clara King, Nellie Peterson, Mabel McLure, Vina F. Peebles, Bertha Bergman, Fred L. Hoxie and Verda B. Kirkbude. Welcomed as life members were Mrs. Joe M. Taylor and Mrs. Margaret C. Crossey.

Costume Fete Set Tuesday

Candle light and original poems will help carry out the theme, "Beatniks and Bongos," when members and guests of Eta Pi Chapter of Kappa Delta Phi Sorority gather for a costume party Tuesday evening.

Among those planning to attend are Messrs. and Mmes. James Barker, John Brogan, George Brown, John Camm, Ernie Costello, Robert Decker, Gerald Goldsmith, George Hanania, Charles Moss, William Robertson, John Sainsevain, Jack Stone and Claude Vatter.

Dear Abby Not FORCED to Give!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Already the stores are showing gifts for Christmas. It is a blasphemy to preach that Dec. 25 is the birthday of Jesus. Jesus was born in October when the shepherds were still out with the sheep. Christ never asked or wanted his birth celebrated by gift-giving.

ABBY

That idea was invented by man, not God. Christmas is a racket and is getting worse every day.

A CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: The real Christian spirit is "Peace on earth, good will toward men." If people wish to exchange gifts at Christmas time they need no commandment from the Scriptures to do so. Theologians have neither proved nor disproved the accurate birth date of Christ. Volumes have been written on this subject. But the last sentence always ends with a question mark.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think about girls having to take showers together? After every gym period we have to take showers which, of course, we should. But there are no curtains or partitions for privacy and all the girls have to shower together. Some of the girls think nothing of it. But I was taught modesty at home and I do not like this idea. My mother doesn't like it either. Can something be done about it without causing a big fuss?

"MODEST"

DEAR MODEST: In my opinion, no girl should be compelled to shower with other girls if she doesn't want to. Yours is not the first letter I have received from a girl protesting "mass showering." Have your mother talk to the school authorities. Something CAN be done. But it will not be,

unless someone complains.

Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I know a young woman who is 36 years old and is still wearing her sorority pin. Everyone laughs at her because she wears it on every dress and suit she owns. I think it is quite childish, but I feel it is her business. Some of the girls say that because I am very friendly with her I should tell her to put it away. Should I? Or must I defend her every time someone makes fun of her when her back is turned?

NOMINATED

DEAR NOMINATED: To each her own. If your friend wants to wear her sorority pin on her NOSE, let her. Don't permit the other girls to "stick you" with the job of wising her up.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FEELING FOOLISH": The only "stupid" questions are those that aren't asked. Send me your name and address.

WHAT'S YOUR problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper.

Have YOU Bought a Magazine Lately?

By TED KREC

Magazines, I have been told, are the reflection of our contemporary life and times. If this is true, I must voice grave alarm for our poor, tired old world.

Have you bought any magazines lately? Certainly, there still are many of the old tried-and-true standbys, but these are being pushed rapidly to the rear of the racks by the publications of the new "era of realism."

To me, the bulk of the publications I see on the magazine racks today are just so much trash. Every one has a lurid cover featuring one of three themes—sex, crime or violence—and it isn't hard to find publications with all three themes depicted.

"SO WHAT?" you may reply. "Normal adults know all about such things!" True—but what about the kids? I am an adult (chronologically, at least) and I like to think that I am normal—and I know about crime and violence and what the human form looks like—but what about the kids? What about the questioning minds of young people in their formative years? What kind of ideas are they going to get from these publications? And please don't tell me that these magazines aren't sold to kids, because I have proved otherwise!

Dad, you remember when you were a kid—you used to sneak copies of so-called "dime novels" into the house or hide them behind your big geography book in school. Sure you did—so did I. But these were a different stripe from the stuff they're putting out today. These were mainly tales of derring-do in the Old West or at sea. I can remember reading "G-8 and His Battle Aces" and "Sky Fighters," too. Both of these publications dealt with air battles in World War I, and do you know what? I was the best-informed kid on the block on the subject of World War I aircraft!

But today it's a different story. Even the so-called pocket books are highly offensive in this regard. True, there are many worthwhile pocket books, which are low-priced reprints of books; but a large number of them are publications which definitely are filthy and full of aberrations and physical impossibilities.

SOME OF the publishers have resorted to a money-grabbing device, preying on the depravity of the reading public.

For example, they will feature a lurid cover of a semi-clad damsel in a peril-fraught situation. The title will be something like: "Ordeal of the Silken Doll," and underneath this, or on the inside title page, will be printed, in small type, "Formerly titled: 'Principles of Accounting.'"

I am wholly in accord with the idea of the low-cost pocket book. I believe that good literature should be placed in the hands of as many persons as possible. That's why I'm a great fan of libraries. But it's the subject matter of most pocket books I'm objecting to.

It isn't simply a matter of keeping kids from reading these awful things—I think they should be taken off the newsstands so kids can't even SEE the inflammatory covers—these often are many times worse than the subject matter.

And now I'll sit back while the "liberal fringe" cries "censorship!" I'll take this form of censorship any day if it will keep our kids from having depraved ideas.

Maybe I'm just a boy at heart, but I still get a kick out of reading "Treasure Island," "Robinson Crusoe" and the Tarzan books. Maybe I'm a "square," but I'm proud of it!

Initiation Meet

Henry W. Lawton Auxiliary to Sons of Union Veterans will initiate candidates during its meeting at 11 a.m. Friday in YWCA. Dr. Mabel Conger will conduct the business session. Sandwich luncheon will be served.

Visit at Ranch

Recent visitors at Warner Springs Guest Ranch were Long Beach residents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Ellsworth, 2533 E. 2nd St., and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon R. Kile, 3718 Weston Pl.

"Orchids to you!" greeted the founder and past presidents who were honored guests at the annual celebration of Charter Day of Ebell Club Monday with Mrs. Arthur A. Knoll presiding.

Founded in 1896 by 17 determined women who then defined the purpose and selected the motto, "Cultivation is as necessary to mind as food to the body," the club and motto still stand after 63 years.

Having a current membership of 1,379, Ebell of Long Beach is not only one of the oldest and largest of this city's women's groups but also has been one of the most effective organizations in the cultural, civic and social life of our community.

PRESENT WAS the only living charter member, a past president, Mrs. Edward H. Jackson. Other honored guests were Mmes.

Days of Forty-Niners LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

Members of Omega Alpha Delta (national honor society of women in extended day classes) at Long Beach State met at Hody's Lake-wood Saturday for the second rush luncheon of the year. Mrs. Lodema Burgess, assisted by Donna O'Sullivan and Florence Allision, was chairman, and all the gals were in their best bib and tucker for yearbook pictures. Plans were made for the Christmas party on Dec. 12.

This evening the Accounting Society has a 7 p.m. dinner meeting in the Hawaiian. Featured speaker is Roscoe Hollinger, chief deputy auditor-controller for Los Angeles County. A social hour at 6 p.m. precedes the dinner.

Wednesday night, the Philosophy Club meets at 7:30 p.m. at 1918 Montair Ave. to hear Prof. Jagdish Mehra of the LBSC Physics Dept. discuss "Physics and Philosophy."

Last week's CSTA (California Student Teachers Assn.) meeting saw the members come away well briefed for job hunting after listening to a panel emphasize the importance of scholastic records, student teaching evaluation, and the personal interview.

WITH THE GREEKS:

Some 150 Tri-Delts representing 20 of the sorority's 164 chapters gathered last Monday evening at the Petroleum Club to eat a squab dinner and mark the 71st anniversary of the founding of Delta Delta Delta. Alumnae President Rebecca Van Dyke was the featured speaker, candles were lighted as the chapter representatives answered up at roll call, and awards for highest grade-point averages were made to Linda Houlihan (actives) and Loretta Fota (pledges).

Sigma Kappa's dinner meeting last Monday was hosted by the Mothers Club, and the province president, Mrs. Averill, was the honored guest... the sorority plays host Monday night for the All-Greek Coffee Hour at 8:30 in the Belmont Shore Lions Club.

ALPHA PHIS, now busy with a Thanksgiving project to provide a dinner for a needy family, have a similar one on tap for Christmas... on the AP personnel front, sophomore Mary Huss was named corresponding secretary, and frosh Denise Nevin and Carolyn Galbraith are commissioners of organizations and publications, respectively for the freshman class.

Delta Zetas, busy distributing containers and posters for the Exceptional Children's Foundation during November, are looking ahead to their Christmas project—a joint effort with Kappa Sigma fraternity to provide a party for some underprivileged children.

Mother Goose Characters Were Tough, Rowdy, Violent Group!

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Juvenile delinquency—and man's inhumanity to man—might be traced to Mother Goose and other fairly entertaining children's tales.

Take the Goldilocks yarn. Under today's codes, Goldilocks would be caught bare-handed illegally entering another's abode. What's more, she took goods belonging to others—the slew Mama Bear brewed. She broke Baby Bear's chair, too.

Take, further, Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son. He stole a pig. In addition to that break with the law, Tom's tale tramples grammatical codes by saying — "and away he run."

LOOK, TOO, at Little Boy Blue with an objective eye. He's a truant, a boss-cheater or whatever you want to call one who shrugs off responsibility and takes a nap—on company time.

The "be kind to children" folks must do flip flops when they think about the "Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe." She not only had so many children she didn't know what to do, but she "whipped them all soundly and sent them to bed."

And she probably caused ripples in nutrition circles before she did that. The beatings were preceded by a meal of "broth without any bread."

ANOTHER HERO, Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater, must stir the "treat wife kindly" folks. Peter couldn't keep his mate, so he locked her in a pumpkin shell. Closeted her, that is!

And consider Humpty Dumpty. He was so broken

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

Two former great dramatic sopranos of the Metropolitan Co. have, curiously enough, gone into the same business since their retirement. They both are impresarios of flourishing opera companies.

Kirsten Flagstad came out of retirement two years ago to organize and manage the Nordska Opera Co. in Norway. Each morning at 9 she is in her office, discussing repertoire, scenery, artists and musical detail. Often she coaches the singers in roles in which she has had spectacular success throughout the world. She believes in adequate preparation and many rehearsals. She feels that a young company should grow in musical stature with experience. Her vast acquaintance with musicians of the world has been of inestimable value.

The other soprano, Rosa Ponselle, is artistic director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Co. She grooms all the stars personally and they rehearse long and late. When Miss Ponselle was only 15, she was singing between the movie shows in her home town of Meriden, Conn., for $15 a week. Later she and her sister, Carmela, sang in vaudeville. She was the youngest American-trained singer ever to sing at the Metropolitan. In November 1918, she made her debut there singing opposite Caruso in "La Forza del Destino."

tors for $1 a person. She also sells her records at that time to increase the fund.

ANYONE MAY have an audition with Miss Ponselle, but very few are accepted.

"I tell them the truth, which often hurts," she reports, "but it is better that way." "We do not go by time with our lessons, we work until we are tired," she relates.

Miss Ponselle, now divorced, lives alone in the Villa Pace with 2 servants, 16 dogs, 3 cats. She reports that she always has had dogs and cats around, but "this really sort of snowballed." She started with one black poodle, "Impy," who got lonely when Miss Ponselle was out, so she got a playmate for him. And it's simply gone on from there!

Miss Ponselle thinks the trouble with young singers today is that they are burned out before they begin. They appear on television — success goes to their heads—they won't listen to advice, and so they never become truly great. She wants to pass her gift along to young singers and feels that retired artists should impart their experience to the young.

La Shell Adds Theater School

Enrollments are open in the new School of Theater Arts of the LaShell Playhouse, 5384 Long Beach Blvd., according to an announcement by the school's director, Ilene Ferris.

Students ranging in age from 3 up may study all phases of the dance in the dance workshop and acting and stage technique in the drama workshop. A modeling and charm course also will be offered. More information is available at the playhouse.

Music in Light Mood at Library

Lighter music may mean many things to many people. The following longplay records are recent acquisitions at the Main Library and each one represents lighter music to some patrons: "American Banjo" (tunes and songs in Scruggs style by Joe Stewart and others); "The Goofing-Off Suite" arranged and played by Pete Seeger on his guitar; "Haitian Dances" play by Frantz Casseus, guitarist; "Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy" singing sentimental favorites; "Pop Stoppers" played by the Boston Pops; and Strauss, "Waltzes" played by the New London Symphonic Orchestra.

Any of these recordings may be borrowed for two-week periods from the Main Library in Lincoln Park.

Lunt, Fontanne

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are starring in "The Visit," which opened a three-week run at the Biltmore Theatre, Los Angeles, Tuesday.

MODERN CERAMICS

These ceramic paintings by Polia Pillin are typical of her work currently on view at Long Beach Museum of Art. Display will continue through Dec. 6.

brated Italian violinist, he was a contemporary of Bach. Bach in fact, sometimes rewrote Vivaldi's works under his own name. The practice was in keeping with the spirit of the times when the highest compliment one composer could pay another was to use his compositions.

"This," observed Stanton, "has changed with Petrillo."

COMPOSERS at this Baroque period first were derided for their ornate, uneven style, but won acceptance as listeners realized their compositions simply were a different form of music.

"The composer today is in much the same position. Simply because music is not like Beethoven or Brahms, it is not necessarily bad. It may be very good. I stoutly insist that new music is worth bothering about once. It deserves to be heard. If it has something to say it will say it to you and make real sense to your mind, it will establish itself; if not, it will fall by the wayside."

Mendelssohn's Symphony in A Major No. 4, the "Italian Symphony," has even less associative meaning than the Vivaldi work.

"The only possible Italian ingredient is the fourth movement, the Saltarello, which is an Italian dance style. However, this could be one's favorite symphony on the merit of sound alone. There is much melody, and a good melody is one of the toughest things in the world to produce. No one can teach a composer how to write melody—it's a God-given gift."

"LISTEN to the way the composer works out sound, what follows what, how he builds from one theme to another. Don't say, 'This is impossible technical; I could not do it!' Of course you can. It just takes listening practice. Let the emotions fall where they may."

Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun" is based on a mystic nature poem by Mallarme, telling the experiences of a mythical faun-god of the woodland.

Reading fulsome excerpts, Stanton asked wryly "Could sound really express this?"

What the composer actually did was to produce distinctive, beautiful music based on a new concept of harmony which "would have shocked Mendelssohn."

"Romanticism tried to express emotion in such detail that it was a little bit indecent. Debussy, once regarded as decadent, is now considered actually stuffy by some people, but he set out to blur, to use elusive, tonal colors, to be specific in a vague way just as the school of impressionistic painters did. He began the modern music movement."

CLOSING number on tonight's program will be "El Amor Brujo" (Love, the Sorcerer) by Manuel de Falla, a pupil of Debussy. First produced as a ballet in Barcelona in 1915, it survives primarily in its orchestrated version. Again, the story is less important than the music, which abounds in Spanish rhythm. The familiar "Ritual Fire Dance" is from this suite.

Tickets, both for tonight's concert and for the concert season, will be available at the box office before performance time.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. William E. Webb, president, Mrs. Lewis Taylor Dorgan reported that the Long Beach organization to date has contributed $9,101 to the Symphony Assn. continuance fund. Mrs. Ralph G. Bowdle announced that Mary Costa will be soloist for the promenade concert April 29. Mrs. Robert Johnson, president of Symphony Juniors, told of plans to produce a children's musical, "Mother Goose," Dec. 12 as a continuance fund project.

The Pilgrims Built Well

By Betty Hardesty

THE PILGRIMS were good builders and they hastened to provide housing for all Mayflower passengers as soon as a site for Plymouth Colony had been selected.

When they had first landed Nov. 11, 1621, on the tip of Cape Cod, the women and children had been left on board while the men made expeditions by shallop (small boat) to select a safe place. After ten days of exploration, they had decided on the present site which was not too wooded and which provided a hill for a fortification.

At last, on Nov. 22, the men went ashore "to fell and carry timber to provide stuff for building." They dragged logs to a pit which they had dug to make it possible to saw them into planks. By laying the big logs across the top, a man could handle the saw from above while another worked in the pit. These were called the "upper and nether workman."

SUNDAY, AS A DAY OF REST and worship, was spent aboard ship but Monday found the men back at work, "some to fell timber, some to saw, some to rise and some to carry" as Gov. Bradford's eyewitness chronicle, "Of Plimouth Plantation," records. By Thursday they had enough wood ready to start construction of the "mount" or fort on the hill. This was to be their meeting house and place of worship as well as a refuge from savages.

Bradford described the fort-meeting house thus, "They built a fort of good timbers, bothe strong and comly, which was of good defense, made with flat roof and battlements on which their ordnance was mounted." De Resiere, who was dispatched as embassy from New Amsterdam to Plymouth, added this information: "On the hill they have a large square house with flat roof made with thick sawn planks stayed with oak beams, upon the top of which they have six cannons which shoot iron balls of five pounds."

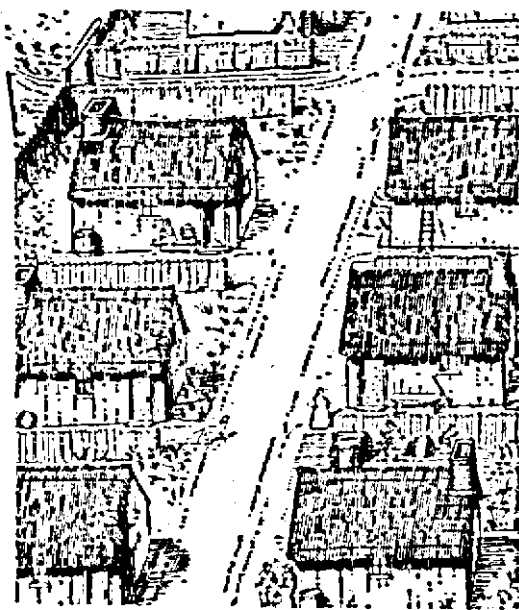

The Dutchman continued: "The lower part they use for their church where they preach on Sundays. They assemble by beat of drum, each with his musket or firelock in front of the Captain's door." (This procession is re-enacted each Thanksgiving in Plymouth today.) The Captain's house was then on the first street (now Leyden) of 2 rows of houses which could be seen from the hill fort. The lay-out and building of this street is described in a London publication, "Mount's Relation," composed jointly by Bradford and Winslow.

"SO IN THE AFTERNOON we went to measure out the grounds. First we took notice how many families they were, willing all single men to join with some Familie, as they sought fit, that so we might build fewer houses . . . which was done, and we reduced them to 19 . . . To greater families were allotted larger plots, to every person half a pole in breadth and 3 in length; so Lots were cast where every man should lie, which was done and staked out; we thought this large enough at first for houses and gardens so impale them around." (Fence them in).

De Resiere, writing in 1627, mentioned the fenced gardens. "New Plymouth," he wrote, "lies on the slope of a hill, stretching east toward the seacoast with a broad street about 500 feet long . . . with a stockade against sudden attack; and at the ends of the street are 3 wooden gates." As years passed and dangers lessened, houses were built outside the palisade of sharpened oak logs. Gov. Bradford first built on what is now Middle St. and Elder Brewster later. Miles Standish and John Alden, however, put their new houses at the base of the hill, close to the fort. Today there are 5 houses used by the Pilgrims in Plymouth, still in good condition.

On Summer St., Richard Sparrow's house built in 1640 of clear pine planks similar to those used in the first houses, still stands. This and the

Identical houses of Plymouth Colony are seen in this drawing of Pilgrims' first street.

Indian summer at Plymouth Colony in 1727 is re-enacted by a "Pilgrim farmer" who shocks corn in preparation for the hard New England winter. Replicas of some of the early houses invite visitors.

Pilgrims built a combination fort and meeting house of logs and having a sturdy, flat roof with battlements for installation of ordnance. Lower section was used on Sunday for church services.

Yashimas' Art at Bay Shore

An exhibit of paintings by Taro and Mitsu Yashima will be on view at Bay Shore Branch Library, 195 Bay Shore Ave. through Dec. 16. It may be viewed between noon and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9:30-5:30 Saturdays.

The exhibit is in part a retrospective show of the work of both artists. Paintings typical of their periods of artistic development during 20 years in the United States have been chosen.

YASHIMA'S works are in many collections and he is well known for his illustrations of the beautiful children's books: "The Village Tree," "Crow Boy," and "Umbrella." Mrs. Yashima collaborated with Taro on the book "Plenty to Watch." She was recently awarded an honorable mention in the Los Angeles All-City Outdoor Festival and has had a drawing included in the Los Angeles County Museum's 1959 exhibit of the work of artists of Los Angeles County. She is a member of the American Association of Women Artists.

Altrusans in Joint Dinner

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Calling it one of the outstanding events of their club year, members of Altrusa Club hosted a joint dinner meeting at Ricart's Restaurant this week with members from Garden Grove, Torrance and Covina-West Covina clubs.

The dinner party was planned by the local club's four program chairmen: Ethelyn Johnson, Isabel Bright, Madge Allensworth and Myrtle Poultney. President Teresa Parker presented Kay Langan, vice president, as mistress of ceremonies.

Irene Davidson, Torrance president, and Francis Kirkland, past president of the Covina group, described their projects and activities since forming a little over a year ago, sponsored as new clubs in Altrusa International by the Long Beach club.

High lighting program was taped recording of talk given at the Altrusa International convention in Chicago by Dr. Kenneth Wells, president of Freedom Foundation, Valley Forge. Monica Ryan was in charge of decorations.

Next important date for the local club is the annual Christmas party to be staged at the home of Dr. Ethel West with Ellen Shumacher as chairman.

Zonta Club

Campus Room of the University Club was setting Thursday evening for the Zonta Club dinner meeting. Robert H. Metzgar, director of public relations for Long Beach Harbor Dept., was guest speaker. He covered the harbor's development and plans for its future in a talk entitled, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," impressing his listeners with the vital role this harbor plays in the lives of all Long Beach residents. Mary Noonan introduced the speaker. Doris Deardon, president, conducted.

National Secretaries
"The Biggest Game of 1960" was topic of Dr. LeRoy C. Hardy, associate professor of political science at Long Beach State College, when he appeared as guest speaker at the November dinner meeting of Queen Beach Chapter, National Secretaries, at the Hawaiian. His subject covered his analysis of presidential politics of the campaigns ahead.

DAR Careerists

Susan B. Anthony Chapter of DAR, composed mainly of career women, had George Pike, director of the Council of the Indian Center, Los Angeles, as its guest speaker at last Sunday's luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel.

Pike said there are approximately 10,000 Indians living in the Los Angeles area with members of the Navajo tribe the most numerous. I made it when West was kind enough to come to my aid twice.

"His double was the first bit of help since it located the king of spades for me. His defense was even more helpful."

"I WON the opening diamond in my own hand, led a club to dummy's jack and another club to my king. West held off! I don't know what he expected to gain by this play but I do know what it cost him."

"I ran off the rest of the diamonds and three hearts discarding the jack of spades."

"Now I led a third club and all too late West saw the error of his ways. He was in the lead and had to play a spade to me."

The hand is interesting indeed. West's double is not approved but, as Green points out, West would have come out all right if he had taken his ace of clubs earlier.

Acorns were a staple food with the Paiute Indians who stored the acorns in chuck-ahs or granaries, as shown above at an Indian home in Yosemite.

Thanks to the Old Coyote Man

By E. J. Leslie

THANKSGIVING festivals are as old as man. Since Adam and Eve, man has been offering the fruits of the harvest to his god with thanksgiving and prayers for future abundance. The Feast of the Acorns was an old California Indian custom long before the first Thanksgiving celebration observed by white men in the United States was held by the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass., in 1621.

In the Sierra Nevada, the acorns of the black oak (Quercus kelloggii) held the same place of importance on the Indians' menu as did the turkey on the Puritans' table. Acorn bread and mush constituted almost 80 per cent of the food supply of the Yosemite Valley Indians (ah-wah-nee-chees) whose nomadic, mongoloid ancestors tracked the mastodon across Bering Strait without a passport thousands of years ago. They brought many ancient customs with them.

None of the new crop of acorns was eaten until due respect had been paid to their revered deity, the Old Coyote Man, and the spirits of the dead who were remembered at all celebrations. After the new crop had been harvested by the squaws and children and stored in chuck-ahs (granaries) for winter use, an invitation to the celebration was sent to friends by a runner with a knotted string message indicating the number of days until the feast.

LIKE ALL GOOD hostesses in the days before the deep freeze, the squaws spent days in preparation of food for feasting. New acorns were shelled, the kernels ground into meal in stone metates. Spread out in shallow, circular sand basins and covered with spruce twigs, the meal was leached of its bitter, tannin content with several applications of warm water.

Huge baskets were filled with pinkish-gray loaves of new acorn bread. Deer, supplied by the braves, were dressed and cut into strips for broiling; each person broiled his own meat. Wrapped in leaves, deer brains, camass roots, and fish, fowl and rabbits with hot stones in their centers roasted all night in the stone-lined ovens under the fire to be ready for the feast on the following day.

Under a tree, manzanita juice dripped in the cider press, a loosely-woven basket balanced on two sticks on top of a leakproof basket. Bay nuts, edible fungi, wild fruit, seeds, salads of miner's lettuce, clover, and fern shoots, were also prepared. Pinon-nut meal was mixed with wild berries and rolled into balls to be toasted on the end of a stick.

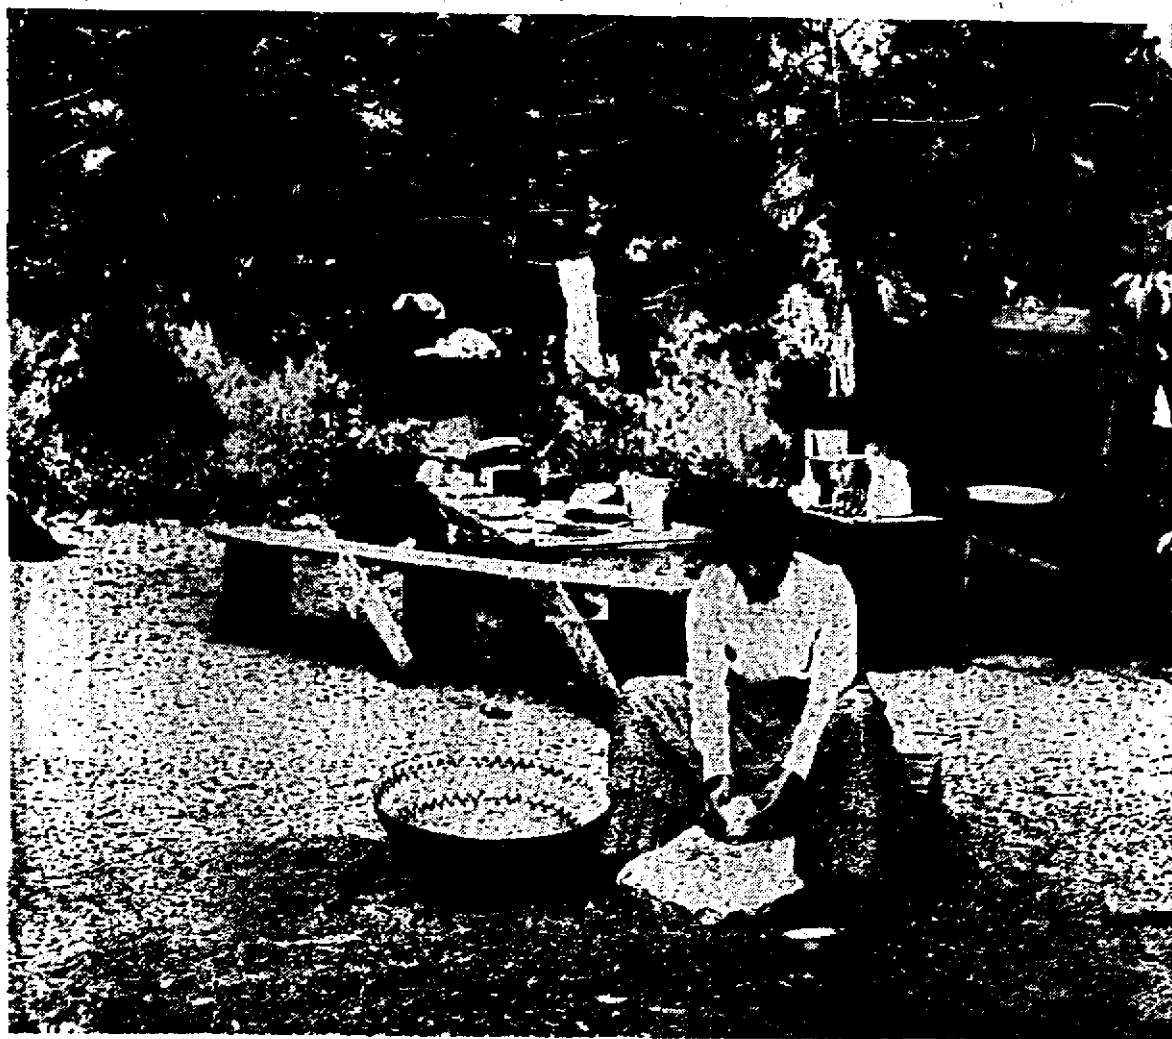

In a trading deal with the fly-people (Monachees), acorns were exchanged for caterpillars of the Pandora moth, salt, and a larva delicacy from flies which bred in Mona Lake; both were used in stews.

NEW ACORN MUSH was prepared by dropping hot stones into watertight baskets half full of water and meal, and stirring with wooden ladies to prevent burning. Insects and ashes were skimmed off the top with basket skimmers. When thickened, the mush was cooled in smaller baskets, and eaten by the lick-finger method. Several ate from the same basket; or the mush could be peeled off the cooled stones.

On the designated day, visitors to the Feast of the Acorns arrived with gifts to be burned in the ritual fire honoring the dead. Two days were spent in fasting and mourning for deceased relatives and great chiefs who were eulogized by the chief acting as master of ceremonies. New acorn meal was thrown on the fire. Costumed dancers pantomimed the life and death of those mourned and the rites were interspersed with plaintive cries of the mourners and the sounds of clapsticks and bone whistles.

EARLY ON THE third morning, the mourners had their faces and wrists washed by two chiefs, and they were then free to join the festivities; all except a recent widow who wore the pitch and ashes of her

The Game Created to Evade the Law

By Ray Gise

MOST authorities agree that bowling originated in northern Italy about 1,500 years ago and the game has been played down through the years in one form or another.

However, the game of tenpins, as we know it, was created to evade the law. The original game of ninepins was introduced to America by the Dutch about 1600. Ninepins enjoyed popularity for a great many years, the pins being set in a diamond shape. The game became the rage of sporting men and gradually fell into the control of gamblers. Matches for money were made and eventually proved the game's undoing. The Connecticut legislature passed a law prohibiting the game of ninepins, and a short time later New York and Massachusetts did the same.

To get around the law which prohibited the game of ninepins but not of bowling, a game called cocked hat, which called for fewer pins, was substituted. This state of affairs continued a number of years until some genius hit upon the idea of adding another pin to the ninepin set thereby creating a tenpin combination with pins set in a triangular formation thus circumventing the law against ninepins and bringing forth the game as we know it today.

TENPINS, WHILE ENJOYING a certain amount of popularity, frequently carried a dubious reputation. Most bowling alleys were run in conjunction with pool rooms or saloons, and usually housed in basements. The game was played much as today but there was no overall supervision as to the equipment which made up the game.

"City slickers" were expert in the use of the "dodo" or loaded ball, pins of various weights and sizes could be intermixed and the alleys or lanes as we term them today, could be "slotted" or "high-boarded" in various ways to the advantage of the local players. Should all this fail, the pin setters (pins used to be hand set) knew a few tricks in forming the pin triangle.

Out of all this confusion a few dedicated bowlers realized that uniform rules and regulations were necessary if the game of tenpins was to survive, and so the American Bowling Congress was formed in 1895.

The Congress set up uniform standards for equipment, playing rules were stabilized, and a chaotic sport became of age. The next step was to get the game out of the dim, smoke-filled basements and out into the light where it could become the family sport it is today.

And so, women discovered bowling. They also discovered they could beat the men at their own game, because this is a sport in which strength is not the factor. It is a game of rhythm, timing and accuracy. Today, millions of women are bowling. The Women's International Bowling Congress was organized in 1916, with a first tournament in 1917 attracting 8 teams, or 40 women, to compete for prizes. Today the ranks of women bowlers are in thousands.

OLD-TIMERS STILL RECALL when Mrs. Flora D. McCutcheon, a Pueblo, Colo., housewife, challenged Jimmy Smith, one of the early all-time greats to a three-game match. This was in 1927 and Mrs. McCutcheon had been bowling the short period of two years. Smith was touring the country giving exhibitions. He consented to the match with a smile but his feelings suffered a reverse when he went down to defeat at the hands of the little lady, 704 to 686 in 3 games.

The ABC and WIBC with organization and uniformity today has made bowling the largest participating sport. Through city and state affiliations millions enjoy the game. Age competes with youth on equal terms. Both men's and women's local associations sponsor junior bowlers, teaching them the fundamentals of the sport, because from today's juniors come tomorrow's champions. Two hundred thousand boys and girls in the 8-18 age group make up the American Junior Bowling Congress).

Bowling proprietors and equipment manufacturers have kept up with progress. Today's modern bowling center is a far cry from not too many years ago. First the game itself was speeded up with the automatic pinsetters, a device that sets pins and returns the ball, all formerly done by hand. Electric eye foul detectors, pin indicators, which show any pins left standing, and electric hand driers followed. The modern pin palace has excellent restaurants and coffee shops. Some have nurseries to let busy mothers enjoy carefree bowling. Soundproofing and air conditioning have added to the bowler's comfort.

BOWLING WAS NEVER considered much of a spectator sport until television brought the game (Continued on Page 31)

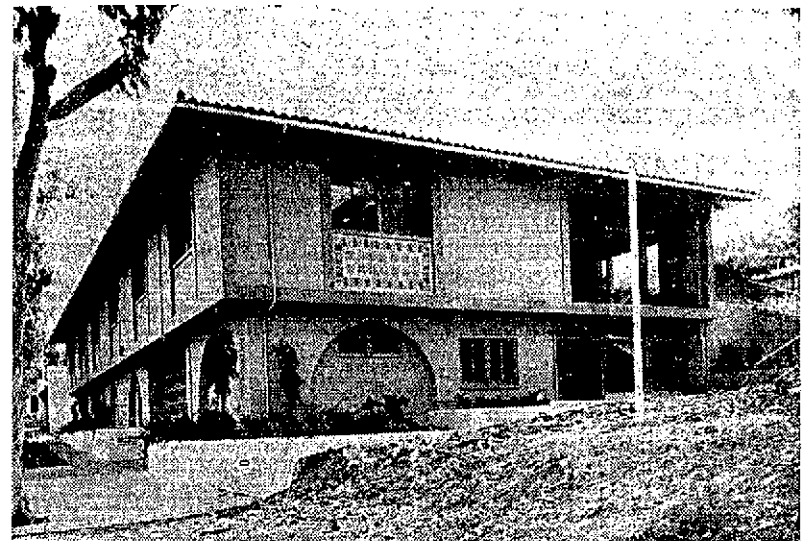

Six million women are active bowlers in U.S. today. Here, "bowlerette" shows skill.

In bowling's transformation from a dubious sport in smoke-filled basements to the light and air-conditioned alleys of today, many centers have provided nurseries for tots while mothers bowl.

New City Hall Facilities in Palos Verdes Estates Opened

CITY LEASES BUILDING

This new city hall building for the City of Palos Verdes Estates was recently completed at a cost of more than $400,000. The building is owned by Robert S. Norman, who is leasing it to the city on a long-term basis. Millie & Severson, Inc., of Long Beach, was general contractor on the project.

Officials and employees of the City of Palos Verdes Estates are now occupying a new city hall building which was recently completed at a cost in excess of $400,000.

Owner of the facility, located at 340 Palos Verdes Drive West, is Robert S. Norman, Los Angeles real estate developer, who is leasing the building to the city on a long-term basis.

As designed by Carrington H. Lewis, A.I.A., the city hall contains more than 18,000 square feet distributed between two levels and a full basement.

ARCHITECTURAL STYLING of the structure incorporates the Spanish character set by other buildings in the general Palos Verdes Estates area.

Primarily of reinforced masonry construction, red brick is utilized on the first level of the building. The upper portion is stucco-over-steel studding with exterior panels of custom-styled ceramic tile under window sections. Old mission-red tile is featured on the roof.

The first floor is devoted to police and fire departments, including jail facilities for both men and women, photo lab, offices, apparatus rooms, lounges and chief's quarters.

Sections for the city engineering, buildings, streets and park departments, and offices for the mayor, city treasurer and city clerk are located on the second level.

Millie & Severson, Inc., Long Beach, was general contractor on the project.

NEW MANAGER

James Bird was recently named to manage the Firestone Store at 7th and Locust Ave. Prior to this assignment, Bird served as a supervisor for Firestone. Kit Will Produce Trailers in Kansas Extension of mobilehome production facilities into mid-western U.S. is slated for Kit Manufacturing Inc., following acquisition of a plant location at McPherson, Kan. Scheduled for early 1960 building completion, the latest facility will be the second planned by the Long Beach firm in 12 months, as part of a nationwide expansion program. Production of Kit Golden State and Stateliner mobilehomes commenced at Caldwell, Idaho, last January.

More than 50,000 square feet of production, warehousing and administration space will be erected on a 10-acre site at McPherson.

An initial 100 man labor force will be drawn from the McPherson area with supervisory personnel transferred from the California and Idaho plants. Workers will be increased to 200 as production continues.

Announcement of the new plant was made by Kit president Dan Pocapalia who said that total investment will approach $750,000.

Kit officers engaged in the venture include Pocapalia, Arnold J. Romeyn, secretary-treasurer, Thomas G. Fagan, sales vice president and V. T. October.

Kruse, engineering vice president. General manager of the McPherson plant will be Frank Hanson, vice president. The mobilehome manufacturing firm was established in 1946 and produced small camper trailers. When the demand for residence type units increased, Kit converted to large mobilehomes and today produces models up to 55 feet in length and 10 feet wide.

A LONG-RANGE development program for Brown Military Academy at Glendora has been announced by the board of trustees of the John Brown Schools Foundation of California. Planned over a 10-year period, the estimated cost of the development has been set at $1,500,000. The first phase will be the construction of a new 100-cadet barracks. Second on the construction schedule will be a gymnasium-classroom building with adjoining stadium seating.

Seek Better Price Listing for Cars

By JACK VANDENBERG

DETROIT (UPI)—The price of an automobile can be more deceptive than the cost of any other product on the American market.

There appears to be some hope, however, that the situation may be cleared up a little bit at least.

Part of the blame for the misleading prices quoted by the manufacturers each year when they introduce their new models must fall on the manufacturers themselves.

But the government also must share the blame.

There appears little hope, here, at present at least, of enlisting government aid in clearing up the situation. But the auto companies are beginning to feel the sting of irritated consumers who see one price listed by the manufacturers and another listed on the car at the dealers' showrooms.

AMERICAN MOTORS tried to straighten this situation out this year by giving out the "suggested factory delivered price" on its cars instead of the traditional "suggested factory list price."

Although the names sound quite similar there is quite a difference between the two.

The "suggested factory list price" of a car does not include such things as federal excise taxes, dealer handling and overhead charges and freight charges, nor the retail delivery or "make-ready" charges.

The "suggested factory delivered price" includes all of these except the freight charges. In effect, the suggested factory delivered price is the f.o.b. price, or the price of the car at the factory.

Under the circumstances, the suggested factory delivered price is fairly honest.

IT DOESN'T INCLUDE the cost of any of the accessories but not all buyers want the same accessories so a manufacturer can't tell any individual how much he will have to pay for his car, equipped as he wants it, unless he gives different prices to everyone, as a dealer does.

But federal law forbids any manufacturer setting a specific price on even a basic automobile, without accessories. The manufacturer can only "suggest" the price.

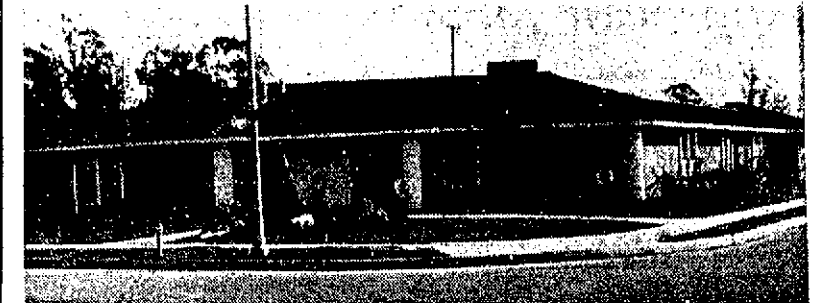

Neither can a manufacturer include the freight charges in his prices because these charges vary throughout the country, depending partially on the distance of the purchase point from the point of manufacture. So his price is based on delivery at the factory.

But at least this price appears on the price sticker on the car in the dealer's showroom for the prospective buyer to see.

THE STICKER then shows that freight charges, state and local taxes, and the cost of accessories have been added before the delivery price is listed on the bottom of the sticker.

Marion, Gregg and April enjoy a happy moment in their apartment before Marion receives a long distance phone call telling her that Eddie has married another girl. She is shocked, hurt.

Marion throws herself at Mike Rice (Stephen Boyd), a Fabian editor, but he's not responsive.

HOLLYWOOD

The Girls Who Have the Best

MARIAN BENDER (Hope Lange), Gregg Adams (Suzy Parker) and April Morrison (Diane Baker) go to work for Fabian Publications. They become good friends and share an apartment. Marion is engaged to Eddie Harris (Brett Halsey) who is in Europe on a scholarship. Gregg, who wants to be an actress, is in love with a theatrical producer. April is in love with love—hasn't found her man yet. These are the basic ingredients of "The Best of Everything," the 20th Century-Fox new CinemaScope-Deluxe color film, based on Rona Jaffe's best-selling novel, coming soon. Theme of the book and play is woven around girls who have had "the best of everything"—the best families, best education, best jobs and opportunities but fail to get the best from life.

The Jerry Wald production includes in the cast Stephen Boyd, Martha Hyer, Joan Crawford, Brian Aherne, Robert Evans, Donald Harren, Sue Carson, Louis Jourdan.

April finds what she thinks is the man of her dreams, socialite Dexter Key (Robert Evans). Marion worries about this relationship—a well-founded worry as later developments prove.

As another Fabian editor, Joan Crawford makes things difficult for Marion, but leaves the firm.

Gregg encounters only tragedy. April finds true love. Marion now has only her career, which is leading to rapid promotion, but not "best of everything." But there is a kind of romance.

Appraisal Meet Set

R. D. Boggs, president of Chapter 94 of the Society of Residential Appraisers, announced that the next meeting will be held Wednesday at the Petroleum Club in Long Beach. The history of a subdivision, from the original idea to the sale, will be discussed.

Featured speaker will be Ray C. Cherry, newly elected president of the Home Builders Assn. of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties.

CHERRY WAS educated at the University of Colorado, where he studied engineering. He came to California in 1926 and entered the construction industry. During World War II he was overseas, principally in the British Isles, as a construction engineer for the United States Air Force.

In 1947 he joined forces with John Hadley. They have built shopping centers, restaurants and other commercial projects in addition to more than 4,000 homes in the last 10 years. A notable Hadley-Cherry project is the fashionable Cave des Roys, luxurious private club on La Cienega strip. Cherry lives in San Marino.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 with cocktails followed by dinner at 7.

Wins Contracts

Ford Coming Out Soon With 'Hottest' Engine

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Automotive Writer

Without fanfare or advertising Ford will begin offering a new engine next week which develops 360 horsepower—highest in the industry.

This represents a jump of 60 horsepower for Ford and pushes it 25 horsepower above the hottest stock engines available from Chevrolet or Plymouth.

A Ford Starliner equipped with the new engine has been clocked in excess of 145 miles per hour at Daytona Beach, Fla., and at the Ford test track at Romeo, Mich.

THERE WAS a time when introduction of such an engine would have been accompanied by blares from the publicity trumpets. Claims such as "the hot one's even hotter" which Chevrolet once used would have echoed from the airwaves.

Why the silence now? Three years ago the heads of the various auto companies, all members of the Automobile Manufacturers' Assn., got together and decided the hullabaloo about speed and horsepower had gotten out of hand. With the highway death toll rising, critics of the industry were becoming extremely vocal. So the AMA directors agreed on a policy statement which became known as the "speed and horsepower" resolution.

The industry executives agreed not to publicize or advertise speed or horsepower or even to suggest speed in their advertising. Additionally they agreed to refrain from participating in any event featuring speed.

As a result factories withdrew sponsorship of stock car racing teams; quit furnishing factory mechanics at race tracks; dropped the traditional pace car from the Indianapolis 500 mile race.

HORSEPOWER remained, but it was played down in the ads.

All companies still officially abide by the resolution although the AMA has no enforcement powers. The executives agreed to police their own firms. Some companies have made mild complaints about competitors' advertising, but apparently there has been no serious violation.

This fall, when 1960 models were introduced, economy was the key word. Several makes cut horsepower for the first time in years. The compact cars made their debuts. The Corvair, at 80 horsepower, has the lowest such rating for an American car since the days of the 4-cylinder Henry J and the Allstate.

THE FACTORIES' withdrawal did not kill stock car racing. The National Assn. for Stock Cars, Inc. (NASCAR) reports business booming as never before. And hot engines have continued to be available in stock cars, particularly in Ford's competitors.

The new engine from Ford—actually a fairly complete modification of the 352 cubic inch V-8 which has been built the past two years—represents a move to catch up, although Ford doesn't say so.

In fact, the only advertising so far has been by an independent Charlotte, N. C., firm known as T-Bird Power Products Co., which headlines its page in the Nascar newsletter "Want To Go 150 Mph?"

IF FORD PUT out such an ad it would be in direct violation of the AMA resolution.

These are the details on the engine: 360 horsepower at 6,000 revolutions per minute; 352 cubic inches (which means Ford has achieved the goal of at least one horsepower per cubic inch); 10.6 to 1 compression; aluminum intake manifold; single 4-barrel Holley carburetor; large exhaust manifold; solid lifters borrowed from the Falcon six.

Chevrolet offers a number of options in its engine line topped with a 348 cubic inch V-8 with triple 2-barrel carburetors and special cam which develops 335 horsepower at 5,800 r.p.m.

PLYMOUTH TOPS its line with a 383 cubic inch V-8 developing 330 horsepower at 4,800 r.p.m., using dual 4-barrel carburetors.

Lee Petty of Randleman, N. C., Nascar's 1959 grand national champion, drove a 1959 Plymouth much of the year using a 361 cubic inch engine with single four-barrel carburetor which developed 305 horsepower.

The average motorist probably wouldn't be satisfied with any of these engines. He rarely can use the horsepower available in standard which tend to idle "rough" in city traffic, certainly aren't noted for fuel economy.

But if speed is what you want, you can still get it—and how!

Pageant Plaza Is Appealing

Pageant Plaza, a spaciouly planned community of homes in Westminster, is offering 4 big bedrooms, or 3 big bedrooms and a convertible den in plans that are sized for elbow room. These large homes include 2 complete baths, and are "sectionalized" for maximum privacy and comfort.

Priced from $14,600, Pageant Plaza features easy FHA terms for non-veterans, with a down payment lay-away plan provided by the McCarthy Co., sales agents. In addition, there is a trade-in plan provided whereby older homes may be employed as down payments.

Pageant Plaza offers forced air heating, room length walk-in wardrobe closets, and superior appointments throughout. Available at builder's cost are a series of optional features, too, including built-in gas range and oven, hardwood parquet flooring, and automatic dishwashers.

To visit the homes, drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to the Grand Ave. turnoff. Follow Hwy. 39 markers around and down to Westminster Blvd., and go left on Westminster to the furnished model homes.

Animal Fats in Less Demand

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture department says it expects the nation's fat consumption pattern in 1960 to continue a trend away from animal fats.

The agency predicts an average per capita consumption of 46 pounds of fat next year, the same as this year. It said products using vegetable oils have been gaining in recent years over butter and lard. No change in this trend was foreseen.

Farm Highways Cut Truck Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agricultural marketing service says that producers and haulers of farm products will benefit materially from the 40,000-mile interstate highway system now being built. It said in a transportation report that better roads and shorter routes will tend to reduce truck operating costs and reduce the transit time from farm to market.

Fairless Award to C. M. White

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers, Inc. has named Charles M. White as recipient of its Benjamin F. Fairless award. White is chairman of Republic Steel Corp. The award is in recognition of "his ability, energy and determination in starting the top-pressure blast furnace and foresight in providing it with prepared burdens have created the world's dominant metal producer."

AN EASTGATE HOME

Record-breaking sales have been chalked up in Eastgate in Garden Grove where homes such as this are priced from $11,950. Close to everything, the homes have great appeal to families seeking to escape the smog.

Smogless Eastgate Community Is Appealing to Many Families

The rapidly increasing number of families moving into western Orange County to escape the smog and heat of the metropolitan area is reflected in the continuing record-breaking home sales at the popular 2500-home Eastgate residential community in Garden Grove.

Frank H. McFarland, Eastgate sales agent, reports that the comfortable year-round climate and numerous recreation facilities in the area have been major factors in the sale of more than 1200 Eastgate homes during the past 90 days.

EXPANDING freeways and thoroughfares for convenient commuting have also contributed to the great demand for the Eastgate homes, he said. Both the Santa Ana Freeway and proposed San Diego Freeway pass close to Eastgate and through streets make driving to the rapidly expanding employment centers in the local area easy and fast.

FHA Assets Top Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Assets of the Federal Housing Administration have topped the billion dollar mark, commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman announced.

The mortgage-insuring agency closed its 25th year of operation on June 30 with assets of $1,002,047,985 and liabilities of $244,135,794 Zimmerman's report showed.

The assets included $757,912,171 in the insurance reserve funds built up to cover possible defaults by homebuyers on their mortgages.

Over the quarter-century, losses on home insurance were only 7/100 of 1 per cent of the insurance written, and on apartment, co-op and other projects only 6/100 of 1 per cent.

Going Abroad

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—McCulloch Corp.'s Marine Products Division plans to produce Scott outboard motors in Australia.

BUYERS HAVE a selection of 15 exterior designs and a variety of floor plans to choose from. The spacious interiors have 1102 to 1361 sq. ft. of living area with 3 or 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, large living room with optional fireplace, family room and well-equipped kitchen. There is an attached double garage with laundry alcove and a large yard area for outdoor family activities.

The homes at Eastgate are designed for average income families and include an unusual degree of custom styling, quality construction and built-in features for their moderate price.

Slump in Building

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The value of new construction completed in October declined by 5 per cent partly because of the steel strike, the Commerce Department said. It amounted to $4,800,000,000.

Both private and public construction slumped for the month, showing a more-than-normal change.

However, the October total was 1 per cent above the corresponding figure for October, 1958.

The value of private construction last month was $3,400,000,000, a decrease of 4 per cent from September. Private housing construction, which amounted to $2,000,000,000, also dipped 4 per cent. Public building spending declined 7 per cent in October to $1,400,000,000.

However, the department said construction expenditures in the first 10 months of this year totaled nearly 46 billion dollars, an increase of 13 per cent over the 1958 figures.

UNUSUAL construction features include a plastic membrane moisture barrier in the foundation and rigid truss roofs with wide overhanging eaves and wood shingle trim.

Among the many built-in features of the Eastgate homes are solid hardwood kitchen cabinets, a linen cabinet work center, waste disposal and installed laundry plumbing. Walk-to-wall carpeting and a counter top gas range and wall oven are included in the larger homes.

McFarland advises that the homes are priced from $11,950 to $14,450 with liberal financing terms available to non-vets, including a down payment as low as $195 plus 90 costs.

Four furnished model homes at Eastgate are open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily and are conveniently located at the corner of Knott and Chapman Ave. in Garden Grove, just west of Hwy. 39.

Contemporary architecture is noteworthy in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Prash. This view of the living room shows curving sofa and dramatic firehood of copper.

DRAMATIC simplicity of design spreads across the exterior of the very modern but pleasant home in which Mr. and Mrs. John C. Prash, 6450 Mantova St., have found continuing appreciation since moving in at Thanksgiving season a year ago. And the exterior only hints at the beauty and comfort within.

Contemporary architecture finds interesting expression here in plans designed and supervised by the young architectural partnership of

By Eileen Ball

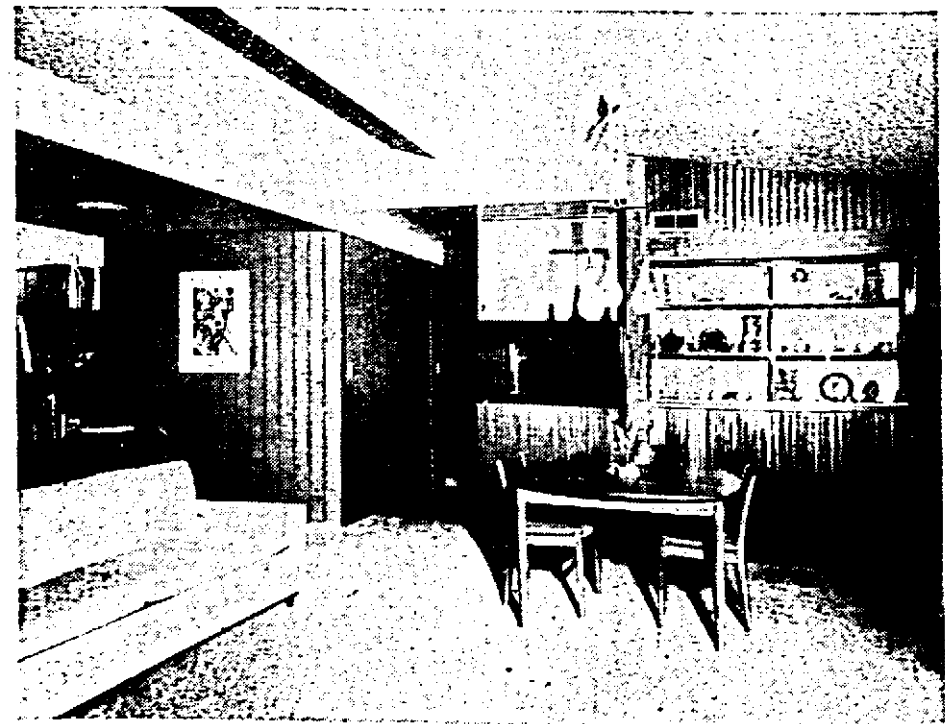

Ross De Young and John Paul, AIA.

Stucco matched to the tone of buff brick comprise exterior specifications pointed up by sweeping fascias and painted trims. A tall panel gate opens through a brick free standing wall to a private courtyard through which entry to the house is gained.

Inside the courtyard, a wide, smoothly surfaced concrete walkway is flanked by level planting beds landscaped with tropicals. The walled garden offers an interesting view from within the entry, an area that—by virtue of the courtyard's seclusion—enjoys an entire wall of plate glass without sacrifice of privacy.

A FLOOR OF GREEN slate on a level with the exterior maintains the indoor-outdoor theme. Furthering this pleasant illusion is a wall of vertical mahogany paneling that extends through the glass wall

Built-in storage abounds the combination dining-family room. A mahogany pass-through counter is functional, helps relate this area to the colorful kitchen.

Farm Exports, Imports Are Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Exports of U. S. farm products increased during the July-September period were 9 per cent larger than in the like period last year.

Reporting this, the agriculture department said largest dollar gains were in livestock feed grains, tobacco, soybeans, edible vegetable oils and animal products. Lesser increases were reported for wheat, flaxseed, fruits and vegetables.

Reports on agricultural imports showed a 12 per cent increase during the July-August period this year over last year. Coffee and crude rubber accounted for 80 per cent in this increase.

Economists Say U. S. Wouldn't Suffer If Defense Funds Cut

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK—Could the United States thrive without its $46 billion defense spending?

Economists have been doing some thinking on that subject since the United Nations produced its resolution on "general and complete disarmament."

Their answers so far have chorused "yes."

No one expects the UN hopes to be fully realized.

"But," say the economists of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, "The present setting for disarmament discussions, seemingly more auspicious than it has been for some time, quickens hopes that some relief may be obtained from the staggering financial burden and the appalling threat to human life represented by present levels of military might."

ECONOMISTS CALL ARMS PRODUCTION sheer waste. As the Morgan Guaranty experts put it in the current survey of the bank: "everything that is produced represents a sacrifice of something else that could have been produced instead."

"It is easy to overlook the billions of dollars worth of schools and colleges, improved transportation facilities, factories, and consumers' goods and services that are not coming into existence because of the tremendous outpouring of human and material resources for national defense."

"The security of the nation against attack is, of course, a prime objective and one never to be slighted whatever the cost, but it should be recognized for what it is—an unpleasant and burdensome necessity, not a stimulant to prosperity."

A REVIEW OF OUR HISTORY shows sharp cutbacks in arms spending after every war. The smallest was after Korea and it has been built up sharply since.

The experts note big cutbacks in defense after the Civil War and after World War I. In each case there were seven years of prosperous conditions. World War II brought a cut from $89 billion of $11 billion in arms spending and the civilian economy took up the slack with a vengeance. A brief recession after Korea was followed by a sharp upturn in the economy.

Hence the Morgan Guaranty ty experts conclude that our post-war experiences give no support whatever to the view that heavy military spending in itself is in any way essential to prosperity and economic growth.

There could be some temporary dislocation in an arms reduction, it is admitted, but past experience proves it would be short-lived.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING could change from war goods to peace goods. It could finance building of schools, highways, and other public works.

If the government cut its spending, it would need fewer taxes and it then could give the nation much-needed tax relief which in turn would provide billions for heretofore unfulfilled desires.

Private spending then could take up the slack of government spending.

Not long ago the stock market had a shock when there were hints of government cutbacks in defense spending. There already have been changes which cost less in arms outlays.

A SHIFT FROM THE AIRPLANE to the rocket has resulted in lower costs, although recently there has been talk of increasing the space age spending. This will still be at the expense of airplanes.

Business men and market operators are expected to do a lot of thinking and no little talking on the prospect of defense spending cutbacks from now on.

So far no one is even mentioning a prospect of a complete disarmament. If that should happen by some miracle, there could be a swift and deep dislocation in our economy.

But as the Morgan Guaranty economists view the situation, "the more conceivable prospect of limited and gradual reduction in armaments need rouse no fears as to economic consequences."

"To the contrary, if any appreciable degree of disarmament can be achieved on a basis consistent with national security, it promises great and lasting economic benefits."

One of Every Five Drivers Needs Vision Care for Safe Motoring

By DR. P. N. DeVERE
President, American Optometric Assn.

One out of five drivers, even those with glasses, has at least one vision defect which affects safe driving. And millions of these motorists are unaware of their shortcomings.

This condition was indicated by a recent test with screening instruments of the vision of 3,000 drivers in 25 states conducted under the auspices of the American Optometric Assn. (AOA).

All of these drivers—with a very few exceptions (less than 1/10 of 1 per cent)—can have their vision corrected to enable them to be safe drivers.

Studies by the AOA Motorists' Vision and Highway Safety Committee show the following vision skills vitally affect safe driving:

DISTANCE ACUITY: The ability to focus and see clearly with each eye separately and both eyes together, particularly at a distance of many feet or yards. Probably the most important vision skill for driving, it is essential for seeing danger, reading road signs in time and for general adaptation to driving conditions.

DEPTH PERCEPTION: Ability to correctly judge distances between yourself and another object, especially when both are in motion. This is essential for passing other cars in the face of oncoming traffic and for maneuvering from one lane to another among moving vehicles. Deficiency in this skill is one of the most common defects found among drivers.

FIELD OF VISION: Ability to see over a large area without moving either your eyes or your head, sometimes called "looking out of the corners of your eyes." This, of course, is needed to detect crossroad traffic, pedestrians, to check traffic at your rear through mirrors and to get the general driving picture.

Muscle Balance: Ability to point your eyes simultaneously with ease at a given object. This is essential for good two-eyed vision, acuity, depth perception and field of vision.

Night Vision Skills: The ability to see under low illumination beyond the range of your own headlights, ability to see against glare of oncoming headlights, and the ability to recover quickly from glare afterwards. Night vision depreciates rapidly after 40 years of age. Inadequate night vision largely accounts for the greater number of accidents at night.

To be a safe driver, you must use your vision skills to develop safe driving habits, and you must compensate for vision defects. You must also remember it takes time to see, and then it takes time to act.

FOR INSTANCE, if you are average in reaction time, it takes you a little over 4/10 of a second to move your foot from the accelerator to the brake pedal after you have seen a red light. This is one of the simplest reactions in driving. And if you are average, you can perceive an unexpected obstacle only one-half as far away as you can see an expected one.

"When you apply your brakes at 70 m.p.h., your car will go seven times the distance it takes to stop at 25 m.p.h. That's why you need good visual acuity to read signs in time to stop. With 20/50 vision, you won't see the standard five-inch letters on a stop sign until you are 90 feet away. At 60 m.p.h. you would be 227 feet beyond the sign before you could stop.

ON A DARK highway, clear vision is limited to the effective length of your car's headlights beams, less than 300 feet. Night vision depreciates with age, so if you're over 40 you probably need to compensate by slowing down. Tests show that best glare resistance is found in 20 to 30-year-old drivers.

Along with other groups, the American Optometric Assn. has been calling attention to the need for states to pass legislation that would require all drivers to undergo periodic re-examination of vision to make our highways safer.

Plate glass wall of the entry provides a view of the inner courtyard that incorporates beauty but safeguards privacy.

to form a free standing exterior partition.

A partition of natural mahogany serves to separate the entry from the family room located on the other side of the built-in. From this side, the cabinet is devoted to both open and closed storage accommodations.

Throughout the family room is abundant built-in storage.

At the dining end of the room is a handsome mahogany china cabinet, a spacious storage unit integral with the structure of the house.

DINING FURNISHINGS are Danish imports, the rush-seated chairs and table constructed of oiled oak and teak. The area is related closely to the kitchen via a good-looking pass-through counter.

A long, seafoam green leather sofa stands against the inside partition wall; the opposite wall is glass through which the room gains a wide view of the garden.

The kitchen features a mélange of color tones. Clove, citron, persimmon and olive are all blended in a scheme unusual but pleasant for this extraordinarily functional room.

Philippine mahogany cabinets are uniquely installed above counter level with sliding doors that combine this attractive quartet of colors. Citron colored enameled built-in appliances and satin bronze hardware make this kitchen scheme a far cry from the past era's clinical all-white kitchen settings.

AN ISLAND in the center of the room provides Mrs. Prash with an easily accessible bake center. A spice center, built in lazy susans and pop-up heater installation all add enhancement to functional values.

Off the family room, offering the active areas, is a living room which, by virtue of good planning is able to lend its footage to the family room in a contiguous entertaining area but is also happily able to withdraw completely to itself for the sake of peace, quiet and the occasionally essential feeling of separate sanctum.

More sophisticated in quality, this room achieves much of its serene character from its high, vaulted ceiling of acoustic plaster, planes of which rise to their highest pitch over a massive central supporting beam painted clove. The same accessory color is used for the sliding door between the living area and the family room—the opening and closing of which so completely alters the function of the combined areas.

IDENTICAL SAND and gold draperies and the same beige-toned carpet continue into the living room. Projecting these soft decorator tones further is a handsome contemporary sofa—a very long, curvilinear piece upholstered in a sand-colored fabric interwoven with gold lurex threads.

Dynamic architectural feeling is a dramatic contemporary firehood. Crafted of burnished copper, this structure extends all the way to the pitched ceiling.

Here, as in the family room, an exterior wall of glass enables the room to borrow space and view from the outside.

Three bedrooms accommodate the family. The master bedroom is a spacious area wherein chests and dressers are built in. Throughout the bedrooms, incidentally, all woodwork is natural mahogany like that used throughout the living area. With the exception of the girls' pink and white charcoal room, the other two conform closely to the seafoam, citron and clove color schemes already established.

Simplicity of design in contemporary mood themes buff-toned front of Prash home. A tall, paneled gate guards courtyard.

Bumper Black Walnut Crop

STOCKTON, Mo. (AP)—It's the nuts from trees or off the ground. black walnut time in Missouri and it looks like a bumper crop.

To those who pick them it means extra money, as much as $5 an hour for some.

Some dealers call the crop nature's harvest, pointing out there is no planting, no care, no cultivation, no fertilizing—just picking. Some trees may yield as much as $18 worth of nuts.

The walnuts grow in all parts of Missouri, but the biggest stands are in the Ozark hills and valleys.

If you think processing is a hammer-and-nut-pick operation, you are old-fashioned. Automation has taken over everything except gathering

RIGHT NOW the daily average receipts at the Hammons Products Co. here is 400,000 pounds. One day last week the truckers came in with 600,000 pounds. Hammons has a crew of 135 processing them.

The processors obtain their supplies from hullers who buy from farmers and shuck off the outer hull. The current price is $3.50 a hundred pounds. After processing the nuts go to retailers who currently are asking $1.60 per pound at Kansas City.

Hammons has 70 hulling machines leased out to buyers in Missouri and Arkansas with a few in Kansas and

THESE MACHINES have revolutionized the black walnut business. Before the hullers, farmers were reluctant to market the nuts because of the trouble and time it took to clean them.

Hammons' general manager, Clarence Cavender estimated payments to farmers this year will run around $700,000.

A hundred pounds of nuts will process out about 10 pounds of kernels for sale to the candy, baking and ice cream trade. The shells are ground up and used for abrasives in sand blasting, as a base for explosives and for packing around casings in oil wells. The hulls make good fertilizer.

Motel Chain Seeking Site

A motel chain has notified the Chamber of Commerce here it intends to build in Long Beach.

Imperial 400 Motels, Inc., asked the Chamber to help it find a local site. Russell F. Martini, Chamber industrial manager, referred the query to local real estate firms.

Imperial 400 already has three motels under construction in Los Angeles and Phoenix. It also has leases on several additional locations. It hopes eventually to build 33 motels, according to L. N. Aikman, vice president. Imperial 400 did not indicate size of the Long Beach outlet pending location of a site. Other motels projected are pegged to cost from $100,000 to $250,000.

Imperial 400 generally builds in close-to-downtown areas, Aikman said.

Frank Hart Is Guest Speaker at Builders' Meet in Capital

Frank R. Hart, executive vice president and general manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., was guest speaker Thursday at the annual "Marketing Seminar" of the National Assn. of Home Builders in Washington, D.C.

Hart, one of nine guest speakers, addressed an outstanding group of home builders, representing all parts of the nation. His topic, "Demonstrations That Close Sales," was directed at the division homes.

REPRESENTING Southern California, and the nation's largest residential real estate sales organization, he offered methods in selling to the seminar that have proved highly successful in the rapidly expanding area of Los Angeles and Orange counties.

Hart was invited to speak at the seminar by William Molster, director of the NAHB. Arrangements were made by Coleman Finkel, executive vice president of Executive Communications of New York, who made all arrangements for the NAHB meeting, held at the National Housing Center in Washington.

The meeting is regarded as one of the most informative discussions in the building industry each year.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES: Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

Manger scene that is remindful of the Christ in Christmas theme can be made easily by the use of full-sized pattern.

Pattern for Yuletide

NATIONS have their red-letter days, their carnivals and festivals, but once in the year and only once, the whole world stands still to celebrate the advent of life. Only Jesus of Nazareth claims this world-wide undying remembrance. You cannot cut Christ out of the calendar, nor out of the hearts of the world.

In Europe nearly every home displays a miniature crèche, or manger scene, which some member of the family has made. It's brought out for Christmas each year and handed down from generation to generation. This ancient custom has been adopted in our country. We may not be the skilled handcarvers that the Swiss and German people are, but nevertheless we can still make the handsome and inspiring scene pictured on this page.

Artist Charles Howell painted the scene under the direction of Rev. Edward L. Lew, moderator for the Christ In Christmas Committee. It's authentic in every detail. Anyone can make it. It's very colorful and may be used year after year. The pictures for each of the figures are printed in many bright colors. Just paste them on plywood or cardboard, then saw or cut them out with scissors. The figures are about six inches tall.

A FULL-SIZED pattern for the stable is also provided. To make it you merely trace the pattern on plywood, then saw out the parts and put them together. Next add a little grass or straw to the roof and your scene is completed and ready to be displayed on your mantel, dining table or under the Christmas tree.

For children particularly, this graphic depiction of history's greatest moment helps bring home the true meaning of Christmas. You will find this to be ideal for a family or school project.

To obtain the full sized stable pattern and colorful pictures No. 180, send $2 in check, currency or money order (add 20 cents if airmail is desired) to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Memorial to Other Thanksgivings

By Dorothy Allison

THANKSGIVING, remembered with the tranquility of the golden years, recalls thoughts of earlier times, we found in chats with five of our seniors citizens as they enjoyed the warmth of Long Beach in Lincoln Park.

Philip Greenfield is 90. In 1886, he left his native Hungary and sailed across the Atlantic for three weeks on an $18 steamer ticket to New York City where many of his relatives had already settled. He was 18, and he soon found a job in a fur cap factory at $3 a week. Since the caps made by the factory sold for $66 each, he felt entitled to a little better pay. He didn't get it; so he quit, took up the machinist trade and worked into a job as stationary engineer for a great hotel in New York where he stayed for 35 years.

"Even the first year I landed in this country I celebrated Thanksgiving with my Hungarian relatives and friends. Later, my wife and our children and I had Thanksgivings at home with 10 or 20 guests. We always had a turkey and chickens for the dinner, and my wife I'd gone to school with in Hungary made goulash, too. We had plenty of wine, and after dinner we danced to the music of a violin and a cello—gypsy music. Thanksgiving was always, as now, a big feast."

Mrs. Angelina Conti remembers Thanksgiving dinners she had prepared in many places since she became a bride at 14 until this, her 71st year, which she is spending in a trailer at Seal Beach. Mrs. Conti was born to her Italian parents in Rich Hill, N. Y., and has lived in Arcadia, Mich.; Clinton, Ind., and Fitzwilliam, N. H., before coming to Long Beach 15 years ago.

MR. AND MRS. CONTI and their six children and adopted grandson always lived on farms. Everything for their Thanksgiving dinner they raised themselves. "Turkey? Always, but baked chickens too, and a fine dish, a special dish for holidays, chicken ravioli we called turline."

A chic and charming 88-year-old woman waiting serenely in the sunshine for the band concert said, "For many years after we came to this country from Saxony, Germany, to Yorktown, Tex., we did not celebrate one day as a day of Thanksgiving. We gave thanks every day that we were able to do honest work and live with dignity in this country and that we had the security of the love of our family."

was to follow the plow with seed and to walk miles, always looking out for rattlesnakes, to neighboring ranches for eggs and milk for our simple meals. There was no time for celebrations until I was about 20 and my father was a successful farmer. Then we, too, had our Thanksgiving Days. We raised everything that went on the table, including the turkey. Those were, indeed happy days of Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Josephine Maszk says there was no going to the store for provisions for Thanksgiving dinner in Grand Forks, N. D., and no warm weather. "Sometimes there was snow for Thanksgiving and sometimes not, but it was always cold. We raised all of our food for the feast—turkeys, chickens and geese, too—except the fruit for preserves, which we bought from other farmers—usually 500 jars sealed up for the winter. My husband and I were reared in Polish families on Polish food, but my cooking was strictly American and so were our Thanksgivings, except that we had lots of music—a harmonica or a violin—and dancing. With our six children and many friends and neighbors we had wonderful Thanksgivings, but we wouldn't want to go back. Too cold."

CHARLES LAPIUS, 65, a protege of the scientific genius, Charles P. Steinmetz, was a world-wide builder of electric power houses and went up San Juan Hill with Teddy Roosevelt in the Spanish American War. In spite of his years, he has few pleasant memories of Thanksgiving Days because most of his adult life he was thousands of miles from home on the American holiday, and his only personal contact with home was through the American Embassy.

A native of Paris, France, he came to New York as a child with his parents. When he was a youth, he got a job with General Electric in Schenectady for $2.12 a week but was sent through college for a degree in electrical engineering by the company.

Lapius traveled, with an unlimited letter of credit, on assignments to China, Bombay, Italy, London, five times to Berlin, and to South America where he has been in every country. He learned Chinese, Spanish, German, Greek and Italian—in addition to French and English which he already knew—in a school run by his company in the home plant. He came to Long Beach seven years ago for treatment at Veterans' Hospital.

"Thanksgiving? I have childhood memories of happy Thanksgiving celebrations with my parents after we came to this country, but the really happy ones are those I spent with my late wife and our daughter on the few occasions when they were able to go with me on a foreign job. I was seldom at home for Thanksgiving, and you know, I often think I'd trade all of my travel and all of my successes to be back at home in Schenectady. Thanksgiving was a truly happy day, then."

So run the thoughts of tranquil reflection, and in years to come, in many lands and in many states, our Thanksgiving this year in Long Beach, with its streaming sunshine, tropical palms and peaceful ocean, will be to other oldsters a day of happy memory.

Mellowness of senior years enhances memories of Thanksgiving in times gone by as elders bask in Long Beach's sunny clime.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

By Al Fagaly and Harry Shorten

Pilgrims

Harland and Howland houses also retain the interior white-wash habitually used in early English homes as being important for cleanliness and as a disease preventative. The use of white paint almost exclusively both inside and out for New England dwellings today may spring from that custom.

THE FIRST HOUSES were not painted nor were the second ones built to replace the burned homes on the first street. Replicas of these may be visited in Plymouth today. Ladders lead up to their lofts which were used for sleeping but their small size makes it understandable that rooms would be added as soon as possible. All families raised many children, eight being the average.

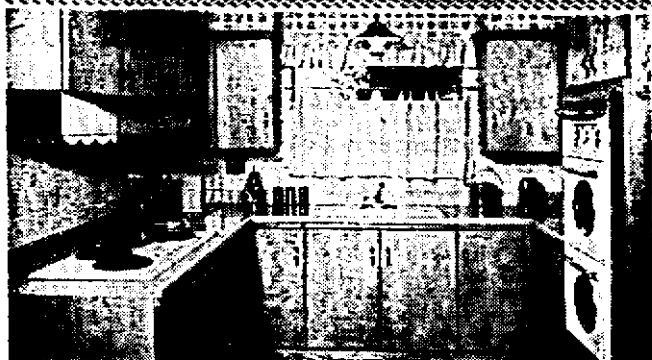

There were 150 persons housed in only 32 of these small houses in 1624. A second room was always added on the other side of the chimney and a third beyond that.

Because the first houses were built with sod chimneys supported by wooden frames and entirely enclosed within the house except above the roof, there were many fires. This forced replacements of rock or brick. Actually, a law to this effect was passed, as well as one to prevent further use of "thatch, straw, reed, etc." as roofing material. The second houses therefore used shingles or planking. Both styles have wood siding of hewn planks though the 1627 style boards are narrower, smoother and more carefully arranged.

The Pilgrims had built identical houses according to plans made prior to sailing from England. To best accomplish an early settlement of their debts, they had decided that "no one will be poorer than another for 7 years. . . . This will hinder ye building of good and fair houses." It was further stated in the sailing agreement that the governor "may prevent excess in building" in order to save labor for other work.

That time and labor was given to putting a little fence around each home and garden is significant of the Pilgrims' belief in individual rights even during their "commune" years. Characteristics such as this as well as the simple but well constructed style of New England architecture still prevalent, are part of the American heritage as is Thanksgiving. The Pilgrims were good builders and Gov. Bradford expressed it well:

"Thus, out of small beginnings, greater things have been produced by His hand . . . and as one small candle may light a thousand, so the light here kindled hath shone unto many, yea, in some sort to our whole Nation."

Something Old Under the Sun

By Helen Smith

A NEW HOBBY is becoming popular in the Southland, that of setting untinted glass, 30 years old or older, in the sun and watching it turn gradually into hues of amber, green, pink, lavender and occasionally a deep, royal purple.

Some modern glass will turn slightly but the older glass, because of its formula, is the better subject for the interesting experiment.

THE HOBBY first came to light when sightseers found pieces of colored glass lying in the sun around deserted western ghost towns. Old carriage lights, doorknobs and almost anything made of glass had taken on rich colors not originally intended for them.

Old cemeteries were also the scenes of the phenomena

as glass vases were left for years beside the neglected graves of long-departed loved ones.

Trying the changing process at home is quite simple. The glass may be tied securely and left to hang where the rays of the sun strike the most directly. Care must be taken that the pieces are not broken by swaying in the wind.

Bottles, decanters, pitchers and assorted glass dishes add an artistic note accented at vantage points throughout the garden or around the patio.

If preferred, the pieces can be placed on a bed of sand which absorbs the heat rays and can hasten the color changing process by its reflection. A small sand box placed on the ground in a

PET PARADE

A Lamp Unto Her Feet

By Eleanor Avery Price

SOME time back I inquired of a recognized authority on dogs used as eyes for the blind if a Golden retriever would make as good a dog for a blind person as a Labrador retriever or German shepherd, breeds seemingly popular for this purpose. The reply was definitely negative because a Golden supposedly could never tolerate the regimentation required of it in such line of duty, that Goldens lived only to hunt, swim, and have fun.

How wrong was this person! Today the Golden retriever is high on the list of desirable breeds used as eyes for the blind. The majority of Goldens are, of course, gentle and easy-going, as the above mentioned authority implied, but they are also extremely intelligent. They take readily to obedience training but have the sense to disobey if what they are asked to do seems perilous to their handlers, a quality that makes them ideal to lead blind owners. Also they are not dangerously over-possessive. They are of good size, neither too large nor too small, and their coats, although thick and very beautiful, require little in the way of grooming.

and because of her wonderful dog. Marcia is now studying Braille P.B.X. at Braille Institute in Los Angeles and hopes to find work soon here in Long Beach. She is receiving full cooperation and assistance from the Lakewood Lions.

It is Nettie who takes Marcia to Los Angeles and brings her home. And it will be Nettie who will take her to work and return her safely.

Nettie comes from Guide Dogs for the Blind Inc. at San Rafael, the top school of its kind in California and one of the two such schools approved by the Veterans Administration. The other is Seeing Eye in Morristown, N. J. Eighty-five per cent of human graduates from Guide Dogs are gainfully employed and a sizeable number are college students or housewives.

IT WAS A tremendous moment when Marcia met Nettie. You might say it was love at first "sight" and a miracle to Marcia to see through the eyes of a beautifully trained dog.

A Guide Dog's life isn't easy, however. Nettie has won no blue ribbons and shining trophies. But her love of Marcia's voice and the touch of Marcia's hands are rewards enough for her faithfulness.

AN INTERESTING unbentched dog circuit will be the Imperial Valley Kennel event at Holtville, Dec. 5, and the Yuma Kennel show at Yuma County Fairgrounds on Dec. 6. Entries must reach Jack Bradshaw by Monday.

WEST SHORE Cat Club show is being held today at the Arcadia Armory across from Santa Anita race track.

The Paradise Called Hawaii

TO BEGIN WITH—“millions and millions of years ago”—there was nothing but water. . .

And that's the beginning of “HAWAII” (Random House,
$6.95), James A. Michener's new novel which takes hold of you from page 1 and maintains your interest through 937 crowded pages as it tells the story of the Islands of Paradise and its people right up to Hawaiian statehood.

The first people set out
from Bora Bora, near Tahiti, 11 centuries ago in a long canoe. They had worshiped old gods, but a priest with unbounded ambition pressed a new one on them, outsmarted them and left no alternative but flight. They abandoned their barren wives and took young girls, they packed only necessities, a storm drove them off course and clouds hid the stars, a shark
—a friendly one that spoke the language of one of them —trailed them and at last they reached the Promised Land.

King Tamatoa reigned in the 9th century. At the same time Japanese on their islands and Chinese on the mainland were being readied for the long ocean trip. But they came only some 45 generations later, or in the 19th century when Americans first set forth from old New England ports to take the story of the Bible to those heathens and bring back the wealth
there was in whales.

In effect this pictures the rivalry between Lahaina, which Bora Borans and other Pacific peoples thought a lovely spot, and Honolulu, where western powers had a Denison Hatch, now a private in the Army, spots the ridiculous in the sublime in ous Look at Life Among the Marbles” (Coward-McCann,

harbor, consulates and offices.
Naturalism vies with sophisticated civilization; artificial restraints and inhibitions are imposed and then relaxed—
the white man learns, says
Michener, if he has to. Sugar and pineapple are part of the story, and measles, leprosy, venereal diseases and bubonic plague. But it all comes full circle when a wartime emis-

sary from Hawaii goes back to Bora Bora, sheds his social veneer and finds again, 10 centuries after it had been lost, a love as natural and free as the wind and the waves.

This is a Book-of-the-Month
Club selection which may be Michener's best novel. At any rate, Americans are going to like it and they will be found under their reading lamps, biting away at its long pages,
throughout the winter.

Other new books about Ha-

Thirty authors—from Capt.

the islands to Rev. Abraham
K. Akata who conducted Statehood services—contribute 37 selections to this splendid anthology. Readers meet islands kings, princesses and queens, missionaries and sundry characters who sit in on Hawaii's colorful history. Out of the past came masterful stories by Mark Twain, Robert Louis Stevenson and Jack London, and reappearing are fine yarns by such present-day writers as W. Somerset
Maugham, James Jones and
William Meredith. Here, too, is an account of the Day of Infamy, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. There's a glossary of Hawaiian words, and end papers are maps of the islands.

POGO POSSUM first came into being in 1943 as a spear carrier in a feature called “Bumbazine and Albert the Alligator”—sans the

But Bumbazine was dropped because, being human, he was not as believable as the aninally, Walt Kelly's Pogo emerged with his pen-that has become a household word with readers of The Independ-

a growing list of other the country.

Kelly in “TEN EVER-(Simon and Schuster, meaty book that kids 8 going to enjoy just as they enjoy Pogo in their

What, really, is be-

THE JACKSON TWINS

By Dick Brooks

THE EISENHOWER FARM at Gettysburg, depicted in water color by New York artist George Gray, is the frontispiece in "CHRISTMAS: An American Annual of Christmas Literature and Art, Volume 29" (Augsburg Pub. House, Minneapolis, gift edition in paper, $1.50, edited by Randolph E. Haugan). The picture is printed on heavy stock and is suitable for framing.

hameha and his rise to power surpasses fiction, and they are so right. Kamehameha was born about 1753, when island chiefs were a dime a dozen. Ambitious, he began to topple these chiefs until, finally, he ruled all the islands and made them the Kingdom of Hawaii. Pole tells the story convincingly and with dramatic force.

Other recent books:

"MEN AT THE TOP" by Osborn Elliott (Harper, $3.50): An account of the men who run American business and industry today — including some interesting peeks into the lives of Southland industrialists—their public and private lives, personalities, opinions, ambitions and achievements, give this book by the managing editor of Newsweek more than usual interest. Donald Douglas Jr., for instance, dreams of "owning a ranch and a yacht and doing some traveling." Other Southern Californians interviewed include Justin Dart, president of Rexall Drug Co.; Charles (Tex) Thornton, president of Litton Industries; Robert Gross, chairman of Lockheed Aircraft; Howard Hughes, the mystery man who controls $600 million worth of corporations; George Getty, billionaire oilman; Howard J. Morgens, president of Proctor & Gamble, and many others.

"AMERICAN HERITAGE: The Magazine of History" (American Heritage, $2.95): Fanny Seward's newly discovered eye-witness account of the attempted assassination of her father, Lincoln's Secretary of State, is told for the first time in one of 13 brilliantly illustrated articles in the current (October) number of this magazine between hard covers. The story comes from Miss Seward's diary, which only recently came to light.

"THAILAND: An Introduction to Modern Siam" by Noel F. Busch (Van Nostrand, $3.50): Known as Siam until 1949, Thailand lies deep in Southeast Asia, a strange land with a vivacious, versatile people. Busch, who has lived there, presents a colorful picture of the country, its people and their way of life, thereby making a splendid contribution to the bookshelf of Asian history. Armchair travelers will like it.

"ALASKA, U.S.A." by Herb and Miriam Hilscher (Little, Brown, $4.50): A source book on every aspect of Alaskan life, answering the basic questions being asked in the Lower 48 about the 49th state.

"DID ANYONE BRING AN OPENER" by Jonathan Winters and Philip Cammarata (Harper, $1.50): Scenes from silent movies with hilarious captions.

"KING OF CRIME" by Dom Frasca (Crown, $3.95): The story of Vito Genovese, supreme ruler of the Mafia.

PAPERBACK originals (first time to appear in book form) and issued:
"BALLETS: A New Guide to the Live-Act Art" by Walter Terry. A history of ballet in its glory of ballet terms. Illustrated (Dell, 75c).
"UNDERSTANDING CHEMISTRY" by Lawrence P. Lissner. A survey of modern concepts of matter (Mentor, 50c).
"THE DEADSHOT KID" by Philip Ketchum. A western novel (Signet, 25c).
"THE NEW AMERICAN GUIDE TO COLLEGES" by Gene E. Haves. How to select the college you want (Signet, 75c).
"THE DAME" by Carter Brown. An Al Wheeler murder mystery (Signet, 25c).
"THE GIRL IN THE FREUDIAN SLIP" by William F. Brown. A suspense novel (Signet, 50c).

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the origin of EUBANK and EUBANKS—R. E. Anaheim; Mrs. L. D. Paramount.

R. E. L. D.: EUBANK and EUBANKS commemorate the famous English yew trees. These beautiful evergreens were formerly prized for making bows and arrows. The original form of the names was Yew-Bank for "River-bank lined with yew trees." George Ewbank, an ancestor, lived in Lancashire, England, in 1636. The family coat-of-arms has three interlaced gold chevrons under three black balls on a gold band that crosses the top of the black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please print the meaning of LOWE—Z. L. H. A. J. L. Long Beach.

LOWE determines the family home location in medieval England, "At the Lowe," translated as "At the Hill." "Lowe" was a north English word corresponding to the central and south British words "Hough," "Howe" and "Hill." Among the forbears was Ralph de la Lowe of Shropshire in the late 1200s. The Lowe shield from Cheshire has a trippant (prancing) silver deer on a blue shield. Thomas Lowe was Mayor of the town of Macclesfield, Cheshire, in 1418.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform on HARDY—H. H. A. H. L. B. Long Beach.

The given-name Hardi, meant "Brave." The 12th century English HARDY ancestor was so designated because of his bravery in battle. The first recorded Hardy was a page to the master of the hunt for Bishop Swinfield in 1289. His progeny achieved a striking coat-of-arms, three gold shells between three black dragon heads on a chevron across a black shield. A descendant, Thomas Hardy, was among the first Massachusetts settlers in the 1600s. Other Hardys were early settlers of Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia in the 1700s. Modern members of the lineage include Thomas Hardy, celebrated English writer who died in 1928.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the analysis of HOSKIN and HOSKINS—M. H. D. H. A. H. Long Beach.

During the reign of King Henry II of England, 1154-1189, Flemish-Belgian tapestry weavers were imported to Britain. These artisans introduced the Flemish name suffixes "-ken" and "-kin" meaning "little." The Saxon-English given name Hosa, meaning "One of the multitude," coupled with "-ken," produced Hosken and later Hoskin and Hoskins (Son of Hosken). Family ancestors surnamed Hosken were extensive land holders in Cornwall for centuries. Their beautiful coat-of-arms has a gold chevron on which are three silver rosettes between three silver lions. These emblems are on a shield tinted red on the left half, blue on the right.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 601 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

sunny section of the yard is ideal for this.

THE GLASS can begin to change in three weeks' time. Three months, however, is the average time. If the piece has not colored in an exposure time of up to 14 months, it never will.

Interest is added to the hobby by selecting cheap pieces and perhaps adding a family heirloom or two. Price does not denote which may end up with the most exquisite coloring.

Sand is the chief ingredient of glass, especially that rich in quartz. To this can be added soda and lime, potash and lime or lead or borax. The character of the glass depends partly on the manner and degree of heating and method and rate of cooling.

Modern manufacturers have perfected the process so that a uniformly clear crystal results and remains so throughout its period of usage.

THE LEGEND of the discovery of glass has always provided an intriguing subject for debate. Perhaps the most famous is the one recorded by Pliny.

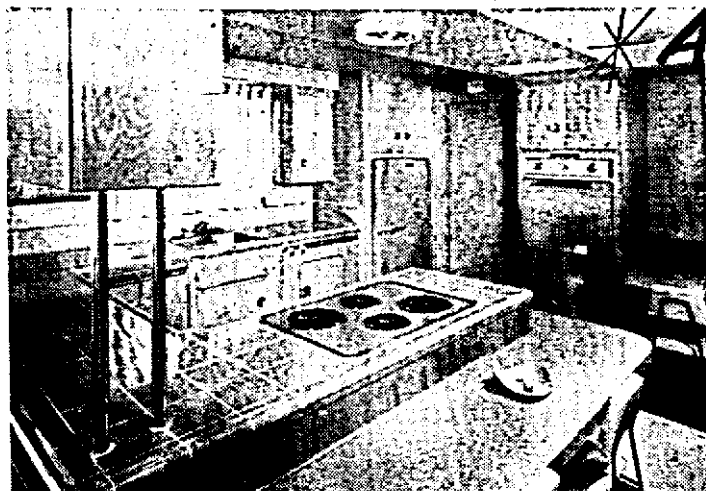

Long before Pliny's time, runs the tale, some Phoenician merchants camped on the sandy shore of a tidal river in Syria. Lacking stones with which to support their cooking pots, they substituted blocks of soda taken from their cargo. When the campfire was at its hottest, the men were amazed by the sight of a strange liquid which flowed in a stream from under the fire. And that is the origin of glass, says an historian of ancient times.

If a person lacks the patience for this new hobby there is a short cut. Workers in physics laboratories have noticed that some glassware near radiation experiments will take on color in as little as 30 minutes.

But for most glassware hobbyists the slow mellowing of the sun will bring more satisfaction and new pieces can be added from time to time to allow one to enjoy every phase of the natural metamorphosis.

'Cart Fishermen'

Dana Point and its cove have had an historic background, including the day of the "cart fishermen." Above is old pier.

By Harry R. Peterson

IF YOU had been on the Dana Cove beach, under the Dana Point cliffs an early morning in 1918, you would have seen the "cart fishermen."

High above the high tide mark stood skiffs and dories, protected from the Pacific swells by the baylet now called Dana Cove Park—and then known as El Embarcadero.

A track climbed the easiest slope of the precipice. And up the track moved a funicular cart—similar to those at Angel's Flight in Los Angeles, Mount Wilson and the Catskills in New York.

THE CART WAS attached to a cable. One horse power. The horse pulled the cart northward toward present Highway 101.

Since there was no road to the rim, the "cart fishermen" used this method to get their fish to market.

They were commercial fishermen, who caught halibut, many barracuda, bass, and in the winter, lobsters, in the ocean region seen by

of Old Dana Point

Progress has come to Dana Point Cove and Art Pobar, one of the "cart fishermen," tends the area—and feeds its felines.

the sailor - author Richard Henry Dana Jr., in 1835, when he visited the spot to trade for hides with Mission San Juan Capistrano.

There were Pete Peterson, Charles Berger, Bert Maller, Joe Scranto, Lew Jensen, Rattlesnake Bill—and Arthur F. Pobar. Most have long since left the little cove, or passed away. But Art remains as custodian of the Park and the last of the "cart fishermen."

"THERE WAS PLENTY of fish beyond San Juan Point, out by the kelp beds," he says. "Except for the cove, there was no landing place short of Newport Harbor. We didn't have motor boats — only dories and skiffs. How to get those heavy loads of fish up that precipice—that was the question.

"Somebody—probably Rattlesnake Bill—he was the wildest of the fish crew, but had brains—suggested hauling the catch up in a cart with a rope and cable.

"We all climbed up the cliff where the observatory stands now, and where Woodruff and the subdivision people made a path and steps later. We sank a heavy iron post in cement on the brink and made a special harness for the horse. We used a big pulley.

"Then we loaded her up with barries and halibut, gave the horse a lick on the flank, and he started north toward the road. Later we got another horse, when the fishing was good and the cart heavy. Sometimes he had to pull till he got almost as far as where Highway 101 is now. We got those fish to market! Needed during the war, too."

POBAR, WHO FIRST camped on the cove beach in 1913, came to Dana Point in 1938. He is kind to the many dogs who come with picnickers and anglers to the park, and feeds Cove Kitty, the pier cat, also a cliff-climber. She has her kittens

30 feet up the side in a sheltered place. He scrambles up there and feeds them every morning until they are grown. Also he keeps the parking area and pier spic and span—as clean as when the fill, road graveled parking area and pier were completed by the Orange County Harbor District in 1958.

Sweater Girl Saga

By Caroline Coleman

GIRLS and sweaters go together like trimmed roses in a garden — they look nice by themselves, but put them together and the combination is a winner.

It wasn't always so. A casual pullover was strictly for the male more than a generation ago . . . something he'd wear for athletics or cleaning his Model A.

Then came the 20's — and lots of changes. The boop-a-doo girl now had relaxed airs to assume. She bobbed her hair . . . went about unescorted. Among other ways of showing her new-found independence, she donned a sweater for the first time.

But the wolf's whistle (or sheik's, to be more accurate) was still held in check. Our flapper cutie pranced about on the tennis courts with her new casual outfit, but glamour and sweaters were as far apart as prohibitionists and an evening cocktail.

It took the imagination of a Hollywood press agent —

Lana Turner touched off the sweater girl trend in the late 1930s, early in career.

Starlet Linda Cristal is well qualified to fill a sweater, carry on Turner tradition.

and the gracious lines of Lana Turner — to bring about a happy change.

LANA WAS a newcomer to the screen, and enjoyed a big build-up. "A new Harlow," some exclaimed. Others decided that she was, indeed, something quite unique by herself.

The big difference? Why, a sweater, of course. Miss Turner became America's first "sweater girl," and millions of jealous young women followed suit.

The change was as welcome to the girl of the late 30's as it was to her happy-eyed male. Now she could go to that picnic . . . the movie date . . . the soda parlor, in an outfit that not only displayed her figure pleasantly and discreetly, but was comfortable as well.

But the age of levity was short-lived. World War II broke out and America's eligible males were donning khaki and navy blue and were being sent to remote areas of the world.

Girls back home did their "bit" too; sent V-mail missives to soldier boy friends regularly. And the young man in the trench would — in moments of loneliness — reach into his wallet for his favorite snapshot of the girl he left behind.

His favorite pose? You guessed it — his lady fair in a sweater.

SINCE THE WAR, our

sweater girl has become increasingly popular. The casual pullover now lies folded among an elaborate sweater wardrobe that includes cardigans . . . shirt styles worn buttoned or opened . . . evening sleeveless models with host of others.

Perhaps the biggest change in sweater styles since Lana walked across the screen came between 1954 and 1956. That's when astute fashion designers thought a young girl's fancy for her sweater might stretch into the warmer months.

And how right they were! In fact, during that two year period, sweater sales increased by two million — from April through August. One consumer survey showed that gals preferred to wear sweaters during spring and summer.

Now It's Space Law!

Drawing by H. PARKER MARKLE

By Roberta Nichols

A PIECE of bric-a-brac bearing the legend "made in the U.S.S.R. by Merry Muscovites" falls through your patio roof, frightens guests, and imbeds itself among the petunias. Do you sue Khrushchev or turn a claim in to your insurance company? Ridiculous as it sounds, it is a problem that you may face sooner than you think. Because of this, Space Law has come into being.

In the short time since Russia surprised the world with the first Sputnik, the International Law Assn., American Bar Assn. and others have been worrying over the many aspects of Space Law. Universities have established Space Law departments within their law schools. Among these are the University of Oklahoma, University of Virginia, and Georgetown University.

What are some of the problems with which the young space-attorney of tomorrow may be concerned? One is a definition of "outer space," acceptable to all nations. Does outer space begin at an altitude of 200 miles or 1500? Once it is established, we must find ways to police space to see that missiles with nuclear warheads are being employed at proper altitudes.

AND HOW ABOUT controlling satellite movements? Can we set up an international system for the filing of flights and a warning system? This would seem necessary in the near future. According to Dr. John P. Hayes, director of the Vanguard project, it will become increasingly difficult to determine which is a missile, a meteor, or a satellite coming at you, and this uncertainly could cause the war switch to be thrown.

The successful Russian moon shot has already posed the question of ownership. In turn comes the problem of occupation and exploitation of extraterrestrial resources. Then there is immigration and customs control to consider. Will the same laws that apply to the earth-bound individual apply to the interplanetary traveler?

THERE WILL be a need for laws regarding insurance and indemnification for the space traveler. And what about the possibility of relations with intelligent life encountered in our travels to other planets? Do we merely step off the space ship and say, "Take me to your president" or do we get out the colored glass beads and dicker for clear title to the entire sharp-Cheddar side of the moon? And then just in case a little three-legged creature with an engaging smile sells us a Lunar version of the Brooklyn bridge first, (taking all the glass beads, too)—well, who do we go screaming to? The Better Business Bureau?

All this may sound like the thinnest science fiction, but the government doesn't think so. This and much more is seriously treated in House Document 69, Survey of Space Law, a staff report of the Select Committee on Astronautics and Space Exploration, published by the United States Government Printing Office. And while it doesn't specifically mention that little three-legged creature with the engaging smile, you'd better watch out. Unless you know your Space Law, you may not have any leg to stand on.

Bruce Roberts explains the workings of his nylon skyhook after demonstration jump for students at Long Beach State College.

By Herb Shannon
Independent Press-Telegram
Aviation Editor

Bruce Roberts wants to make it clear that he is not addicted to parachute jumping.

"It's not the only thing I like to do," the 24-year-old veteran chutist maintains. "I also like hunting, fishing and other sports. I'm not the devout kind of guy who just has to blast out of a plane every weekend."

But for a guy who can take it or leave it alone, Roberts spends a lot of time falling out of the sky attached to a big nylon umbrella.

It may not be every weekend, but just about every other one he leaves home at 9917 Cedar Ave., Bellflower, to participate in chute-jumping contests and demonstrations at Elsinore airstrip with some 20 other members of a skydiving team.

THE TEAM is composed entirely of members of an Army Reserve unit at Fort MacArthur. While it is not an official military group, it has Army recognition as the Reserve special Forces 314th and 315th Skydiving Team.

In addition to maintaining condition for military purposes, the reservists also train with the objective of competing when and if chute jumping is established as an Olympic sport. Events are scheduled at Elsinore with this in mind.

Included in the contest are target jumping, in which the chutist attempts to land inside a 50-yard circle marked on the ground, delayed release jumps and free fall acrobatics.

BATON PASSING is the hardest stunt, according to Roberts. This is a kind of combination acrobatic and precision free fall in which two men jump simultaneously, then pass a baton back and forth while performing loops and spins on the way down. "We don't use cloth wings

WINGS OVER THE SOUTHLAND

or fins or any of that batman stuff," explains Roberts. "It's all done with the arms and legs spreadeagled for balance and control."

"In the acrobatic contests, you have to tell the judges beforehand what kind of maneuvers you are going to do. Then you get points for how closely you follow the script."

In all of these events, performed at 125 miles an hour or more straight down, the contestants wear two chutes for safety. However, Roberts prefers to use a partially-opened chute rather than rely on his reserve skyhook.

"LAST AUGUST I ripped a hole in my static chute big enough to fly a Cessna through," he recalls. "But I rode it down all right. I'm a little leary of pulling the reserve chute because it sometimes tangles with the other one. When that happens, that's all she wrote."

So far unmarried, Roberts works part time in laundry service sales to support his aeronautical studies. He recently completed pilot training at Harry Ross Flying School, Sunset Beach Airport, and has sights set on a career in the air freight business.

"Jumping is a lot of fun," he admits. "But as a profession it really doesn't offer much of a future."

A California Port With a Past

By Walter Finch

EVERY YEAR thousands of motorists, who elect to take the world famed Redwood Empire Highway route, pass through a little town that many do not know is the oldest city settled by white men on the Northern California coast. Once a flourishing trading post and port of entry, it is now known chiefly for its excellent fishing grounds and vacation possibilities.

The highway sign now marking the spot reads only—"Trinidad, population 280."

Almost two centuries ago, the logs of the sailing ships Sonora and Santiago captained by explorers Bruno Hecata and Juan Francisco de la Bodega, records landing July 14, 1775, the day of Holy Trinity, in a "fine bay, with much fish, rimmed with gray rocks softened by thickets of ferns, iris and wild roses."

Trinidad Head as seen from Hwy. 101. Terrain is much same as when visited by explorers Hecata and Bodega.

the citizenry organized and soon Trinidad became the county seat of what was then Klamath County, now no longer in existence.

THE SEAPORT supplied goods to all the Trinity and Klamath River area. Foodstuffs, machinery and clothing were unloaded from the ships to be distributed to the settlers in town and those who came in from the back country to shop.

California Sea Products Company established a whaling station at Trinidad and erected huge vats for rendering whale oil to increase prosperity.

This bustling situation continued for several years and then something no one had foreseen occurred.

The gold gave out. Trinidad became another ghost town to be rebuilt years later with a few modern stores and homes that are there today.

Although glory faded, some things remain much the same in the old town. There is still a "fine bay with much fish"—said by many to be the finest salmon fishing location on the entire west coast.

Schedule Helps

Tulsa and Wichita will benefit from new Continental Airline schedules from Los Angeles to Denver.

Continental's Golden Jet 707 flights to Denver from Los Angeles now leaves at 1 p. m. and arrives in Denver for connections with a DC68 flight arriving in Wichita at 7:56 p. m. and Tulsa at 9:05 p. m., all local times.

THE GOLD RUSH of 1849 wrought its changes in the San Francisco area when word was received there in May 1850 that nuggets were being plucked from the sand and stones near the mouth of the Klamath River and Yreka Flats farther north.

Overnight the exultant cry of "Eureka" had again rekindled gold fever and miners crammed every available ship sailing from the Bay City.

Trinidad, the only natural harbor north of San Francisco, was the logical choice for headquarters.

Population soon increased from a handful to more than 3,000 as drifters, adventurers and families arrived by ship, the only way to reach the locale.

Riding With the Santa Parade

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

TAKE OFF in almost any direction in the next week or two and you are likely to run into a Christmas parade; in December, special lighting effects in keeping with the Yuletide season.

A case in point, and an event which the kids simply love is the Mother Goose parade at 2 p.m. today at El Cajon, below San Diego. This one, gaining fame with each succeeding year, is a procession of storybook floats expected to be viewed by a third of a million people.

Hollywood's Santa Claus Lane parade, opening Hollywood Blvd. as Santa Claus Lane for the 27th year, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. There will be movie stars and television and radio personalities galore on the floats. Bands and horsemen will tag along, too, and while the parade is in progress thousands of lights flash on, illuminating the huge metal Yule trees lining the boulevard.

Following on the heels of Long Beach's All-Western Band Review — which will come off next Saturday—will be the All-Southland Band Revue Dec. 4 at Huntington Beach, in which 2,500 musicians will take part at 7:30 p.m.

On the same date, Santa arrives at El Centro in a stagecoach once used by Billy the Kid, leading a colorful parade. Huntington Park has its four-mile night parade Dec. 5 as 50 giant searchlights probe the stars. Van Nuys will get on the Christmas handwagon with its Bethlehem Star Parade the same night. Corona's Pageant of Faith parade, with floats depicting the birth of Christ, and with combined church choirs giving a carol concert on the city hall steps, is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 11.

These are only a few such events. Practically every city plans something pretty-pretty.

And don't forget Altadena's Mile of Christmas Trees, Dec. 24-31; Palm Desert's Christmas Card Lane (local artists paint huge cards and mount them on poles along the main highway) Dec. 18-31; and Ontario's three miles of Christmas trees along famous Euclid Ave.

GO WESTERN? A git-up-and-git tourist attraction in Arizona is Tucson's annual Old Tucson Daze blowout Nov. 28-29 at Old Tucson Village. Famous gunfights will be re-enacted. There will be stagecoach holdups, Indian dances, medicine men selling cure-alls, melodramas and cancan girls, cowboys and real western music for square dancing. Smooth-faced gents (the natives, at least) will buy a shave permit for a buck or go to the hoosegow!

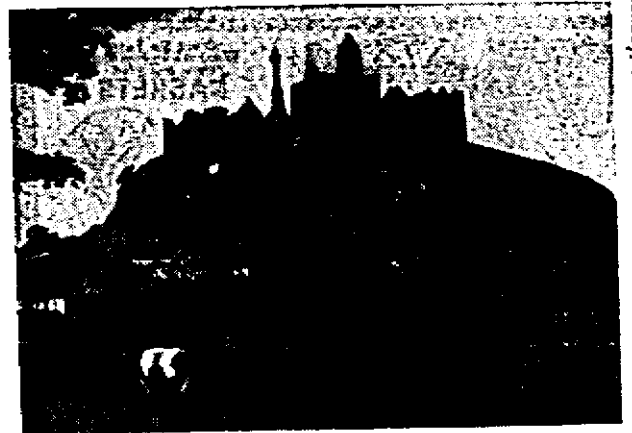

SOUTHLAND railroad and camera fans will make the ghost town of Calico their objective next Sunday, leaving Los Angeles Union Station via special Santa Fe streamliner equipment at 8:30 a.m., Pasadena at 9. Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be served by Fred Harvey. Return to Los Angeles will be at 7:55 p.m. Reservations may be made at 408 S. Spring St., Los Angeles (MA 8-1181).

FIVE THOUSAND persons from all 50 states will be on hand when the American Contract Bridge League opens its Fall National Tournament next Sunday at Hotel del Coronado, San Diego. Among top players who will sit in at the more than 400 tables through Dec. 6 will be Charles H. Goren and Oswald Jacoby.

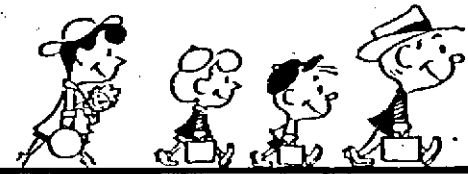

WHOEVER HEARD of organ music 20,000 feet up? It's so! Northwest Orient Airlines is trying such an experiment for passenger reaction on its Ship 709, a Boeing Strato-cruiser which flies between Minneapolis-St. Paul, Chicago and New York. A professional organist is at the keyboard from takeoff to landing and the music is channeled through the public address system loudspeakers.

MEXICO CITY (1,580 statute miles) will be a hop and a skip of just 3 hours and 15 minutes from Los Angeles when Mexicana Airlines (CMA) puts the first two of three new DeHavilland Comet 4C airliners (14 million bucks!) in operation next month. . . . Sayonara! Northwest Orient Airlines has published a "How to Say It in Japanese" folder for guidance of its Orient-bound passengers. Address them at 1885 University Ave., St. Paul 1, Minn. . . . Continental Airline's proposed fare cut on Golden Jet Boeing 707 non-stop flights between Los Angeles and Kansas City ($65.50 in the coach section) is scheduled to go into effect Wednesday. Flights leave Los Angeles at 1:25 a.m., arrive in KayCee at 6:15 a.m. (CST).

Good traveling!

Still perfect after 1,000 years, a round tower dominates the countryside at Cashel in Tipperary. Built mostly of sandstone, the tower is 17 feet in diameter at the base and is 92 feet in height to the tip of its conical cap.

GOING PLACES

by the Sloanes

SAN JUAN, P. R. — Something magical seems to happen in the Caribbean east of the Gulf Stream.

From here east more benign breezes, as well as the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack, the Tricolor and whatever it is they call the Dutch standard, fly exclusively. They have bred the truest fulfillment of the tropical paradise concept that have sent evermore astounding numbers of visitors flocking to the West Indies.

Of all these Horatio Alger stories of the tourist business none is more impressive than Puerto Rico's. It even has individual applications, a process that can best be described as "Instant Wealth," or, in Spanish, the Papaleta and the Cuadro.

AS IN ALL Latin countries, gambling is an all-consuming passion. A Puerto Rican at a ball game will happily accept odds on whether a runner rounding first will make it to second. The inevitable government lottery and the cock-fights still draw their share of money from 320 legal bookmakers. But where else except a racing meet at Hipodromo El Comandante can you see, as we did, a man win $38,336.05 for a 50-cent bet?

The Cuadro and Papaleta are two versions of a six-race pool, a kind of super-duper daily double popular throughout Latin America. Each Wednesday, Friday, Sunday and holiday, more than 100,000 parlays are swallowed up here by the largest concentration of Univac machines under one roof in the world—an American twist symbolic of this most enigmatic culture in Latin America.

STATISTICS ABOUT Puerto Rico's tourist boom tumble all over our notes.

Item: Ten years ago Puerto Rico had the lowest standard of living in Latin America. Today it has the highest.

Item: San Juan's Isla Verde Airport, possibly the most beautiful in North America with its ponds, birdcages and setting, was built to handle 1,000,000 passengers a year by 1970. It is already handling more than that and the estimate has been upped to 2,500,000 by as early as 1965.

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif. All will be answered as soon as possible but those sending stamped, self-addressed envelopes will get preference.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELA PLANE

"Can we get hotel rooms in New Orleans without much trouble during the winter months?"

THAT TOWN always seems to be crowded. You should have confirmed reservations in advance. The Monteleone in the French Quarter is good.

And if you are trying that great New Orleans food, the local people seem to prefer Gallatoire's. Not to say the others are not good. This just seem to be a local preference.

And don't miss the New Orleans coffee with those fluffy doughnuts down at the old French market. Wonderful for breakfast beside the river.

"Can we fly by jet from the West Coast to Europe this winter?"

I don't know of any jet service this year on the polar route, if that's what you mean. You can go jet across the country and pick up TWA or Pan American jets in New York.

Air France will have jet service from Los Angeles over the pole by next spring. They will use Boeing 707s and the flying time from Los Angeles to Orly outside Paris will be 9 hours and 45 minutes.

"... where to get away from everything for four weeks?"

I just got a report from friends on a new one: Islas de las Mujeres off Yucatan, available by air from Merida, Mexico. They say the accommodations are new, five solid miles of golden Caribbean beach and nobody on it.

"What tipping on the SS Constitution, New York to Naples. Cabin class, two persons, fare $325 each?"

FOR BOTH of you: $10 to the room steward; $10 to the table steward; $3 to the deck steward. If you use the wine steward, $3. Nothing for the head waiter or chief steward (unless you have them arrange a big party).

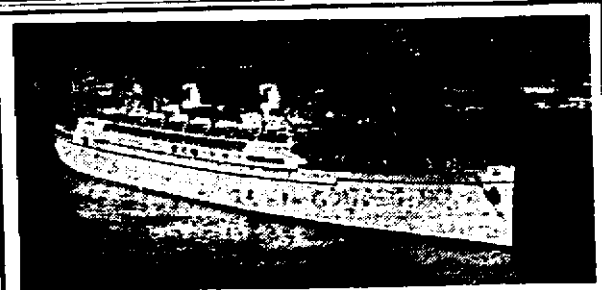

Parties in your room, 50 cents per person for the waiter.

Bellboys get 25 to 50 cents per service.

"We are flying Icelandic Air Lines as they seem to be cheaper. True?"

True. Older type and slower planes usually but a good record.

Photography Moves Toward New Code

At a recent New Jersey photo convention session, Adolf Fassbender, in Gay 90s dress, debates composition, cropping.

By The Shutterbug

IN A RARE tribute to one of the world's great photographers, the recent convention of the Professional Photographers Assn. of New Jersey was dedicated to Adolf Fassbender, dean of American pictorialists. "Papa" Fassbender, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday is still active and maintains his international reputation while teaching his photographic methods.

The PPA of New Jersey has actually taken steps by legislative means to elevate the standards of their profession instead of just talking about it.

THE ACTION was prompted by newspaper reports in recent years of fraudulent and unethical photographic schemes by "shoot and run" operators. It reached such proportions that Better Business Bureaus, chambers of commerce and police departments of New Jersey were flooded with complaints.

Through the efforts of the PPA ethics and legislative committee, a bill was introduced in the New Jersey Senate this year calling for the creation of a State Board of Photography and regulations for use of the title, "Certified Professional Photographer."

Len Kartzman, chairman of the ethics committee, explained the purpose of the bill and expressed the hope that it would be passed this year.

"It is not a restrictive measure at all," he stressed. "Anyone can still practice photography as a profession without applying for a CPP certificate. If some one wants to hire a photographer with or without the certification, that's his privilege.

"But we feel it's like a doctor with an MD or an accountant with a CPA, the CPP insignia would designate a professional photographer who has been found competent in his work and of good character.

AMONG THE qualifications set forth for an applicant are two years' fulltime professional experience in the field of photography or graduation from a recognized school of photography plus one year's professional experience and the endorsement of three photographers, each of whom has had five years of professional experience.

The bill would exempt newspaper photographers and all engaged in news photography from any provisions of the statute.

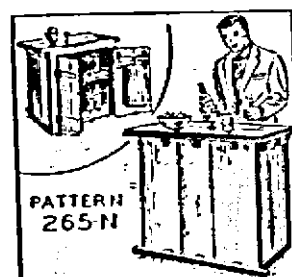

Bowling

And all this has happened because an army of 6 million women have taken on or, as a few soured males have heard to say, "taken over" the sport. The ladies invasion of what was once solely a male domain has produced some interesting reactions. Some were annoyed by the competition, but most have welcomed the women to the lanes.

As one old timer put it, "I bowled for 28 years before I ever saw a woman bowling. The way I see it now, it used to get pretty dull just looking at the pins."

A Quick and Easy Furniture Packet No. 13 is available for $1. You may have both pattern 265-N and Packet 13 for $1.25. Old Coyote Man

On the last night of feasting and dancing, the Indians formed a circle around the fire, chanting, swaying, and clanking their claspsticks over four circles of mush burning on the hot stones around the fire. They danced to the fire that heated the stones; to the stones that cooked the mush; to the baskets that held the mush.

As the mush burned, it was airborne north, east, south and west, to feed the spirits of the dead and in thanks to the Old Coyote Man who furnished the acorns as well as in prayer for future abundance.

Gazanias Are Sun Prophets

By Joe Littlefield

WHITE flowers bordering a patio show up at night, brightly colored blossoms attract humming birds, and fragrant blooms invite bees. But did you ever notice how hybrid gazanias can tell if the sun will be coming out for the day?

The single, daisy-like flowers of white, rose, pink, yellow, burnt orange or strawberry blond gazanias seem to know if the day will be sunny. Early in the morning the flowers are tightly closed. If weather continues cloudy and damp, blossoms won't open. Should the weather become sunny, the flowers open even before the sun is out, and stay open throughout the day. Like chickens that go to bed at sundown, so do the hybrid gazania blossoms close for the night.

Hybrid gazanias are also one of few edging or ground cover plants that actually look lean and bloom profusely for you if you are hard hearted with them and don't water them as often as other plants. If kept moist they grow fat and lazy and don't bloom much. By watering them only when they get real thirsty, they bloom almost all year 'round.

THEY'RE NOT TOO particular where you plant them. Planted close enough, say ten inches or so apart, they will form a ground cover to about a foot high.

They thrive best when the weather is hot. They add lots of color, edging a driveway, walk, flower bed, or rose bed, a narrow space between a walk and a wall, an "orphan area" where nothing much grows, or a parking strip.

Next time you're visiting your local nursery, take a look at hybrid gazanias, and you, too, will like their blossoms. Pests seemingly don't bother these plants much, but you do have to watch the snails and slugs.

THIS IS a splendid time to seed a new lawn or reseed an old one. Weeds do not compete with the grass plants now as effectively as they do in spring. Besides, seasonal rains will prove beneficial.

Gazanias are little weather forecasters, opening only on days when the sun will shine. Use them for cover, borders.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week. . . . Watering during the winter requires a technique different from that practiced during the summer. Not only are temperatures cooler now but the days are shorter. Much less moisture is lost through evaporation so you can water at less frequent intervals. But don't let the soil dry out completely.

With the approach of the holiday season, this is a good time to dress up your home. Garden supply stores have a wide range of plants such as palms, sansevierias, azaleas and many varieties of green foliage specimens for dish gardens and that type of gardening.

Top heavy shrubs should be pruned back now to diminish possibility of toppling over in windy or rainy weather. Heavy rains reduce the anchorage of plants and a slight wind after rains can cause a lot of damage.

The shade cast by trees is often so heavy that small plants will not grow under it. This condition can be corrected by thinning out the branches of the tree and pruning the lower limbs.

Pansies may be started now from seed. The flowers are at their best during our fall, winter and spring weather. Pansies prefer a cool and moist growing environment. The best strain for this region is the Swiss pansy; the blooms are large as are the plants; the color range is quite complete with yellows, blue, reds, whites and cream tones.

During the fall and winter months . . . as the temperature drops . . . pelargoniums tend to go dormant. This is the time when an excess of moisture may cause fungus to develop. So water very sparingly during the next few months.

By Dorothy Jonson

Being a Californian, and California being considered the home of the redwood trees, I naturally am partial to redwood tubs to use as containers for many ornamental plants and shrubs. I think they are decorative and adapt themselves to most kinds of outdoor surroundings.

If you are using redwood tubs, I would suggest that you watch your watering program carefully, because when plants are in ordinary pots, the heat draws the moisture out of the pots, but that is not the case with redwood tubs. Therefore, plants growing in them require less water. In fact, it is very easy to over-water plants in redwood containers.

I always recommend that a little broken crockery be put over the holes in the bottom of any pots for drainage; but I go one step further and advocate that a little pea gravel be used in addition to broken pottery at the bottom of the redwood tubs to assure a still better drainage.

Pruning Pays Off With Beauty

Proper pruning helps produce better blooms, such as these 1959 All America roses, called Ivory Fashion by developers.

experts disagree. However, there is no mystery concerning the procedure, the rules are simple. It is just a matter of understanding why you should prune in the first place.

Typically, pruning can be divided into two parts: One, the continuous cutting back that goes on all season to remove dead material, old flower heads and to confine the plant to desired space and shape; two, winter pruning to clean up shrubs and ready them for the next growing season.

Pruning consists of removing those parts of a plant that are considered superfluous. The removal of a dead or diseased section will improve both the health and looks of a plant. This type of pruning minimizes the danger of the infection spreading to other subjects close by.

Pruning is also related to photosynthesis, a process which consists of the combination of water with carbon dioxide to form carbohydrates. This process can be carried on only in the presence of sunlight. Should growth become exceedingly thick then sunlight cannot penetrate into the mid sections of the plant. Thinning out dense growth thus aids in the process of photosynthesis.

PRUNING ENCOURAGES new shoots and allows the gardener the opportunity of directing the plant's growth. This is known as shaping a plant. You can train a plant to grow east, west, north or south. You can cause it to shoot up in a spindly manner or top it back for bushier stature.

Ornamentals that are pruned heavily flower more abundantly the following season. Subjects that are cut back only lightly . . . in comparison . . . produce fewer blooms. This is the reason why weak-blooded roses usually require heavy pruning while aggressive growers require less aggressive treatment from the pruning shear.

Periodic removal of flowering heads is also a part of the pruning program. This technique will help keep floral production at a maximum. Allowing the flowers to go to seed taxes a plant's strength and utilizes energy that otherwise would be diverted into producing more blooms.

HEDGES SHOULD be trimmed at fairly regular intervals to maintain a clean and clipped appearance. When the growth loses its natural green coloring and starts to stiffen up a light pruning may be required. Whenever possible the natural shape of a plant should be maintained; this means light, rather than heavy thinning out.

When pruning hydrangeas remove all flowering stems. Stems that do not produce flowers should be left unpruned as they will bear blooms next season. The plumbago is an aggressive subject and may be pruned lightly during the year. Ligustrum stems should be cut off deep in the body of the plant. Hibiscus may be left alone for the first few years, then pruned at intervals of three times a year. Camellias are usually self-pruning and need just enough cutting to preserve a balanced shape.

tasks of the rose gardener and is the subject of considerable mystery to many. The job actually is not difficult. The rose grower should study each plant a moment or two to see how he wants it to grow, then cut to about a scant quarter inch above each outside bud into which he wishes to direct plant strength and growth. Thick growth within the bush should be cut out to permit entry of sunlight and free passage of air. As noted above, weak-blooded roses may need heavy pruning.

In the Long Beach area, climate is such that most roses need only moderate trimming for shape and confinement; climbers should not be cut overly hard, merely removing old canes (2 years old or more) and controlling the newer growth. Tipping down climber canes slightly at the ends sometimes promotes bud growth farther back.

Sealing material should be applied to the cut ends of all shrubs after pruning to prevent excessive bleeding, drying out and to forestall invasion of insects and fungus. Sealant is available at nurseries.

Roses should not be pruned until after the coldest period of winter has sent them into a semi-dormant stage (they just don't go completely dormant in this climate).

A few minutes talk with your nurseryman on most any day but a busy weekend will give you enough information to take care of your pruning problems.

Not Too Tender

There was a time when cyclamen were considered too tender for the general nursery trade—strictly florist's items, we were told. During recent years, this "tender" little plant has proved its worth in winter gardens many times over.

Where heavy frost is common what protection is needed can usually be supplied by sinking pots of cyclamen in the ground under some protective covering—a tree, a wide eave or what have you. Growers should not have too much to worry about, though.

Always be sure that crown of plant is above soil surface so stem will not rot.

HOW TO Light a Dining Room Attractively

1. DINNER HAS A PARTY MOOD by candle glow, with supplementary lighting inside china cabinet, and at top of window. This makes sill a show-off spot for flowers, food, even a Christmas tree! Table, with leaves dropped, will fit into corner, holding lamps from bay window.

2. FOR A CHANGE, roll in the low table, regroup chairs, pull down the lamp. Cups sparkle but faces are in comfortable, flattering shadow.

4. CEILING of bay window has recessed fixture for flood lamp. Fixture, about $7 (plus installation); lamp about $1.25. Change light angle by tilting blinds, dim by turning rheostat behind drapery.

(Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1959)

3. KEROSENE lamps lend atmosphere. When modernized with a 7½-watt lamp, they give off same glow as an oil flame. But you'll need stronger lights nearby. The century-old globe shade is half opaline glass, half clear, can be reversed to throw light beams either up or down.

5. INSIDE CHINA cabinet showcase bulbs flatter prized Chelsea tea set. Each 40 watt light has a metallic coating which serves as a reflector, throws light on china.

IF CRACKY, grandma and grandpa are apt to bust a gusset the first time they step into the Gay 90s Cafe, 2508 Palm Dr., Signal Hill.

"Wal, I'll be danged," says grandpa eyeing the sawdust on the floor and scores of antique gimcracks on the walls. "Ain't seen anything like this since I left Omaha 40 years ago."

"Fancy that," says grandma, admiring a 50-year-old pitcher-and-washbowl set. "Last time I saw a set that nice was at Aunt Penelope's wedding in 19 and 12."

Owner Leon Grivel has taken great pains to make the unusual decorations at his large restaurant authentically representative of America as it was at the turn of the century. The place's appeal, however, is definitely not restricted to the old folks. Children, absolutely fascinated by the nickelodeons, often ask: "Gee, daddy, what kind of jukeboxes are these?"

COUPLES YOUNG and old love to get up parties and join in the community singing of nostalgic tunes played on the upright piano by Jerry Praun. And absolutely no one can keep from smiling when Jerry cuts loose (every hour on the hour) with a serenade on the boisterous calliope.

The dinners at the Gay 90s are tasty and generous. They include chilled relishes, peanuts, French onion soup served family style, green salad, potatoes or spaghetti, hot rolls and coffee. Priced at from $1.65 up, the dinners include such entrees as New York cut steak, $2.50; fried chicken, $2.35; combination seafood plate (lobster and three other items), $2.50; deep fried shrimp, $1.85; top sirloin, $3.50; and lobster tail-dinner steak combination, $3.50.

Closed Mondays, the Gay 90s is open nightly from 5 p.m. on. It will be closed Thanksgiving.

A lesson I learned from life

A man should have a sideline

by EDWARD G. ROBINSON

WHEN I WAS a youngster I studied languages. At one time I was fluent in nine. Friends used to say, "Why waste your time with languages when you want so desperately to become an actor? How will they help you?"

I had no answer except that I liked speaking and reading many languages. So I kept studying.

In 1915—which will give you some idea of how long I've been around—I was working in summer stock trying to add to my experience as an actor. A chance came along for a part in a road company of Kismet, and I grabbed it.

I had been on the road for perhaps six weeks when World War I began to cast a pall of gloom over the theater everywhere. In Canada, where I was playing then, things were particularly bad. Our road company, originally scheduled for a 40-week run, closed in six weeks.

Back in New York without a job, I started the old hat-in-hand round of agents and producers. There was nothing. In desperation I finally took a job as a stooge in a vaudeville sketch. I was awful. Back to the agents I went. And again there were no jobs.

After eight or nine weeks of unemployment, I decided that acting was an insecure and demeaning profession. I began to think about making a living in a job that could provide me with a measure of dignity and respect. Because I had studied languages; I thought of teaching them.

Just about then I heard that a play called Under Fire was being cast on Broadway. There was a need for actors who could speak several European languages. I decided I would give show business one last chance before I left it. That afternoon I applied for a part.

I didn't get one part in the play. I got four. I played a Belgian, a Frenchman, a German army officer, and a London cockney. The play was a hit—and so was I.

From that time to this I've had more acting work than I could possibly handle. But had it not been for those nine languages I studied against the advice of well-meaning friends, I might today be a frustrated teacher instead of a fulfilled actor. All of which goes to prove that every man should have a sideline. You can never tell when it will help to get you on the main track.

Suppose you met a Russian or a Frenchman or an Italian, and he asked point-blank: "Why does your country stall on discontinuing nuclear tests?" How would you answer?

When you've figured out your own reply, compare it with that given by Secretary of State Christian Herter on page 7. It's part of his article, Ten tough questions the world asks us, the first written for a national publication by Mr. Herter since he became Secretary of State.

In introducing these questions and his answers, Secretary Herter emphasizes that today every American should consider himself an ambassador of his country.

His trenchant article is particularly timely for two reasons. One is that President Eisenhower has proclaimed 1960 as "Visit U.S.A. Year," a blanket invitation to people all over the world to come and visit us. This may well bring about one million overseas tourists here for a first-hand look at America, and they are likely to spend one billion dollars in looking. More important, they will take back home a better understanding of our country.

The second reason is that today marks the beginning of "Know Your America Week," also endorsed by the President and sponsored by the All American Conference to Combat Communism.

Signed by Pastor David Paul Smith and four of his Sunday School officers, of Turlock, Calif., comes a letter that reads: "We hope you will publish more articles such as They learn to play on God's side (PARADE, Oct. 4). Our youth today needs to read about these young men who are living happy, clean lives."

Cairn terriers Panda and Cricket perform for the Herters during quiet evening at Washington home.

The HERTERS at home

by MARY VAN RENSSELAER THAYER

A family breakfast and a nightly chat give the Secretary of State strength for his difficult job

WASHINGTON, D.C.

A QUIET, PLEASANT home life cushions Christian A. Herter, 54th U. S. Secretary of State, against the endless jolts of one of the world's most demanding jobs. He and his wife "Mac"—her real name is Mary Caroline—make an unusually distinguished couple. "Chris" Herter, 6'4", resembles Lincoln in a smoother, handsomer way. "Mac" is slim, 5'9", and lovely. The Herters met while she was still in school, and have been married 42 years.

They live without bustle on tree-lined P Street, in the historic Georgetown section here. The Herters bought the house when the Secretary first was elected to Congress in 1942. It is in a distinguished neighborhood. A few blocks away lives Dean Acheson, a predecessor as Secretary of State. Another neighbor is Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Summers, the Herters touch base in Massachusetts, either in an oceanside cottage at Manchester or a small farm near Millis. At Manchester they have an opportunity to catch up with their four busy children and 14 active grandchildren. The Herters are an extremely close family. Between visits, calls are made frequently from P Street to Christian Jr., a Boston lawyer who last year ran for state attorney general; Adele, wife of a Concord, Mass., pathologist; Frederic, a New York surgeon, and Miles, a Manchester economist and personnel expert.

At other times the Herters fly to Cheechacombahee Plantation, 50 miles south of Charleston, S.C. A working plantation with Hereford cattle and timber crops, it is owned by Mrs. Herter's brother, but the Secretary personally undertakes overall management. Though not as spry as he once was, the Secretary still delights in quail and duck shooting at the plantation and is considered a crack shot.

The pressure of his position, however, leaves the Secretary little time for relaxation these days. The Herters breakfast together (in their pastel dining room in winter, on an adjoining balcony in summer) at 7:30 a.m. so he can reach his desk by 8 a.m. They rarely meet again until 8 p.m. at the earliest, when they have a single cocktail together in a small, paneled study overlooking the garden.

"It's the best moment of the day," Mac Herter says of this interlude of conversation with her busy husband. Mostly the talk is like that of any husband and wife greeting each other at the end of the day. On free evenings they may play bridge. Unlike, for instance, the President, they have no regular circle of bridge-playing cronies. But both love the game and are known as skillful players.

More likely, the Secretary will have paperwork to do and will retire to his study. Half of Sunday is given over to homework. For relaxation he settles down with a whodunit. Like John Foster Dulles before him, Herter is an inveterate mystery-story fan and carries a stack of them wherever he goes.

Links to the Past

Their old Federal mansion—it was built about 1820—is a restful place, with red walls and a crescent stairway arching up from the brick sidewalk. Inside are gleaming pine floors and beautiful 18th Century furniture. Everywhere are pieces of the bright-banded white Lowestoft porcelain Mrs. Herter collects.

Mac Herter fits into this calm framework. She wears little makeup and her clothes are understated. As she talks with friends, she is likely to be busy with a flower-sprayed piece of needlepoint.

She insists she's "a poor housekeeper," but she carries off official, feminine entertaining with great flair. A recent success was a "hen" dinner in honor of Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev. As they left, the appreciative Russian ladies serenaded their hostess and her friends. The Americans couldn't remember a suitable tune, so they chorused For she's a jolly good fellow.

Mrs. Herter's day is spent exercising her dogs (see photo), taking French lessons (although both she and her husband speak excellent French), and attending many of Washington's official functions. Although the Secretary must be host at many affairs, these are held at Anderson House and are managed and paid for by the Government. The round of official entertaining, however, is a strain on the Secretary now that painful arthritis forces him to use half-crutches while walking and a specially built stool while standing in a reception line. "This winter," his wife says firmly, "we're trying to limit our dining out to twice a week and perhaps a luncheon on Sunday."

Like any wife, Mac Herter is ambitious for her husband. "I've always felt that Chris belonged in the State Department," she says. Born in Paris, Herter was an adviser to President Wilson at Versailles in 1919. During his Congressional years, he made foreign policy a specialty. He became Under Secretary in 1957, succeeded Secretary Dulles early this year.

For herself, however, Mrs. Herter liked it best when her husband was Governor of Massachusetts from 1953 to 1957. "A Governor's wife is part of a Governor's job," she says. "I'd never really done anything with Chris before. But during the two terms he was Governor I was with him more than ever before—or since." And the stimulating Herters are a pair who enjoy each other's company.

A must article for all Americans by

CHRISTIAN HERTER

U. S. SECRETARY OF STATE

Ten tough questions the world asks us

PARADE is proud to publish this article by Christian A. Herter, his first for a national publication since becoming U.S. Secretary of State. Its message is particularly important now that President Eisenhower has proclaimed this as "Know Your America Week" and 1960 as "Visit U.S.A. Year." —EDITOR'S NOTE.

WHAT DO YOU understand by those two rather forbidding words, "foreign policy"? To most Americans they represent a strange, mysterious world; the world of frock-coated diplomats, of diplomatic couriers, of night trains to Istanbul, of grave-faced statesmen pacing the corridors of chancelleries.

This is a distorted image of the conduct of foreign policy, which, in our open society, requires your active participation. To an ever greater degree, foreign policy is becoming dependent on you, the reader of this newspaper, the individual citizen. Foreign policy can only be effective if it represents your needs, mirrors your nature.

With more Americans traveling abroad (10,000* went to Russia alone last year) and more foreign visitors coming to our shores, it is imperative that every American should consider himself an ambassador of his country. As ambassadors it is incumbent upon us all to understand our country, be able to explain it to others, and, equally important, be able to appreciate the other person's viewpoint and why he thinks the way he does.

Let me recall an incident that happened when I was riding in a jeep across war-wrecked Yugoslavia 14 years ago. As a congressman I was a member of an American team checking the necessity for United Nations relief. The Yugoslav government assigned to our team the political correspondent of a Belgrade newspaper, a young woman who had fought night and day with Tito's partisans for several years.

As we drove across the rutted roads of the plains that stretch north and west of Belgrade, I learned something of her background. The daughter of a Montenegrin general, she had completed her formal education at the Sorbonne in Paris but had also done post-graduate work at Moscow University. Our talks rapidly turned into an argument about the American people and their ideals, which went on for several days without reaching an understanding.

This stern young woman continually said in essence: "How can I understand you Americans? What do you really care strongly about—your religion, your home, your government, your country?" I had never been challenged in this fashion.

I thought I knew what America stood for and what we were trying to accomplish not only in Yugoslavia but throughout the world. But when I tried to put into words the reasons for our beliefs and to portray the depth of our convictions, I found myself strangely inarticulate, with neither the words nor the emotion that would permit my ideas to penetrate the hard shell of emotional experience that surrounded her creed. Though I was sure that at least part of her obvious dislike for Americans was based on lack of first-hand information, I couldn't even persuade her to accept my offer to try to arrange for her to visit the U.S.

Many Americans must have found themselves in similar situations either while traveling abroad or talking to visitors in our own country. They must have encountered anti-Americanism that seemed harsh and unreasonable. They must have struggled to explain America, to combat false impressions—and shared my own sense of defeat during those days in Yugoslavia.

OFTEN THE TENDENCY must be to shrug off the experience with the thought that your government officials know all the answers. In all candor, may I suggest that they do not. American leadership in the world will be maintained only with your daily interest.

What are our American strengths and failings that you as an informal ambassador must understand when you travel abroad or greet strangers at home? Our main strength, of course, lies in our dedication to human dignity and freedom, our willingness to attack the failings of our society and do what we can to erase them. One of our weaknesses lies in having been preoccupied for too long with our own affairs, in learning less about the world at large and the minds of its peoples than we should have. Our greatest weakness, however, is taking for granted the tremendous benefits we enjoy.

We need to study foreign languages more than we do. Even a halting, clumsy attempt to speak the language of a country will win more friends than insisting upon talking English. Most Americans know a good deal about their own country, but their knowledge is intuitive. Since we all share the same basic beliefs, we rarely debate them. Consequently when we are called upon to do so, we are at a disadvantage for lack of practice. Students who have visited Moscow have had this experience. They were not trained for argument.

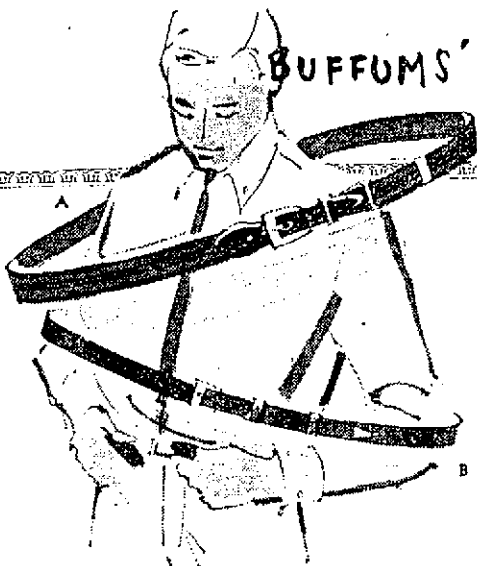

BUT WE MUST beware of boasting about our way of life and our achievements and keep a curb on our tempers. Many Americans found Mr. Khrushchev's boasting somewhat hard to take at times. Yet many Americans at home and abroad are guilty of the same fault. No one convinces the other man by becoming impatient, by meeting charge with countercharge. The soft, courteous "Yes, but . . ." answer does not mean becoming a door mat and often turns out to be far more persuasive.

We must watch our manners with our friends and opponents alike and never appear scornful of local custom, no matter how odd or archaic it may at first seem to us. Ordinary courtesy costs nothing, but in human values it brings great rewards. Above all, we must learn to listen to what the other man has to say and to find out exactly what his question means before trying to answer it. Remember that the stranger may know as little about us as we do about him, and what he asks may be based on a complete misconception.

Our task is to make the truth about America and its ideals and aspirations known in such a way that they cannot be misunderstood. While trying to end the cold war, we must nevertheless seek to keep the issues clear. We must not expect too much too soon. But recent events give cause for hope that peaceful change is possible. In this you, the citizen ambassador, have an important role to play.

LARRY FRIED

Mr. Herter's answers

1 The United States sincerely desires to see an end to these tests and stands ready to cease testing the moment our authorities are certain of proper safeguards and controls. It is on these safeguards and controls that we have not been able to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union. We ourselves suspended testing during the negotiations and have agreed to continue this suspension until January 1, 1960. In the meantime, the conference between the United States, Britain, and the U.S.S.R., which had been in recess, reconvened on October 27 in Geneva.

2 The expansionist drive of the Soviet Union has caused profound uneasiness in the nations on its borders. United States bases were established with the full consent of the host nations and are an essential part of the free world's defenses. When the Soviets give concrete evidence that they have no aggressive intentions, these bases will, of course, be given up.

3 In a society where working men and women move freely between jobs and where each year brings larger manpower to the work force, there is always a fluid group of unemployed. America's jobholding population stands today at a historic high—more than 67 million employed. The standard of living of the American worker under the free enterprise system is not only the highest in the world, but is steadily rising.

4 Shopping is a favorite pastime of tourists from all lands and is one way of absorbing foreign customs. Thousands of Americans also live with European or Asian families, study in overseas schools, paint foreign landscapes, spend long hours in Notre Dame, the Tower of London, the Roman Forum, the Pitti Palace, and the Louvre. At the same time, foreigners in the United States wouldn't think of missing our supermarkets and department stores.

5 If the American press is captive of anyone, it is captive of the individual reader. It is reader interest that controls circulations and determines profits. Therefore, the political tone of the daily newspapers, weeklies, and periodicals in the United States—totaling some 20,000 publications—ranges from far left to far right. No "big" group could possibly hold captive such a dynamic force.

6 Americans own 56 million automobiles. Backed by vast purchasing power, Americans do not hesitate to satisfy their wide-ranging interests in both domestic and foreign-made merchandise. The foreign car is welcomed for its own unique features, but importation is but a very small fraction of American production.

7 The principal aim of the United Nations is peaceful cooperation between the countries of the world. The government of the Republic of China, one of the five permanent members of the Security Council, has always been represented in the U.N. On the other hand, Communist China, an aggressor in Korea—and openly pledged to use force in Taiwan—has shown that, in our opinion, it does not fulfill the requirements of the U.N. Charter.

8 U.S. expenditures for defense take a small bite from our Gross National Product compared to the Soviets'. We spend 9 per cent. Their outlay is in excess of 15 per cent for the military. It was shown after World War II that such spending is not a crutch for our economy. At that time, we shifted to a peacetime operation without serious dislocation.

9 Because it is not true. Taking the scientific picture as a whole, the United States is ahead, although the Soviets may for the time being have moved out front in rocket development and intercontinental ballistic missiles. U.S. achievements in basic and applied chemistry, agricultural research, various aspects of medicine, and applied and experimental physics have advanced well beyond those of the Soviets.

10 Because Communist China, in the eyes of the United Nations, is still an aggressor, and also because its intentions with regard to the Republic of China on Taiwan and its neighboring states are aggressive. The United States has no desire to help build up the Communist Chinese regime's potential for offensive action or to strengthen its oppression of the Chinese people.

How would you answer these questions?

Test yourself on some of the hardest questions tossed at Americans by foreigners at home and abroad. Then see how your answers stack up with mine.

- 1 Why does the United States stall on discontinuing nuclear tests?
- 2 If you don't intend to make war, why does the U.S. threaten the Soviet Union with a ring of military bases?
- 3 How can you say you are "prosperous" when you have millions of unemployed?
- 4 Why do Americans abroad spend all their time in shops, rather than learning about a foreign culture?
- 5 Isn't the American press the captive of big business?
- 6 If the United States excels in consumer goods, how do you explain the high demand for European cars?

7 Why do you oppose admission of Communist China to the United Nations?

8 Isn't it true that American prosperity is based on building a vast war machine?

9 The Soviets are ahead of you in technology. Why don't you admit it?

10 Why doesn't the United States trade with Communist China?

The answers to these questions involve some of the most difficult and complex problems facing you and your government in our foreign relations today. The answers given in the next column must, because of the limitations of space, be brief and perforce oversimplified. I believe, however, that they provide the basic reasoning in each case and will suggest the lines along which you can develop further discussion.

Esther Williams

Q Is it true that Anthony Eden has already been paid $300,000 by an American publisher for 40 per cent of his memoirs?—V.P., Newark, N.J.
A An American magazine has paid that sum for an excerpt from The Memoirs of Sir Anthony Eden, which Houghton, Mifflin will publish next year.

Q I understand that Loretta Young is a descendant of the great Mormon leader Brigham Young. I understand that Rhonda Fleming and Laraine Day are also Mormons. Is Loretta one, too?—K.P., Provo, Utah.
A Miss Young is a Roman Catholic, Miss Day and Miss Fleming are of the Mormon faith.

Q I've been told that since his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor, Eddie Fisher cannot find a major sponsor on television. Is this on the level?—C.R., Boston, Mass.
A Many agents say it is substantially true at the moment but that the situation will change. Fisher's TV program last year was not the highest-rated show on the air, and it is difficult to tell whether sponsors are shy of him for that reason or because of his marriage to Miss Taylor and its effect on the public.

Q Can it be true that stage producer Leland Hayward plans to divorce his wife and marry Pamela Churchill, ex-wife of Randolph Churchill?—L.G., Jamaica, N.Y.
A Long Island society is buzzing with the rumor, but all three parties concerned deny comment at this point.

Q Can you tell me who now occupies the lovely Roman villa Mussolini once bought for his mistress, Clara Petacci?—H.S., Columbus, Ohio.
A The villa has been turned into one of Rome's most fashionable and expensive restaurants.

Q What is the real name of Jill St. John, who is engaged to marry Lance Revenlow, an heir to the Woolworth millions?—L.S., Washington, D.C.
A Jill Oppenheim.

Q One of the greatest manhunts has been for Adolf Eichmann, the Nazi in charge of the Gestapo's Jewish department. He was the man who supervised the extermination of 6 million European Jews. He changed his identity after the war and disappeared. Has anyone traced him?—E.O., Fort Worth, Tex.
A The Israeli radio station in Tel Aviv recently announced that Eichmann is now working as an oil company employee in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Kuwait.

Q Have Herbert Marshall, Cole Porter, and sports announcer Bill Stern each had one leg amputated?—E.F., Buffalo, N.Y.
A Yes.

Q I've heard a rumor that too much swimming has caused Esther Williams to lose her hair and that she now wears a wig. True or false?—B.P., Erie, Pa.
A False.

Two-speed drill: New idea in portable power tools is a two-speed electric drill that offers 1/4" and 1/2" capacity. Flick a switch and you have high (2,000 r.p.m.) speed for wood, plastics, light metals, or low (550 r.p.m.) speed for concrete, cement, angle iron, and other materials where fast speed would burn up expensive bits. $34.98. For full details write: Portable Electric Tools, Dept. P, 320 W. 83d St., Chicago 20, Ill.

Serving aid: Any plate or platter becomes a roast or fowl cutting board with a simple new device—an aluminum "meat spike" fitted with a suction cup. Stick four spikes to plate or platter, press roast or fowl on top, and you can slice without slides. Set of four: $1. Hollis, Dept. PP, 1133 Broadway, New York 10, N. Y.

Improve your writing: Both adults and children can use a new practice device for better writing. It's a small stand with a clamp that automatically holds pen or pencil in proper position—and forces you to use a free arm movement and stops finger cramping. In the long run it could make writing less tiring as well as more legible. Complete with pen: $1.25. Barnett Writing Aid Co., Box 706, Lampasas, Tex.

Squeeze air: With a squeeze of your hand around a rubber device, you can inflate all types of sport equipment, siphon gas and other liquids, blow out clogged gas and oil lines on outboard motor or car, pressurize the gas tank to overcome vapor lock, even inflate a tire to 12 lbs. for emergency drive-ins. $3.98. General Specialties, Box 539, Glenwood Springs, Colo.

Individual alarm: Here's an electric alarm clock that wakes just one sleeper at a time—even under double bed conditions. Attached to it by a 4 1/2-ft. cord, an under-pillow buzzer sounds off so only the early riser hears it. Clock's regular alarm can be set to wake the late sleeper later. Ivory, blue, or pink: $12.95; with luminous dial, $13.95. Sessions Clock Co., Dept. PP, Forestville, Conn.

Double hold: New help when you paint or wash windows from a ladder is a plastic fixture that fits on any rung. How to beat traffic jams

DETROIT, MICH.

THE DRIVER of the car in the photograph at left didn't make a wrong turn off a bridge. He drives his car on water all the time. Richard B. Cronin, a businessman here, took off the wheels of his 1949 convertible, put the engine in the rear, rejiggered the steering system, made the car leak-proof — then said goodbye to traffic lights with a splash. ■

Converted car, dashboard virtually unchanged, is steered out of dock by Cronin, with his wife Betty. Craft's name: "Doodle Bug."

DEVILISH GOOD FUDGE

Melt 2 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate in $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk over low heat, stirring constantly until blended. Add 2 cups sugar and a dash of salt. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Then boil without stirring to soft ball stage (234° F.). Add 2 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110° F.). Beat until mixture begins to thicken, lose its gloss and hold its shape. Pour at once into greased 8x4-inch pan. Cool and cut in squares or triangles. Makes 18 large pieces. Note: for larger recipe, double all ingredients.

For Devilish Good Brownies, use the easy recipe on the package.

OUR COVER

Typical of literally hundreds of youthful keggers who bowl under the banner of the American Junior Bowling Congress in the Long Beach area is pretty cover girl Marilyn Travis, 15-year-old Poly High School student. Marilyn took up the sport three years ago, mainly because her mother, father and brother were avid bowlers. Currently she is maintaining a 166 average and has to her credit a 235-603 in sanctioned league play, which ranks her as the top junior bowlerette in the city. Marilyn has 20 trophies, evidence of her skill, and has participated in exhibition matches throughout the Southland. "No doubt about it," says Independent Press-Telegram bowling writer-photographer Alice Meglenre who snapped the cover photo, "this young lady is a rough competitor. Furthermore, she's a real credit to the AJBC program." More about bowling on Page 9.

NEXT WEEK

Much history of the Old West has been written around the branding iron, and many a tale of fiction has been spun about roundup time on the great ranches, when brands are seared on animals' backsides as proof of ownership. How did all this start? How was a brand selected? Is cattle branding still practiced on the wide open spaces? Southland has the answers next week in a story called "Hieroglyphics of the Cowpoke."

My first American

by MARIA AUGUSTA TRAPP

A QUICK NOTE left for me in a Monroe, Mich., hotel showed me the "real America" soon after I came to this country. It began: "Dear Baroness: Our key is under the doormat..."

But I am ahead of my story. It was 1938 and the Trapp family had no home. We lived in inexpensive hotel rooms and on an ancient bus. The bus took us from town to town that winter for our first U.S. concert tour as the Trapp Family Singers. There were 10 of us—7 children, Father Wasner, our priest-conductor, Baron von Trapp, and myself.

Our home had been in Salzburg, Austria, which we left soon after the Baron refused a commission in Hitler's navy. We were refugees. Now our future hung on the day-to-day concert earnings.

Before that day in Monroe, I didn't know what the word "Thanksgiving" meant. I soon learned.

Conductor Father Wasner points out the musical score to Trapp Family Singers during rehearsal for tour. They live in Stowe, Vt., home that doubles as a lodge for skiers.

Broadway hit The Sound of Music, based on Trapp family story.

Thanksgiving

Early in the morning an envelope pushed itself under the door of my hotel room. "Dear Baroness," the note read: "Our key is under the doormat. Just make yourself at home. We hope you will have a good time. M.M." and an address.

The Trapp Family Singers, strangers in town, had been offered a home for Thanksgiving Day by a local family who could not even be there to share it with us. We could hardly believe what we saw as we stepped into "our" house in the residential section of Monroe. In the dining room a table was set for 10 with wine glasses and even two crystal decanters near by.

On the table was a second note: "Dinner is almost ready in the kitchen." Led by Lorli and our own excellent sense of smell, we found a huge turkey already stuffed for roasting, a big bowl of salad on the table, and with it two mysterious pastries, our first pumpkin pie!

Home Away from Home

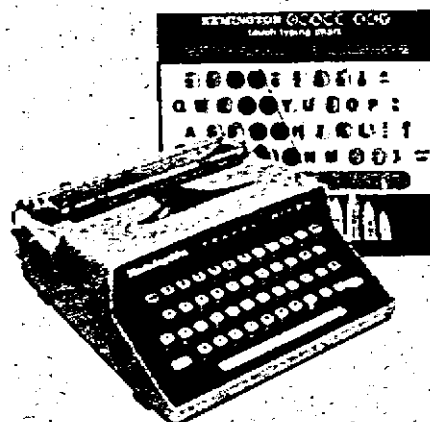

Rupert and Werner, with Lorli and Rosmarie helpfully underfoot, made a fire in the living-room fireplace. Agatha and Hedwig directed operations in the kitchen. My husband, peacefully smoking his pipe, looked over the bookshelves, trying a volume here and there. Father Wasner sat down at the piano and began quietly to improvise, while for the longest time I stood at the window looking out into nowhere and fighting down my tears of joy and gratitude.

As we all came together around the table, Georg bade us rise while he proposed the first toast: "To our absent hosts. May God bless them in their undertakings a thousandfold." Thus, without actually realizing it, we celebrated Thanksgiving Day in its proper spirit. We also took a big step forward in the "discovery" of "our" country—for whose big heart all the vast plains, towering trees, and high mountains are but an appropriate setting. We were beginning to comprehend something of the real America.

Prize-winning Thanksgiving recipes

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Princess Anne Stuffing

- 2 loaves (1 lb. each) unsliced bread
- 1 lb. boned shoulder of pork (medium fat)
- 1 turkey liver
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs

Trim bread; let dry out completely. Soak bread in water; press out water thoroughly. Chill overnight in cloth bag with heavy weight on top to press out any remaining excess water. Put pork through food chopper, using medium blade; cook over low heat until no pink color shows. Put turkey liver through chopper; cook with pork until lightly browned. In a separate small skillet, cook the celery and onion in butter or margarine until onion is transparent. Crumble bread in large mixing bowl; add pork and liver together with drippings. Add celery, onion, and eggs; mix well. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and monosodium glutamate. Recipe will make enough stuffing to season a 12-lb. (dressed weight) turkey.

Jellied Three Fruit Sauce

- 2 apples, peeled and cored
- 1 seedless orange, unpeeled
- 1½ cups raw cranberries
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water

Cut apples and oranges in chunks, put through food chopper with cranberries, using coarse blade. Dissolve sugar and raspberry gelatin in boiling water; chill until slightly thickened; stir in fruit. Spoon into 1 quart mold; chill until firm; unmold on serving dish. Makes eight to 10 servings.

Brussels Sprouts with Walnut Butter

- 4 packages frozen Brussels sprouts
- ¼ lb. (1 stick) butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Cook Brussels sprouts as directed on package; drain. Melt butter; stir in walnuts; pour over sprouts. Makes eight to 10 servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

PITTSBURGH, PA.

WE HAVE ASKED a world-renowned chef to plan your Thanksgiving dinner this year. He's Otto Spielbichler, who won the Olympic gold medal for his mastery with turkey and trimmings. Chef Spielbichler, for 28 years executive chef at the University Club here, has given us not only his menu for a de luxe Thanksgiving dinner but his prize-winning recipes for stuffing, sauce, and a holiday side dish. His Princess Anne stuffing is the same that helped win the Olympic cooking honors for the U.S. in 1956, and it's a savory delight, with bits of crisp pork and turkey liver to spark the flavor. If stuffing isn't really stuffing to you without poultry seasoning or sage, add a tablespoon or two to taste. You'll like the new way of serving Brussels sprouts, too, with melted butter and finely chopped walnuts. And as a change from plain cranberry jelly, you will rejoice in the chef's three fruit sauce.

Bake it Better with Gold Medal—the "Kitchen-tested" FLOUR

The Pilgrims Built Well

By Betty Hardesty

THE PILGRIMS were good builders and they hastened to provide housing for all Mayflower passengers as soon as a site for Plymouth Colony had been selected.

When they had first landed Nov. 11, 1621, on the tip of Cape Cod, the women and children had been left on board while the men made expeditions by shallop (small boat) to select a safe place. After ten days of exploration, they had decided on the present site which was not too wooded and which provided a hill for a fortification.

At last, on Nov. 22, the men went ashore "to fell and carry timber to provide stuff for building." They dragged logs to a pit which they had dug to make it possible to saw them into planks. By laying the big logs across the top, a man could handle the saw from above while another worked in the pit. These were called the "upper and nether workman."

SUNDAY, AS A DAY OF REST and worship, was spent aboard ship but Monday found the men back at work, "some to fell timber, some to saw, some to rise and some to carry" as Gov. Bradford's eyewitness chronicle, "Of Plimouth Plantation," records. By Thursday they had enough wood ready to start construction of the "mount" or fort on the hill. This was to be their meeting house and place of worship as well as a refuge from savages.

Bradford described the fort-meeting house thus, "They built a fort of good timbers, bothe strong and comly, which was of good defense, made with flat roof and battlements on which their ordnance was mounted." De Resiere, who was dispatched as embassy from New Amsterdam to Plymouth, added this information: "On the hill they have a large square house with flat roof made with thick sawn planks stayed with oak beams, upon the top of which they have six cannons which shoot iron balls of five pounds."

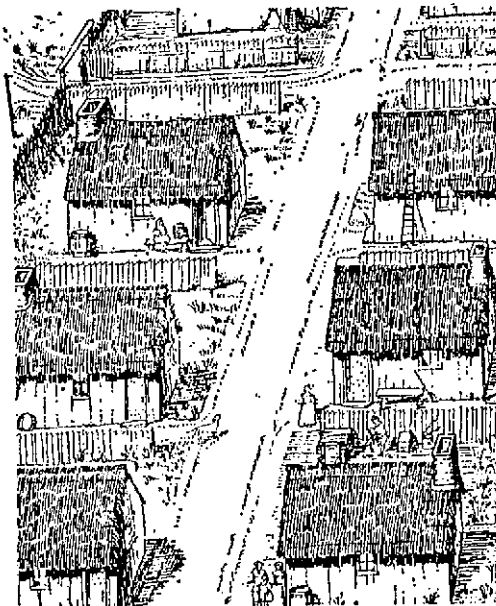

The Dutchman continued: "The lower part they use for their church where they preach on Sundays. They assemble by beat of drum, each with his musket or firelock in front of the Captain's door." (This procession is re-enacted each Thanksgiving in Plymouth today.) The Captain's house was then on the first street (now Leyden) of 2 rows of houses which could be seen from the hill fort. The lay-out and building of this street is described in a London publication, "Mount's Relation," composed jointly by Bradford and Winslow.

"SO IN THE AFTERNOON we went to measure out the grounds. First we took notice how many families they were, willing all single men to join with some Familie, as they sought fit, that so we might build fewer houses . . . which was done, and we reduced them to 19 . . . To greater families were allotted larger plots, to every person half a pole in breadth and 3 in length; so Lots were cast where every man should lie; which was done and staked out; we thought this large enough at first for houses and gardens so impale them around." (Fence them in).

De Resiere, writing in 1627, mentioned the fenced gardens. "New Plymouth," he wrote, "lies on the slope of a hill, stretching east toward the seacoast with a broad street about 800 feet long . . . with a stockade against sudden attack; and at the ends of the street are 3 wooden gates." As years passed and dangers lessened, houses were built outside the palisade of sharpened oak logs. Gov. Bradford first built on what is now Middle St. and Elder Brewster later. Miles Standish and John Alden, however, put their new houses at the base of the hill, close to the fort. Today there are 5 houses used by the Pilgrims in Plymouth, still in good condition.

On Summer St., Richard Sparrow's house built in 1640 of clear pine planks similar to those used in the first houses, still stands. This and the

STOP OILY SKIN TO CHECK PIMPLES!

Don't pick, scratch, squeeze
or merely "cover them up"

Doctors know that acne or pimples are caused by the germ called the acne bacillus. These germs invade overactive oil glands in the skin, cause blackheads and pus pockets; then your skin "breaks out."

What's needed is (1) to dry up the excessive oil that collects on skin; (2) to destroy acne germs on the skin, and (3) to stop itching and irritation so pimples can heal.

A doctor's formula, Liquid Zemo has this effective 3-way action; also keeps skin looking cleaner!

The eagle comes home to roost

EVER SINCE the bald eagle was chosen in 1782 as our national emblem, eagles have been almost synonymous with Americans.

They have flown on coins, flags, and weather vanes throughout U.S. history. And every time patriotism flies high, too, the eagles flap right into our homes.

This year, perhaps because of the entry of Alaska and Hawaii into the Union, eagles are more popular than ever as home decorations.

The most stylish eagles for the home are antique birds, and the bigger the wing spread, in the judgment of the experts, the better. If you can't afford a real antique, reproductions are plentiful. So are 1959 versions of our favorite bird.

As you can see from the photo, eagles appear on rugs, fabric, lamps, wallpaper, and walls, and even on towel racks and door knockers.

Big eagles, finished to look like wood antiques, are favorites as wall plaques. Little eagles come mostly in metal, and then there are composition and plastic eagles for as little as $1, which you can paint or stain, according to your preference.

Thanks to the Old Coyote Man

By E. J. Leslie

Acorns were a staple food with the Paiute Indians who stored the acorns in chuck-ahs or granaries, as shown above at an Indian home in Yosemite.

THANKSGIVING festivals are as old as man. Since Adam and Eve, man has been offering the fruits of the harvest to his god with thanksgiving and prayers for future abundance. The Feast of the Acorns was an old California Indian custom long before the first Thanksgiving celebration observed by white men in the United States was held by the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass., in 1621.

In the Sierra Nevada, the acorns of the black oak (Quercus kelloggii) held the same place of importance on the Indians' menu as did the turkey on the Puritans' table. Acorn bread and mush constituted almost 80 per cent of the food supply of the Yosemite Valley Indians (ah-wah-nee-chees) whose nomadic, mongoloid ancestors tracked the mastodon across Bering Strait without a passport thousands of years ago. They brought many ancient customs with them.

None of the new crop of acorns was eaten until due respect had been paid to their revered deity, the Old Coyote Man, and the spirits of the dead who were remembered at all celebrations. After the new crop had been harvested by the squaws and children and stored in chuck-ahs (granaries) for winter use, an invitation to the celebration was sent to friends by a runner with a knotted string message indicating the number of days until the feast.

LIKE ALL GOOD hostesses in the days before the deep freeze, the squaws spent days in preparation of food for feasting. New acorns were shelled, the kernels ground into meal in stone metates. Spread out in shallow, circular sand basins and covered with spruce twigs, the meal was leached of its bitter, tannin content with several applications of warm water.

Huge baskets were filled with pinkish-gray loaves of new acorn bread. Deer, supplied by the braves, were dressed and cut into strips for broiling; each person broiled his own meat. Wrapped in leaves, deer brains, carass roots, and fish, fowl and rabbits with hot stones in their centers roasted all night in the stone-lined ovens under the fire to be ready for the feast on the following day.

Under a tree, manzanita juice dripped in the cider-press, a loosely-woven basket balanced on two sticks on top of a leakproof basket. Bay nuts, edible fungi, wild fruit, seeds, salads of miner's lettuce, clover, and fern shoots, were also prepared. Pinon-nut meal was mixed with wild berries and rolled into balls to be toasted on the end of a stick.

In a trading deal with the fly-people (Monachees), acorns were exchanged for caterpillars of the Pandora moth, salt, and a larva delicacy from flies which bred in Mona Lake; both were used in stews.

NEW ACORN MUSH was prepared by dropping hot stones into watertight baskets half full of water and meal, and stirring with wooden lades to prevent burning. Insects and ashes were skimmed off the top with basket skimmers. When thickened, the mush was cooled in smaller baskets, and eaten by the lick-finger method. Several ate from the same basket; or the mush could be peeled off the cooled stones.

On the designated day, visitors to the Feast of the Acorns arrived with gifts to be burned in the ritual fire honoring the dead. Two days were spent in fasting and mourning for deceased relatives and great chiefs who were eulogized by the chief acting as master of ceremonies. New acorn meal was thrown on the fire. Costumed dancers pantomined the life and death of those mourned and the rites were interspersed with plaintive cries of the mourners and the sounds of clapsticks and bone whistles.

EARLY ON THE third morning, the mourners had their faces and wrists washed by two chiefs, and they were then free to join the festivities; all except a recent widow who wore the pitch and ashes of her

My favorite jokes

by JACK DURANT

WHEN JACK DURANT was a 9-year-old in New York City, he promised his grandmother $2 a week "if she could get me out of school." Somehow grandma engineered the deal, and the youngster ran away from home. He joined a group of traveling vaudevillians and made his debut as a female impersonator in Chicago's Rialto Theatre. That was 42 years ago. Since then Jack Durant has played in every avenue of show business.

One of his best anecdotes concerns his adventures in London in 1939. Back then Durant was booked into the Palladium for two weeks. His pregnant wife, Molly O'Day, wanted very much to join him, but Durant said it didn't pay for her to cross the ocean for only two weeks. Subsequently the comedian was held over for two more weeks, then another two weeks.

Durant, taken up with his London success, hired a press agent who promptly announced that his client intended to swim the English Channel. Durant went along with the gag, figuring it would soon fade. It didn't. The British press demanded to know when Durant was going to try his Channel swim. They played the story big.

In an effort to extricate himself from this embarrassing spot, Jack wrote his wife, by then furious because he wouldn't send for her, and implored her to send him a cable saying she absolutely forbade a Channel try because of herself and their three children.

Molly O'Day's wired reply read: "Congratulations. The children join me in wishing you every success on your Channel swim. We know you will make it."

Says Durant: "Three days later World War II broke out in Europe. That's what saved me. You see, I can swim only 30, maybe 40 yards."

EDITOR'S NOTE

I LOVE my mother-in-law. In fact I worship the ground her slacks drag on.

MY WIFE is so ugly I take her wherever I go. I'd rather do that than kiss her goodbye.

MATTER OF FACT there's a big sign you see when you enter Las Vegas . . . very biblical: "The Good Lord giveth, and we taketh away."

A FEW WEEKS AGO when I was in New York City I heard two elderly women discussing space rockets. Said the first, "Did you see the way they shot that rocket toward the moon the other night?" Said the second: "I don't see anything. I live in the back."

I ALWAYS USE this opening line at benefits: "Stars may come and stars may go. But I go on for nothing."

EVERYONE SAYS to me nowadays, "Jack, why don't you get on TV?" I say, "Listen, I'm still trying to get on radio."

I HAVE a short-wave radio set, and because I understand Russian I frequently tune in on Radio Moscow. Yesterday I heard the Moscow Tomato Juice Program. The announcer came on and said, "Moscow Tomato Juice comes in seven delicious flavors. All red. We're not asking you to try it. We're telling you."

ON THE SAME PROGRAM there was a news announcement. Ivan Iko, Leningrad's No. 1 athlete," the announcer said, "just broke all existing track records for the 300-mile dash, the 400-mile dash, the 500-mile dash. He made these records on flat roads, hilly roads, and over our highest range of mountains. He made these records without food or water for three days. However, Ivan's performance was in vain. He was captured and brought back to Leningrad."

TRAVELING is so speedy these days. Soon you'll be able to traverse the world in two hours. One hour around the world, and the other hour to get to the airport.

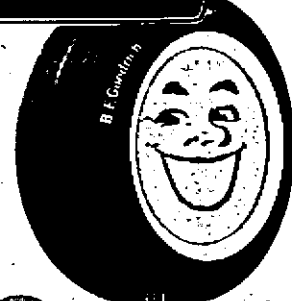

EVERYONE wants to get to the moon these days. I don't know why. There's no one on the moon. If there was, you can rest assured that they would've asked Washington for a loan years ago.

A FEW MONTHS AGO my wife entered the Miss America beauty contest. The judges took one look at her, then suggested the government take her citizenship away.

The Game Created to Evade the Law

By Ray Gise

MOST authorities agree that bowling originated in northern Italy about 1,500 years ago and the game has been played down through the years in one form or another.

However, the game of tenpins, as we know it, was created to evade the law. The original game of ninepins was introduced to America by the Dutch about 1600. Ninepins enjoyed popularity for a great many years, the pins being set in a diamond shape. The game became the rage of sporting men and gradually fell into the control of gamblers. Matches for money were made and eventually proved the game's undoing. The Connecticut legislature passed a law prohibiting the game of ninepins, and a short time later New York and Massachusetts did the same.

To get around the law which prohibited the game of ninepins but not of bowling, a game called cocked hat, which called for fewer pins, was substituted. This state of affairs continued a number of years until some genius hit upon the idea of adding another pin to the ninepin set thereby creating a tenpin combination with pins set in a triangular formation thus circumventing the law against ninepins and bringing forth the game as we know it today.

TENPINS, WHILE ENJOYING a certain amount of popularity, frequently carried a dubious reputation. Most bowling alleys were run in conjunction with pool rooms or saloons, and usually housed in basements. The game was played much as today but there was no overall supervision as to the equipment which made up the game.

"City slickers" were expert in the use of the "dodo" or loaded ball, pins of various weights and sizes could be intermixed and the alleys or lanes as we term them today, could be "slotted" or "high-boarded" in various ways to the advantage of the local players. Should all this fail, the pin setters (pins used to be hand set) knew a few tricks in forming the pin triangle.

Out of all this confusion a few dedicated bowlers realized that uniform rules and regulations were necessary if the game of tenpins was to survive, and so the American Bowling Congress was formed in 1895.

The Congress set up uniform standards for equipment, playing rules were stabilized, and a chaotic sport became of age. The next step was to get the game out of the dim, smoke-filled basements and out into the light where it could become the family sport it is today.

And so, women discovered bowling. They also discovered they could beat the men at their own game, because this is a sport in which strength is not the factor. It is a game of rhythm, timing and accuracy. Today, millions of women are bowling. The Women's International Bowling Congress was organized in 1916, with a first tournament in 1917 attracting 8 teams, or 40 women, to compete for prizes. Today the ranks of women bowlers are in thousands.

OLD-TIMERS STILL RECALL when Mrs. Flora D. McCutcheon, a Pueblo, Colo., housewife, challenged Jimmy Smith, one of the early all-time greats to a three-game match. This was in 1927 and Mrs. McCutcheon had been bowling the short period of two years. Smith was touring the country giving exhibitions. He consented to the match with a smile but his feelings suffered a reverse when he went down to defeat at the hands of the little lady, 704 to 686 in 3 games.

The ABC and WIBC with organization and uniformity today has made bowling the largest participating sport. Through city and state affiliations millions enjoy the game. Age competes with youth on equal terms. Both men's and women's local associations sponsor junior bowlers, teaching them the fundamentals of the sport, because from today's juniors come tomorrow's champions. Two hundred thousand boys and girls in the 8-18 age group make up the American Junior Bowling Congress).

Bowling proprietors and equipment manufacturers have kept up with progress. Today's modern bowling center is a far cry from not too many years ago. First the game itself was speeded up with the automatic pinsetters, a device that sets pins and returns the ball, all formerly done by hand. Electric eye foul detectors, pin indicators, which show any pins left standing, and electric hand driers followed. The modern pin palace has excellent restaurants and coffee shops. Some have nurseries to let busy mothers enjoy carefree bowling. Soundproofing and air conditioning have added to the bowler's comfort.

BOWLING WAS NEVER considered much of a spectator sport until television brought the game (Continued on Page 31)

Six million women are active bowlers in U.S. today. Here, "bowlerette" shows skill.

In bowling's transformation from a dubious sport in smoke-filled basements to the light and air-conditioned alleys of today, many centers have provided nurseries for tots while mothers bowl.

JULIET PROWSE

HER 'CAN-CAN' SHOCKED

by LLOYD SHEARER
Parade West Coast correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.

It's a sad truism, but the motion-picture industry today can no longer make a full-fledged star.

There are two main reasons for this: 1) television has become the No. 1 mass entertainment medium in America; 2) no major film studio in Hollywood currently produces enough films each year to afford a newcomer the amount of exposure necessary for stardom.

Thus, one of the few chances a young player enjoys today of quickly making it to the top is via the lucky break routine, i.e., getting involved in a provocative and titillating scandal such as the Elizabeth Taylor-Eddie Fisher-Debbie Reynolds triangle, which did more for Miss Reynolds' career than all her movies put together, or getting involved in a well-publicized film of tremendous exploitation potential.

Juliet Prowse hopes to make it via the second route.

Juliet is a tall (5'8"), lovely, blue-eyed ballerina with the best legs of any girl in Hollywood.

She is also a top dancing talent and has a leading role in Can-Can. This is the musical extravaganza, starring Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, and herself, which shocked Mr. and Mrs. Khrushchev when they visited Hollywood.

World-wide Publicity

As a result the film was publicized all over the world. Along with the publicity went thousands of news photos of Juliet, talking to the Russian Premier and his party, and with Shirley MacLaine leading the chorus in the Can-Can number.

It so happens that Juliet was born in India 24 years ago, was raised in South Africa, and employed as a dancer in England, France, Spain, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, and Sweden—all this before coming to Hollywood six months ago.

Thus, when the story of Khrushchev's disapproval of the can-can broke overseas, Juliet's role in the affair loomed large. The Indian press described her as "the dancer from Bombay who shocked the Soviet leader with her gyrations." The South African press described her as "the one-time dancer from Durban who horrified the Russian leader." And so it went. In many of the countries where she had performed, Juliet was depicted as a local girl in the international spotlight—because of a dance Khrushchev considered vulgar.

Marion, Gregg and April enjoy a happy moment in their apartment before Marion receives a long-distance phone call telling her that Eddie has married another girl. She is shocked, hurt.

Marion throws herself at Mike Rice (Stephen Boyd), a Fabian editor, but he's not responsive.

HOLLYWOOD

The Girls Who Have the Best

MARIAN BENDER (Hope Lange), Gregg Adams (Suzy Parker) and April Morrison (Diane Baker) go to work for Fabian Publications. They become good friends and share an apartment. Marion is engaged to Eddie Harris (Brett Halsey) who is in Europe on a scholarship. Gregg, who wants to be an actress, is in love with a theatrical producer. April is in love with love—hasn't found her man yet. These are the basic ingredients of "The Best of Everything," the 20th Century-Fox new CinemaScope-DeLuxe color film, based on Rona Jaffe's best-selling novel, coming soon. Theme of the book and play is woven around girls who have had "the best of everything"—the best families, best education, best jobs and opportunities but fail to get the best from life.

The Jerry Wald production includes in the cast Stephen Boyd, Martha Hyer, Joan Crawford, Brian Aherne, Robert Evans, Donald Harren, Sue Carson, Louis Jourdan.

"April finds what she thinks is the man of her dreams, socialite Dexter Key (Robert Evans). Marion worries about this relationship—a well-founded worry as later developments prove.

As another Fabian editor, Joan Crawford makes things difficult for Marion, but leaves the firm.

Gregg encounters only tragedy. April finds true love. Marion now has only her career, which is leading to rapid promotion, but not "best of everything." But there is a hint of romance.

KHRUSHCHEV

Whether the can-can is vulgar or not, moviegoers will have to judge for themselves. But that it should not have been shown to the Khrushchev family as a typical movieland contribution to the arts, virtually everyone from President Eisenhower down agrees.

What actually happened at the 20th Century-Fox Studio on the memorable afternoon of September 19 is that following a luncheon in the studio commissary, the Khrushchev party was escorted to the sound stage where Can-Can was being filmed.

After the guests of honor were presented to the cast and seated, Frank Sinatra stepped forward and explained that they would see portions of two scenes. In the first, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan sang a duet. Then Shirley MacLaine, making a breathless little speech in Russian, thanked Mr. Khrushchev for sending over such wonderful artists as the famous Bolshoi Ballet and invited him to watch the American dancers.

Then, bang! It came with a whim! The can-can—led first by Juliet Prowse and then the rest of the girls and Shirley. They kicked and twirled, showed off their fronts, their backs, their sides. They dropped to the floor, raised their legs, and went through a series of gyrations Mr. Khrushchev felt belonged to private rather than public demonstration.

Mrs. Khrushchev, who had smiled happily at Chevalier's number, frowned in disbelief. Khrushchev tried to maintain the self-possession air of the man-of-the-world. But even this pretension was demolished by the climax of the dance. Juliet Prowse and Shirley MacLaine assumed stances with their legs spread wide apart. Two young male dancers then slid through their legs, each holding triumphantly aloft a pair of panties.

Mr. and Mrs. Khrushchev looked at each other astonished, said nothing.

A day later, when the Khrushchev party arrived in San Francisco, the Russian leader met with a group of American union chiefs at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. The union leaders, Walter Reuther, James Carey, and several others, began asking Mr. Khrushchev some embarrassing questions concerning Soviet workers and their lack of freedom to conduct a strike.

Mr. K. Does the Can-can

At this point, in retaliation, Khrushchev unexpectedly gave a burlesque imitation of the can-can he had seen in Hollywood. He turned his back to the table and flipped his coat up, wiggling his hips.

"This is a dance," he announced, "in which girls pull up their skirts. You're going to see that. We are not. This is what you call freedom—freedom for the girls to show their backsides. To us it's pornography, the culture of a people who want pornography. It's capitalism that makes girls that way."

Paul Phillips, president of the United Paperworkers, asked: "Does the Chairman think the girls should be prohibited by law from showing their backsides?"

Khrushchev's answer: "There should be a law prohibiting the girls from showing their backsides—a moral law."

Next day Khrushchev's opinion of the can-can made headlines everywhere. And Juliet Prowse, heretofore a relatively unknown brought over by 20th Century-Fox from Spain to dance in Can-Can at $350 a week, found herself a name bandied about by the world press.

Fortunately, Juliet has talent to go with that name. She's been dancing since the age of 4. Two years ago, choreographer Hermes Pan saw Juliet dance in Italy, described her as "the most graceful, stimulating, and attractive dancer I've seen in Europe for ages."

This year, when Pan was signed to choreograph Can-Can, he cabled Juliet in Madrid where she was working, told her to catch the first plane to Hollywood.

Here she was quickly signed for the film, given the role of Claudine, a dancer who makes a play for Sinatra. According to the script, Sinatra is a lawyer in love with a saloon owner, Shirley MacLaine.

A single, forthright, and intelligent girl, ballerina Prowse admits that "I would never have shown the Khrushchev party the can-can number. I would have shown them the Adam and Eve ballet or the Apache number. But, after all, I'm a poor little nobody. I'm not running the studio."

Even so, Juliet realizes her good fortune in being connected with the now notorious film, hopes avidly it will pay off.

"If it does," she says, "I'll probably get more work in this country. If it doesn't, I can always dance for my supper."

"INVISIBLE EAR" OPENS WORLD OF SOUND

Now a marvelous new electronic discovery, "Target Hearing," opens the world of sound in a way never before possible.

The "Invisible Ear," a tiny pinpoint opening, has an amazing sensitivity that allows the hard of hearing to lift the curtain of silence to a wonderful new world. Now people called "deaf" hear clearly in church, theatre, business conferences, etc. "Target Hearing" lets you hear where you look. Conversation, music, can be heard naturally and effortlessly, with a clarity so unique this remarkable invention has been granted a U. S. Patent.

"Target Hearing" does not resemble a hearing aid. The hard-of-hearing person himself, can be the only one who knows, unless he tells people he is wearing it, because there are no cords or buttons to cause embarrassment. There's nothing to wear behind the ear, in the hair or in the clothing; a tiny, almost invisible tube leads to the ear.

You owe it to yourself to get full, free information on "Target Hearing." To obtain an authoritative new booklet describing this exciting electronic miracle, write to Bureau of Public Information, Otation Research Laboratories—9909 Post Road, Osmine, New York. It will be mailed to you FREE without obligation in a plain wrapper.

Contemporary architecture is noteworthy in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Prasch. This view of the living room shows curving sofa and dramatic firehood of copper.

DRAMATIC simplicity of design spreads across the exterior of the very modern but pleasant home in which Mr. and Mrs. John C. Prasch, 6450 Mantova St., have found continuing appreciation since moving in at Thanksgiving season a year ago. And the exterior only hints at the beauty and comfort within.

Contemporary architecture finds interesting expression here in plans designed and supervised by the young architectural partnership of

By Eileen Ball

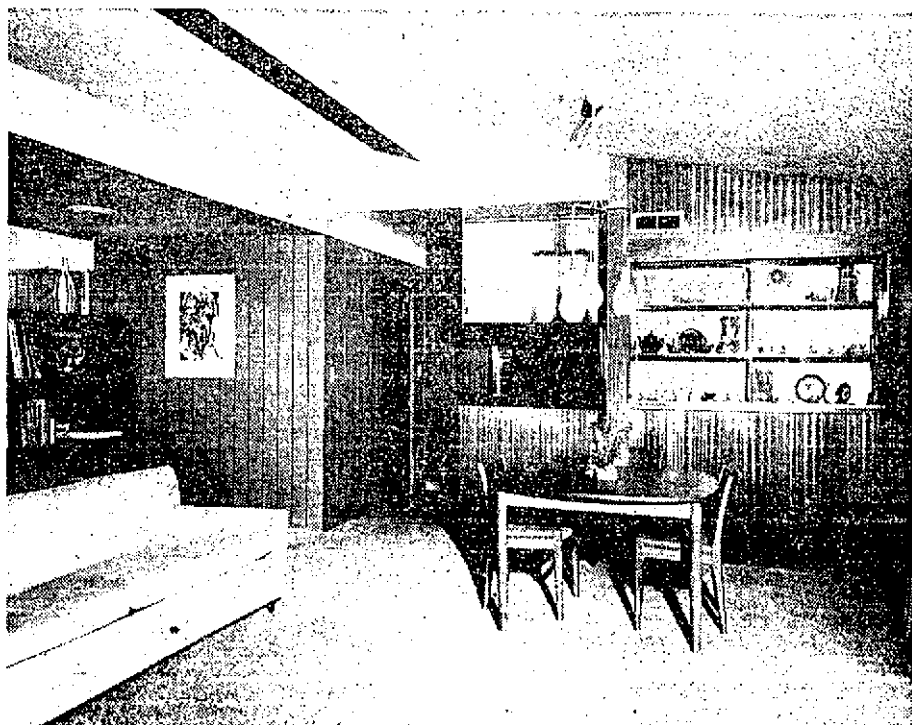

Ross De Young and John Paul, AIA.

Stucco matched to the tone of buff brick comprise exterior specifications pointed up by sweeping facias and painted trims. A tall panel gate opens through a brick free-standing wall to a private courtyard through which entry to the house is gained.

Inside the courtyard, a wide, smoothly surfaced concrete walkway is flanked by level planting beds landscaped with tropicals. The walled garden offers an interesting view from within the entry, an area that—by virtue of the courtyard's seclusion—enjoys an entire wall of plate glass without sacrifice of privacy.

A FLOOR OF GREEN slate on a level with the exterior maintains the indoor-outdoor theme. Furthering this pleasant illusion is a wall of vertical mahogany paneling that extends through the glass wall

Built-in storage abounds the combination dining-family room. A mahogany pass-through counter is functional, helps relate this area to the colorful kitchen.

"Shirley home?"

Happy teenage daze

Teenagers live in a wonderful world of their own—where eager young lads endlessly try to impress demure young lasses, who love every minute of it. Today, PARADE cartoonists, now at the age when they can look back on all that and laugh, do just that as they turn a nostalgic eye on youth's shenanigans. That moment at the front door of "her" house was always pretty serious—especially when Pop showed up unexpectedly. But, as these cartoons show, there was built-in comedy, too.

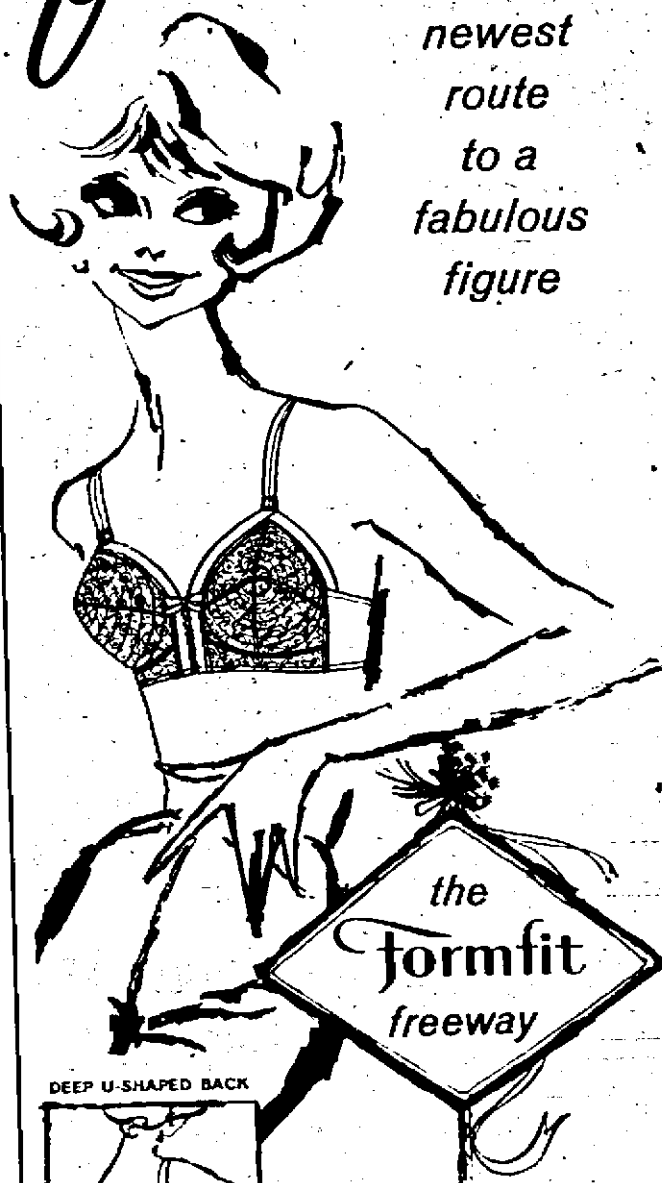

"I just happened to be dribbling by."

"That was a wonderful evening—just the three of us—you, me, and the dollar bill."

Plate glass wall of the entry provides a view of the inner courtyard that incorporates beauty but safeguards privacy.

to form a free-standing exterior partition.

A partition of natural mahogany serves to separate the entry from the family room located on the other side of the built-in. From this side, the cabinet is devoted to both open and closed storage accommodations.

Throughout the family room is abundant built-in storage.

At the dining end of the room is a handsome mahogany china cabinet, a spacious storage unit integral with the structure of the house.

DINING FURNISHINGS are Danish imports, the rush-seated chairs and table constructed of oiled oak and teak. The area is related closely to the kitchen via a good-looking pass-through counter.

A long, seafoam-green leather sofa stands against the inside partition wall; the opposite wall is glass through which the room gains a wide view of the garden.

The kitchen features a mélange of color tones. Clove, citron, persimmon and olive are all blended in a scheme unusual but pleasant for this extraordinarily functional room.

Philippine mahogany cabinets are uniquely installed above counter level with sliding doors that combine this attractive quartet of colors. Citron colored enameled built-in appliances and satin bronze hardware make this kitchen scheme a far cry from the past era's clinical all-white kitchen settings.

AN ISLAND in the center of the room provides Mrs. Prasch with an easily accessible bake center. A spice center, built-in lazy susans and pop-up heater installation all add enhancement to functional values.

Off the family room, offering the active areas, is a living room which, by virtue of good planning is able to lend its footage to the family room in a contiguous entertaining area but is also happily able to withdraw completely to itself for the sake of peace, quiet and the occasionally essential feeling of separate sanctum.

More sophisticated in quality, this room achieves much of its serene character from its high, vaulted ceiling of acoustic plaster, planes of which rise to their highest pitch over a massive central supporting beam painted clove. The same accessory color is used for the sliding door between the living area and the family room—the opening and closing of which so completely alters the function of the combined areas.

IDENTICAL SAND and gold draperies and the same beige-toned carpet continue into the living room. Projecting these soft decorator tones further is a handsome contemporary sofa—a very long, curvilinear piece upholstered in a sand-colored fabric interwoven with gold lurex threads.

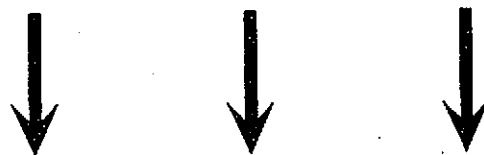

Dynamic architectural feeling is a dramatic contemporary firehood. Crafted of burnished copper, this structure extends all the way to the pitched ceiling.

Here, as in the family room, an exterior wall of glass enables the room to borrow space and view from the outside.

Three bedrooms accommodate the family. The master bedroom is a spacious area wherein chests and dressers are built in. Throughout the bedrooms, incidentally, all woodwork is natural mahogany like that used throughout the living area. With the exception of the girls' pink and white charcoal room, the other two conform closely to the seafoam, citron and clove color schemes already established.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES: Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

Manger scene that is remindful of the Christ in Christmas theme can be made easily by the use of full-sized pattern.

Pattern for Yuletide

NATIONS have their red-letter days, their carnivals and festivals, but once in the year and only once, the whole world stands still to celebrate the advent of life. Only Jesus of Nazareth claims this world-wide undying remembrance. You cannot cut Christ out of the calendar, nor out of the hearts of the world.

In Europe nearly every home displays a miniature creche, or manger scene, which some member of the family has made. It's brought out for Christmas each year and handed down from generation to generation. This ancient custom has been adopted in our country. We may not be the skilled handcarvers that the Swiss and German people are, but nevertheless we can still make the handsome and inspiring scene pictured on this page.

Artist Charles Howell painted the scene under the direction of Rev. Edward L. Lew, moderator for the Christ In Christmas Committee. It's authentic in every detail. Anyone can make it. It's very colorful and may be used year after year. The pictures for each of the figures are printed in many bright colors. Just paste them on plywood or cardboard, then saw or cut them out with scissors. The figures are about six inches tall.

A FULL-SIZED pattern for the stable is also provided. To make it you merely trace the pattern on plywood, then saw out the parts and put them together. Next add a little grass or straw to the roof and your scene is completed and ready to be displayed on your mantel, dining table or under the Christmas tree.

For children particularly, this graphic depiction of history's greatest moment helps bring home the true meaning of Christmas. You will find this to be ideal for a family or school project.

To obtain the full sized stable pattern and colorful pictures No. 180, send $2 in check, currency or money order (add 20 cents if airmail is desired) to Steve Ellington, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Memorial to Other Thanksgivings

By Dorothy Allison

THANKSGIVING, remembered with the tranquility of the golden years, recalls thoughts of earlier times, we found in chats with five of our seniors citizens as they enjoyed the warmth of Long Beach in Lincoln Park.

Philip Greenfield is 90. In 1886, he left his native Hungary and sailed across the Atlantic for three weeks on an $18 steamer ticket to New York City where many of his relatives had already settled. He was 18, and he soon found a job in a fur cap factory at $3 a week. Since the caps made by the factory sold for $66 each, he felt entitled to a little better pay. He didn't get it; so he quit, took up the machinist trade and worked into a job as stationary engineer for a great hotel in New York where he stayed for 35 years.

"Even the first year I landed in this country I celebrated Thanksgiving with my Hungarian relatives and friends. Later, my wife and our children and I had Thanksgivings at home with 10 or 20 guests. We always had a turkey and chickens for the dinner, and my wife I'd gone to school with in Hungary made goulash, too. We had plenty of wine, and after dinner we danced to the music of a violin and a cello—gypsy music. Thanksgiving was always, as now, a big feast."

Mrs. Angelina Contri remembers Thanksgiving dinners she had prepared in many places since she became a bride at 14 until this, her 71st year, which she is spending in a trailer at Seal Beach. Mrs. Contri was born to her Italian parents in Rich Hill, N. Y., and has lived in Arcadia, Mich.; Clinton, Ind., and Fitzwilliam, N. H., before coming to Long Beach 15 years ago.

MR. AND MRS. CONTRI and their six children and adopted grandson always lived on farms. Everything for their Thanksgiving dinner they raised themselves. "Turkey? Always, but baked chickens too, and a fine dish, a special dish for holidays, chicken ravioli we called turline."

A chic and charming 88-year-old woman waiting serenely in the sunshine for the band concert said, "For many years after we came to this country from Saxony, Germany, to Yorktown, Tex., we did not celebrate one day as a day of Thanksgiving. We gave thanks every day that we were able to do honest work and live with dignity in this country and that we had the security of the love of our family."

was to follow the plow with seed and to walk miles, always looking out for rattlesnakes, to neighboring ranches for eggs and milk for our simple meals. There was no time for celebrations until I was about 20 and my father was a successful farmer. Then we, too, had our Thanksgiving Days. We raised everything that went on the table, including the turkey. Those were, indeed happy days of Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Josephine Maszk says there was no going to the store for provisions for Thanksgiving dinner in Grand Forks, N. D., and no warm weather. "Sometimes there was snow for Thanksgiving and sometimes not, but it was always cold. We raised all of our food for the feast—turkeys, chickens and geese, too—except the fruit for preserves, which we bought from other farmers—usually 500 jars sealed up for the winter. My husband and I were reared in Polish families on Polish food, but my cooking was strictly American and so were our Thanksgivings, except that we had lots of music—a harmonica or a violin—and dancing. With our six children and many friends and neighbors we had wonderful Thanksgivings, but we wouldn't want to go back. Too cold."

CHARLES LAPIUS, 85, a protege of the scientific genius, Charles P. Steinmetz, was a world-wide builder of electric power houses and went up San Juan Hill with Teddy Roosevelt in the Spanish American War. In spite of his years, he has few pleasant memories of Thanksgiving Days because most of his adult life he was thousands of miles from home on the American holiday, and his only personal contact with home was through the American Embassy.

A native of Paris, France, he came to New York as a child with his parents. When he was a youth, he got a job with General Electric in Schenectady for $2.12 a week but was sent through college for a degree in electrical engineering by the company.

Lapius traveled, with an unlimited letter of credit, on assignments to China, Bombay, Italy, London, five times to Berlin, and to South America where he has been in every country. He learned Chinese, Spanish, German, Greek and Italian—in addition to French and English which he already knew—in a school run by his company in the home plant. He came to Long Beach seven years ago for treatment at Veterans' Hospital.

"Thanksgiving? I have childhood memories of happy Thanksgiving celebrations with my parents after we came to this country, but the really happy ones are those I spent with my late wife and our daughter on the few occasions when they were able to go with me on a foreign job. I was seldom at home for Thanksgiving, and you know, I often think I'd trade all of my travel and all of my successes to be back at home in Schenectady. Thanksgiving was a truly happy day, then."

So run the thoughts of tranquil reflection, and in years to come, in many lands and in many states, our Thanksgiving this year in Long Beach, with its streaming sunshine, tropical palms and peaceful ocean, will be to other oldsters a day of happy memory.

Mellowness of senior years enhances memories of Thanksgiving in times gone by as oldsters bask in Long Beach's sunny climate.

Pilgrims

Harland and Howland houses also retain the interior white-wash habitually used in early English homes as being important for cleanliness and as a disease preventative. The use of white paint almost exclusively both inside and out for New England dwellings today may spring from that custom.

THE FIRST HOUSES were not painted nor were the second ones built to replace the burned homes on the first street. Replicas of these may be visited in Plymouth today. Ladders lead up to their lofts which were used for sleeping but their small size makes it understandable that rooms would be added as soon as possible. All families raised many children, eight being the average.

There were 180 persons housed in only 32 of these small houses in 1624. A second room was always added on the other side of the chimney and a third beyond that.

Because the first houses were built with sod chimneys supported by wooden frames and entirely enclosed within the house except above the roof, there were many fires. This forced replacements of rock or brick. Actually, a law to this effect was passed, as well as one to prevent further use of "thatch, straw, reed, etc." as roofing material. The second houses therefore used shingles or planking. Both styles have wood siding of hewn planks though the 1627 style boards are narrower, smoother and more carefully arranged.

The Pilgrims had built identical houses according to plans made prior to sailing from England. To best accomplish an early settlement of their debts, they had decided that "no one will be poorer than another for 7 years. . . . This will hinder ye building of good and fair houses." It was further stated in the sailing agreement that the governor "may prevent excess in building" in order to save labor for other work.

That time and labor was given to putting a little fence around each home and garden is significant of the Pilgrims' belief in individual rights even during their "commune" years. Characteristics such as this as well as the simple but well constructed style of New England architecture still prevalent, are part of the American heritage as is Thanksgiving. The Pilgrims were good builders and Gov. Bradford expressed it well:

"Thus, out of small beginnings, greater things have been produced by His hand . . . and as one small candle may light a thousand, so the light here kindled hath shone unto many, yea, in some sort to our whole Nation."

Something Old Under the Sun

By Helen Smith

A NEW HOBBY is becoming popular in the Southland, that of setting untinted glass, 30 years old or older, in the sun and watching it turn gradually into hues of amber, green, pink, lavender and occasionally a deep, royal purple.

Some modern glass will turn slightly but the older glass, because of its formula, is the better subject for the interesting experiment.

THE HOBBY first came to light when sightseers found pieces of colored glass lying in the sun around deserted western ghost towns. Old carriage lights, doorknobs and almost anything made of glass had taken on rich colors not originally intended for them.

Old cemeteries were also the scenes of the phenomena

as glass vases were left for years beside the neglected graves of long-departed loved ones.

Trying the changing process at home is quite simple. The glass may be tied securely and left to hang where the rays of the sun strike the most directly. Care must be taken that the pieces are not broken by swaying in the wind.

Bottles, decanters, pitchers and assorted glass dishes add an artistic note accented at vantage points throughout the garden or around the patio.

If preferred, the pieces can be placed on a bed of sand which absorbs the heat rays and can hasten the color changing process by its reflection. A small sand box placed on the ground in a

Left on a bed of sand in the sun, the decanter at left has acquired smokey violet tinge, one on right is noticeably amber, pitcher is assuming light blue. Rest had later start.

Nettie, a Golden Retriever Guide Dog, attentively maneuvers her mistress, Marcia Wolleson of Lakewood, around obstacles.

PET PARADE

A Lamp Unto Her Feet

By Eleanor Avery Price

SOME time back I inquired of a recognized authority on dogs used as eyes for the blind if a Golden retriever would make as good a dog for a blind person as a Labrador retriever or German shepherd, breeds seemingly popular for this purpose. The reply was definitely negative because a Golden supposedly could never tolerate the regimentation required of it in such line of duty, that Golden lived only to hunt, swim, and have fun.

How wrong was this person! Today the Golden retriever is high on the list of desirable breeds used as eyes for the blind. The majority of Golden retrievers are, of course, gentle and easy-going, as the above mentioned authority implied, but they are also extremely intelligent. They take readily to obedience training but have the sense to disobey if what they are asked to do seems perilous to their handlers, a quality that makes them ideal to lead blind owners. Also they are not dangerously over-possessive. They are of good size, neither too large nor too small, and their coats, although thick and very beautiful, require little in the way of grooming.

and because of her wonderful dog. Marcia is now studying Braille P.B.X. at Braille Institute in Los Angeles and hopes to find work soon here in Long Beach. She is receiving full cooperation and assistance from the Lakewood Lions.

It is Nettie who takes Marcia to Los Angeles and brings her home. And it will be Nettie who will take her to work and return her safely.

Nettie comes from Guide Dogs for the Blind Inc. at San Rafael, the top school of its kind in California and one of the two such schools approved by the Veterans Administration. The other is Seeing Eye in Morristown, N. J. Eighty-five per cent of human graduates from Guide Dogs are gainfully employed and a sizeable number are college students or housewives.

IT WAS A tremendous moment when Marcia met Nettie. You might say it was love at first "sight" and a miracle to Marcia to see through the eyes of a beautifully trained dog.

A Guide Dog's life isn't easy, however. Nettie has won no blue ribbons and shining trophies. But her love of Marcia's voice and the touch of Marcia's hands are rewards enough for her faithfulness.

AN INTERESTING un-benched dog circuit will be the Imperial Valley Kennel event at Holtville, Dec. 5, and the Yuma Kennel show at Yuma County Fairgrounds on Dec. 6. Entries must reach Jack Bradshaw by Monday.

WEST SHORE Cat Club show is being held today at the Arcadia Armory across from Santa Anita race track.

The Paradise Called Hawaii

TO BEGIN WITH — "millions and millions of years ago"—there was nothing but water. . .

And that's the beginning of
"HAWAII" (Random House,
$6.95), James A. Michener's
new novel which takes hold of you from page 1 and maintains your interest through 937 crowded pages as it tells the story of the Islands of Paradise and its people right up to Hawaiian statehood.

The first people set out
from Bora Bora, near Tahiti, 11 centuries ago in a long
canoe. They had worshiped old gods, but a priest with unbounded ambition pressed
a new one on them, outsmart-
ed them and left no alternative but flight. They abandoned their barren wives and took young girls, they packed
only necessities, a storm drove them off course and clouds hid the stars, a shark
—a friendly one that spoke the language of one of them
—trailed them and at last they reached the Promised Land.

King Tamatoa reigned in the 9th century. At the same time Japanese on their islands and Chinese on the mainland were being readied for the long ocean trip. But they came only some 45 generations later, or in the 19th century when Americans first set forth from old New England ports to take the story of the Bible to those heathens and bring back the wealth
there was in whales.

In effect this pictures the rivalry between Lahaina,
which Bora Borans and other Pacific peoples thought a lovely spot, and Honolulu,
where western powers had a vate in the Army, spots the ridiculous in the sublime in harbor, consulates and offices.

Naturalism vies with sophisticated civilization; artificial restraints and inhibitions are imposed and then relaxed—
the white man learns, says
Michener, if he has to. Sugar and pineapple are part of the story, and measles, leprosy,
venereal diseases and bubonic plague. But it all comes full circle when a wartime emis-

sary from Hawaii goes back to Bora Bora, sheds his social vener and finds again, 10 centuries after it had been lost, a love as natural and free as the wind and the waves.

This is a Book-of-the-Month
Club selection which may be Michener's best novel. At any rate, Americans are going to like it and they will be found under their reading lamps,
biting away at its long pages,
throughout the winter.

queens, missionaries and sundry characters who sit in on Hawaii's colorful history. Out of the past came masterful stories by Mark Twain, Rob-

London, and reappearing are fine yarns by such present-day writers as W. Somerset
Maugham, James Jones and
William Meredith. Here, too, is an account of the Day of Infamy, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. There's a glossary of Hawai-

maps of the islands.

THE EISENHOWER FARM at Gettysburg, depicted in water color by New York artist George Gray, is the frontispiece in "CHRISTMAS: An American Annual of Christmas Literature and Art, Volume 29" (Augsburg Pub. House, Minneapolis, gift edition in paper, $1.50, edited by Randolph E. Haugan). The picture is printed on heavy stock and is suitable for framing.

hameha and his rise to power surpasses fiction, and they are so right. Kamehameha was born about 1753, when island chiefs were a dime a dozen. Ambitious, he began to topple these chiefs until, finally, he ruled all the islands and made them the Kingdom of Hawaii. Pole tells the story convincingly and with dramatic force.

Other recent books:

"MEN AT THE TOP" by Osborn Elliott (Harper, $3.50): An account of the men who run American business and industry today — including some interesting peeks into the lives of Southland industrialists—their public and private lives, personalities, opinions, ambitions and achievements, give this book by the managing editor of Newsweek more than usual interest. Donald Douglas Jr., for instance, dreams of "owning a ranch and a yacht and doing some traveling." Other Southern Californians interviewed include Justin Dart, president of Rexall Drug Co.; Charles (Tex) Thornton, president of Litton Industries; Robert Gross, chairman of Lockheed Aircraft; Howard Hughes, the mystery man who controls $600 million worth of corporations; George Getty, billionaire oilman; Howard J. Morgens, president of Proctor & Gamble, and many others.

"AMERICAN HERITAGE: The Magazine of History" (American Heritage, $2.95): Fanny Seward's newly discovered eye-witness account of the attempted assassination of her father, Lincoln's Secretary of State, is told for the first time in one of 13 brilliantly illustrated articles in the current (October) number of this magazine between hard covers. The story comes from Miss Seward's diary, which only recently came to light.

"THAILAND: An Introduction to Modern Siam" by Noel F. Busch (Van Nostrand, $3.50): Known as Siam until 1949, Thailand lies deep in Southeast Asia, a strange land with a vivacious, versatile people. Busch, who has lived there, presents a colorful picture of the country, its people and their way of life, thereby making a splendid contribution to the bookshelf of Asian history. Armchair travelers will like it.

"ALASKA, U.S.A." by Herb and Miriam Hilscher (Little, Brown, $4.50): A source book on every aspect of Alaskan life, answering the basic questions being asked in the Lower 48 about the 49th state.

"DID ANYONE BRING AN OPENER" by Jonathan Winters and Philip Cammarata (Harper, $1.50): Scenes from silent movies with hilarious captions.

"KING OF CRIME" by Dom Frasca (Crown, $3.95): The story of Vito Genovese, supreme ruler of the Mafia.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the origin of EUBANK and EUBANKS — R. E., Anaheim; Mrs. L. D., Paramount.

R. E., L. D.: EUBANK and EUBANKS commemorate the famous English yew-trees. These beautiful evergreens were formerly prized for making bows and arrows. The original form of the names was Yew-Bank for "River-bank lined with yew trees." George Ewbank, an ancestor, lived in Lancashire, England, in 1636. The family coat-of-arms has three interlaced gold chevrons under three black balls on a gold band that crosses the top of the black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please print the meaning of LOWE — Z. L., H. A., J. L., Long Beach.

LOWE determines the family home location in medieval England, "At the Lowe," translated as "At the Hill." "Lowe" was a north English word corresponding to the central and south British words "Hough," "Howe" and "Hill." Among the forbears was Ralph de la Lowe of Shropshire in the late 1200s. The Lowe shield from Cheshire has a trippant (prancing) silver deer on a blue shield. Thomas Lowe was Mayor of the town of Macclesfield, Cheshire, in 1448.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform on HARDY — H. H., A. H., L. B., Long Beach.

The given-name Hardi, meant "Brave." The 12th century English HARDY ancestor was so designated because of his bravery in battle. The first recorded Hardy was a page to the master of the hunt for Bishop Swinfield in 1289. His progeny achieved a striking coat-of-arms, three gold shells between three black dragon heads on a chevron across a black shield. A descendant, Thomas Hardy, was among the first Massachusetts settlers in the 1600s. Other Hardys were early settlers of Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia in the 1700s. Modern members of the lineage include Thomas Hardy, celebrated English writer who died in 1928.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the analysis of HOSKIN and HOSKINS—M. H., D. H., A. H., Long Beach.

During the reign of King Henry II of England, 1154-1189, Flemish-Belgian tapestry weavers were imported to Britain. These artisans introduced the Flemish name suffixes "-ken" and "-kin" meaning "little." The Saxon-English given name Hosa, meaning "One of the multitude," coupled with "-ken," produced Hosken and later Hoskin and Hoskins (Son of Hosken). Family ancestors surnamed Hosken were extensive land holders in Cornwall for centuries. Their beautiful coat-of-arms has a gold chevron on which are three silver rosettes between three silver lions. These emblems are on a shield tinted red on the left half, blue on the right.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

Something Old

sunny section of the yard is ideal for this.

THE GLASS can begin to change in three weeks' time. Three months, however, is the average time. If the piece has not colored in an exposure time of up to 14 months, it never will.

Interest is added to the hobby by selecting cheap pieces and perhaps adding a family heirloom or two. Price does not denote which may end up with the most exquisite coloring.

Sand is the chief ingredient of glass, especially that rich in quartz. To this can be added soda and lime, potash and lime or lead or borax. The character of the glass depends partly on the manner and degree of heating and method and rate of cooling.

Modern manufacturers have perfected the process so that a uniformly clear crystal results and remains so throughout its period of usage.

THE LEGEND of the discovery of glass has always provided an intriguing subject for debate. Perhaps the most famous is the one recorded by Pliny.

Long before Pliny's time, runs the tale, some Phoenician merchants camped on the sandy shore of a tidal river in Syria. Lacking stones with which to support their cooking pots, they substituted blocks of soda taken from their cargo. When the campfire was at its hottest, the men were amazed by the sight of a strange liquid which flowed in a stream from under the fire. And that is the origin of glass, says an historian of ancient times.

If a person lacks the patience for this new hobby there is a short cut. Workers in physics laboratories have noticed that some glassware near radiation experiments will take on color in as little as 30 minutes.

But for most glassware hobbyists the slow mellowing of the sun will bring more satisfaction and new pieces can be added from time to time to allow one to enjoy every phase of the natural metamorphosis.

'Cart Fishermen'

Dana Point and its cove have had an historic background, including the day of the "cart fishermen." Above is old pier.

By Harry R. Peterson

IF YOU had been on the Dana Cove beach, under the Dana Point cliffs an early morning in 1918, you would have seen the "cart fishermen."

High above the high tide mark stood skiffs and dories, protected from the Pacific swells by the baylet now called Dana Cove Park—and then known as El Embarcadero.

A track climbed the easiest slope of the precipice. And up the track moved a funicular cart—similar to those at Angel's Flight in Los Angeles, Mount Wilson and the Catskills in New York.

THE CART WAS attached to a cable. One-horse power. The horse pulled the cart northward toward present Highway 101.

Since there was no road to the rim, the "cart fishermen" used this method to get their fish to market.

They were commercial fishermen, who caught halibut, many barracuda, bass, and in the winter, lobsters, in the ocean region seen by

POBAR, WHO FIRST camped on the cove beach in 1913, came to Dana Point in 1938. He is kind to the many dogs who come with picnickers and anglers to the park, and feeds Cove Kitty, the pier cat, also a cliff-climber. She has her kittens

30 feet up the side in a sheltered place. He scrambles up there and feeds them every morning until they are grown. Also he keeps the parking area and pier spic and span—as clean as when the fill, road graveled parking area and pier were completed by the Orange County Harbor District in 1958.

the sailor—author Richard Henry Dana Jr., in 1835, when he visited the spot to trade for hides with Mission San Juan Capistrano.

There were Pete Peterson, Charles Berger, Bert Mailer, Joe Scranto, Lew Jenson, Rattlesnake Bill—and Arthur F. Pobar. Most have long since left the little cove, or passed away. But Art remains as custodian of the Park and the last of the "cart fishermen."

"THERE WAS PLENTY of fish beyond San Juan Point, out by the kelp beds," he says. "Except for the cove, there was no landing place short of Newport Harbor. We didn't have motor boats—only dories and skiffs. How to get those heavy loads of fish up that precipice—that was the question."

"Somebody—probably Rattlesnake Bill—he was the wildest of the fish crew, but had brains—suggested hauling the catch up in a cart with a rope and cable.

"We all climbed up the cliff where the observatory stands now, and where Woodruff and the subdivision people made a path and steps later. We sank a heavy iron post in cement on the brink and made a special harness for the horse. We used a big pulley.

"Then we loaded her up with barriers and halibut, gave the horse a lick on the flank, and he started north toward the road. Later we got another horse, when the fishing was good and the cart heavy. Sometimes he had to pull till he got almost as far as where Highway 101 is now. We got

By Caroline Coleman

GIRLS and sweaters go together like trimmed roses in a garden — they look nice by themselves, but put them together and the combination is a winner.

It wasn't always so. A casual pullover was strictly for the male more than a generation ago . . . something he'd wear for athletics or cleaning his Model A.

Then came the 20's — and lots of changes. The boop-a-doup girl now had relaxed airs to assume. She bobbed her hair . . . went about unescorted. Among other ways of showing her new-found independence, she donned a sweater for the first time.

But the wolf's whistle (or sheik's, to be more accurate) was still held in check. Our flapper cutie pranced about on the tennis courts with her new casual outfit, but glamour and sweaters were as far apart as prohibitionists and an evening cocktail.

It took the imagination of a Hollywood press agent —

Lana Turner touched off the sweater girl trend in the late 1930s, early in career.

Starlet Linda Cristal is well qualified to fill a sweater, carry on Turner tradition.

and the gracious lines of Lana Turner — to bring about a happy change.

LANA WAS a newcomer to the screen, and enjoyed a big build-up. "A new Harlow," some exclaimed. Others decided that she was, indeed, something quite unique by herself.

The big difference? Why, a sweater, of course. Miss Turner became America's first "sweater girl," and millions of jealous young women followed suit.

The change was as welcome to the girl of the late 30's as it was to her happy-eyed male. Now she could go to that picnic . . . the movie date . . . the soda parlor, in an outfit that not only displayed her figure pleasantly and discreetly, but was comfortable as well.

But the age of levity was short-lived. World War II broke out and America's eligible males were donning khaki and navy blue and were being sent to remote areas of the world.

Girls back home did their "bit" too; sent V-mail missives to soldier boy friends regularly. And the young man in the trench would — in moments of loneliness — reach into his wallet for his favorite snapshot of the girl he left behind.

His favorite pose? You guessed it — his lady fair in a sweater.

SINCE THE WAR, our

sweater girl has become increasingly popular. The casual pullover now lies folded among an elaborate sweater wardrobe that includes cardigans . . . shirt styles worn buttoned or opened . . . evening sleeveless models with host of others.

Perhaps the biggest change in sweater styles since Lana walked across the screen came between 1954 and 1956. That's when astute fashion designers thought a young girl's fancy for her sweater might stretch into the warmer months.

And how right they were! In fact, during that two-year period, sweater sales increased by two million — from April through August. One consumer survey showed that gals preferred to wear sweaters during spring and summer.

Now It's Space Law!

Drawing by H. PARKER MARKLE

By Roberta Nichols

A PIECE of bric-a-brac bearing the legend "made in the U.S.S.R. by Merry Muscovites" falls through your patio roof, frightens guests, and imbeds itself among the petunias. Do you sue Khrushchev or turn a claim in to your insurance company? Ridiculous as it sounds, it is a problem that you may face sooner than you think. Because of this, Space Law has come into being.

In the short time since Russia surprised the world with the first Sputnik, the International Law Assn., American Bar Assn. and others have been worrying over the many aspects of Space Law. Universities have established Space Law departments within their law schools. Among these are the University of Oklahoma, University of Virginia, and Georgetown University.

What are some of the problems with which the young space-attorney of tomorrow may be concerned? One is a definition of "outer space," acceptable to all nations. Does outer space begin at an altitude of 200 miles or 1500? Once it is established, we must find ways to police space to see that missiles with nuclear warheads are being employed at proper altitudes.

AND HOW ABOUT controlling satellite movements? Can we set up an international system for the filing of flights and a warning system? This would seem necessary in the near future. According to Dr. John P. Hayes, director of the Vanguard project, it will become increasingly difficult to determine which is a missile, a meteor, or a satellite coming at you, and this uncertainty could cause the war switch to be thrown.

The successful Russian moon shot has already posed the question of ownership. In turn comes the problem of occupation and exploitation of extraterrestrial resources. Then there is immigration and customs control to consider. Will the same laws that apply to the earth-bound individual apply to the interplanetary traveler?

THERE WILL be a need for laws regarding insurance and indemnification for the space traveler. And what about the possibility of relations with intelligent life encountered in our travels to other planets? Do we merely step off the space ship and say, "Take me to your president" or do we get out the colored glass beads and dicker for clear title to the entire sharp-Cheddar side of the moon? And then just in case a little three-legged creature with an engaging smile sells us a Lunar version of the Brooklyn bridge first, (taking all the glass beads, too)—well, who do we go screaming to? The Better Business Bureau?

All this may sound like the thinnest science fiction, but the government doesn't think so. This and much more is seriously treated in House Document 89, Survey of Space Law, a staff report of the Select Committee on Astronautics and Space Exploration, published by the United States Government Printing Office. And while it doesn't specifically mention that little three-legged creature with the engaging smile, you'd better watch out. Unless you know your Space Law, you may not have any leg to stand on.

Bruce Roberts explains the workings of his nylon skyhook after demonstration jump for students at Long Beach State College.

By Herb Shannon

Independent Press-Telegram
Aviation Editor

Bruce Roberts wants to make it clear that he is not addicted to parachute jumping.

"It's not the only thing I like to do," the 24-year-old veteran chutist maintains. "I also like hunting, fishing and other sports. I'm not the devout kind of guy who just has to blast out of a plane every weekend."

But for a guy who can take it or leave it alone, Roberts spends a lot of time falling out of the sky attached to a big nylon umbrella.

It may not be every weekend, but just about every other one he leaves home at 9917 Cedar Ave., Bellflower, to participate in chute-jumping contests and demonstrations at Elsinore airstrip with some 20 other members of a skydiving team.

THE TEAM is composed entirely of members of an Army Reserve unit at Fort MacArthur. While it is not an official military group, it has Army recognition as the Reserve special Forces 314th and 315th Skydiving Team.

In addition to maintaining condition for military purposes, the reservists also train with the objective of competing when and if chute jumping is established as an Olympic sport. Events are scheduled at Elsinore with this in mind.

Included in the contest are target jumping, in which the chutist attempts to land inside a 50-yard circle marked on the ground, delayed release jumps and free fall acrobatics.

BATON PASSING is the hardest stunt, according to Roberts. This is a kind of combination acrobatic and precision free fall in which two men jump simultaneously, then pass a baton back and forth while performing loops and spins on the way down.

"We don't use cloth wings

WINGS OVER THE SOUTHLAND

The Man With a Skyhook

or fins or any of that batman stuff," explains Roberts. "It's all done with the arms and legs spreadeagled for balance and control."

"In the acrobatic contests, you have to tell the judges beforehand what kind of maneuvers you are going to do. Then you get points for how closely you follow the script."

In all of these events, performed at 125 miles an hour or more straight down, the contestants wear two chutes for safety. However, Roberts prefers to use a partially-opened chute rather than rely on his reserve skyhook.

"LAST AUGUST I ripped a hole in my static chute big enough to fly a Cessna through," he recalls. "But I rode it down all right. I'm a little leary of pulling the reserve chute because it sometimes tangles with the other one. When that happens, that's all she wrote."

So far unmarried, Roberts works part time in laundry service sales to support his aeronautical studies. He recently completed pilot training at Harry Ross Flying School, Sunset Beach Airport, and has sights set on a career in the air freight business.

"Jumping is a lot of fun," he admits. "But as a profession it really doesn't offer much of a future."

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

A California Port With a Past

By Walter Finch

EVERY YEAR thousands of motorists, who elect to take the world famed Redwood Empire Highway route, pass through a little town that many do not know is the oldest city settled by white men on the Northern California coast. Once a flourishing trading post and port of entry, it is now known chiefly for its excellent fishing grounds and vacation possibilities.

The highway sign now marking the spot reads only—"Trinidad, population 280."

Almost two centuries ago, the logs of the sailing ships Sonora and Santiago captained by explorers Bruno Hecata and Juan Francisco de la Bodega, records landing July 14, 1775, the day of Holy Trinity, in a "fine bay, with much fish, rimmed with gray rocks softened by thickets of ferns, iris and wild roses."

Trinidad Head as seen from Hwy. 101. Terrain is much same as when visited by explorers Hecata and Bodega.

the citizenry organized and soon Trinidad became the county seat of what was then Klamath County, now no longer in existence.

THE SEAPORT supplied goods to all the Trinity and Klamath River area. Foodstuffs, machinery and clothing were unloaded from the ships to be distributed to the settlers in town and those who came in from the back country to shop.

California Sea Products Company established a whaling station at Trinidad and erected huge vats for rendering whale oil to increase prosperity.

This bustling situation continued for several years and then something no one had foreseen occurred.

The gold gave out. Trinidad became another ghost town to be rebuilt years later with a few modern stores and homes that are there today.

Although glory faded, some things remain much the same in the old town. There is still a "fine bay with much fish"—said by many to be the finest salmon fishing location on the entire west coast.

Schedule Helps

Tulsa and Wichita will benefit from new Continental Airline schedules from Los Angeles to Denver.

Continental's Golden Jet 707 flights to Denver from Los Angeles now leaves at 1 p. m. and arrives in Denver for connections with a DC68 flight arriving in Wichita at 7:56 p. m. and Tulsa at 9:05 p. m., all local times.

THE GOLD RUSH of 1849 wrought its changes in the San Francisco area when word was received there in May 1850 that nuggets were being plucked from the sand and stones near the mouth of the Klamath River and Yreka Flats farther north.

Overnight the exultant cry of "Eureka" had again rekindled gold fever and miners crammed every available ship sailing from the Bay City.

Trinidad, the only natural harbor north of San Francisco, was the logical choice for headquarters.

Population soon increased from a handful to more than 3,000 as drifters, adventurers and families arrived by ship, the only way to reach the locale.

Riding With the Santa Parade

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

TAKE OFF in almost any direction in the next week or two and you are likely to run into a Christmas parade; in December, special lighting effects in keeping with the Yuletide season.

A case in point, and an event which the kids simply love is the Mother Goose parade at 2 p.m. today at El Cajon, below San Diego. This one, gaining fame with each succeeding year, is a procession of storybook floats expected to be viewed by a third of a million people.

Hollywood's Santa Claus Lane parade, opening Hollywood Blvd. as Santa Claus Lane for the 27th year, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. There will be movie stars and television and radio personalities galore on the floats. Bands and horsemen will tag along, too, and while the parade is in progress thousands of lights flash on, illuminating the huge metal Yule trees lining the boulevard.

Following on the heels of Long Beach's All-Western Band Review — which will come off next Saturday—will be the All-Southland Band Revue Dec. 4 at Huntington Beach, in which 2,500 musicians will take part at 7:30 p.m.

On the same date, Santa arrives at El Centro in a stagecoach once used by Billy the Kid, leading a colorful parade. Huntington Park has its four-mile night parade Dec. 5 as 50 giant searchlights probe the stars. Van Nuys will get on the Christmas bandwagon with its Bethlehem Star Parade the same night. Corona's Pageant of Faith parade, with floats depicting the birth of Christ, and with combined church choirs giving a carol concert on the city hall steps, is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 11.

These are only a few such events. Practically every city plans something pretty-pretty.

And don't forget Altadena's Mile of Christmas Trees, Dec. 24-31; Palm Desert's Christmas Card Lane (local artists paint huge cards and mount them on poles along the main highway) Dec. 18-31; and Ontario's three miles of Christmas trees along famous Euclid Ave.

GO WESTERN? A git-up-and-git tourist attraction in Arizona is Tucson's annual Old Tucson Daze blowout Nov. 28-29 at Old Tucson Village. Famous gunfights will be re-enacted. There will be stagecoach holdups, Indian dances, medicine men selling cure-alls, melodrama and cancan girls, cowboys and real western music for square dancing. Smooth-faced gents (the natives, at least) will buy a shave permit for a buck or go to the hoosegow!

SOUTHLAND railroad and camera fans will make the ghost town of Calico their objective next Sunday, leaving Los Angeles Union Station via special Santa Fe streamliner equipment at 8:30 a.m., Pasadena at 9. Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be served by Fred Harvey. Return to Los Angeles will be at 7:55 p.m. Reservations may be made at 408 S. Spring St., Los Angeles (MA 8-1181).

FIVE THOUSAND persons from all 50 states will be on hand when the American Contract Bridge League opens its Fall National Tournament next Sunday at Hotel del Coronado, San Diego. Among top players who will sit in at the more than 400 tables through Dec. 6 will be Charles H. Goren and Oswald Jacoby.

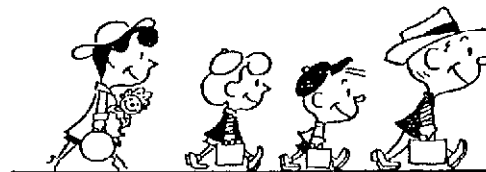

WHOEVER HEARD of organ music 20,000 feet up? It's so! Northwest Orient Airlines is trying such an experiment for passenger reaction on its Ship 709, a Boeing Strato-cruiser which flies between Minneapolis-St. Paul, Chicago and New York. A professional organist is at the keyboard from takeoff to landing and the music is channeled through the public address system loudspeakers.

MEXICO CITY (1,580 statute miles) will be a hop and a skip of just 3 hours and 15 minutes from Los Angeles when Mexicana Airlines (CMA) puts the first two of three new DeHavilland Comet 4C airliners (14 million bucks!) in operation next month. . . . Sayonara! Northwest Orient Airlines has published a "How to Say It in Japanese" folder for guidance of its Orient-bound passengers. Address them at 1885 University Ave., St. Paul 1, Minn. . . . Continental Airline's proposed fare cut on Golden Jet Boeing 707 non-stop flights between Los Angeles and Kansas City ($65.50 in the coach section) is scheduled to go into effect Wednesday. Flights leave Los Angeles at 1:25 a.m., arrive in KayCee at 6:15 a.m. (CST).

Good traveling!

Still perfect after 1,000 years, a round tower dominates the countryside at Cashel in Tipperary. Built mostly of sandstone, the tower is 17 feet in diameter at the base and is 92 feet in height to the tip of its conical cap.

GOING PLACES

by the Sloanes

SAN JUAN, P. R. — Something magical seems to happen in the Caribbean east of the Gulf Stream.

From here east more benign breezes, as well as the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack, the Tricolor and whatever it is they call the Dutch standard, fly exclusively. They have bred the truest fulfillments of the tropical paradise concept that have sent ever-more astounding numbers of visitors flocking to the West Indies.

Of all these Horatio Alger stories of the tourist business none is more impressive than Puerto Rico's. It even has individual applications, a process that can best be described as "Instant Wealth," or, in Spanish, the Papaleta and the Cuadro.

AS IN ALL Latin countries, gambling is an all-consuming passion. A Puerto Rican at a ball game will happily accept odds on whether a runner rounding first will make it to second. The inevitable government lottery and the cock-fights still draw their share of money from 320 legal bookmakers. But where else except a racing meet at Hipodromo El Comandante can you see, as we did, a man win $38,336.05 for a 50-cent bet?

The Cuadro and Papaleta are two versions of a six-race pool, a kind of super-duper daily double popular throughout Latin America. Each Wednesday, Friday, Sunday and holiday, more than 100,000 parlays are swallowed up here by the largest concentration of Univac machines under one roof in the world—an American twist symbolic of this most enigmatic culture in Latin America.

STATISTICS ABOUT Puerto Rico's tourist boom tumble all over our noses.

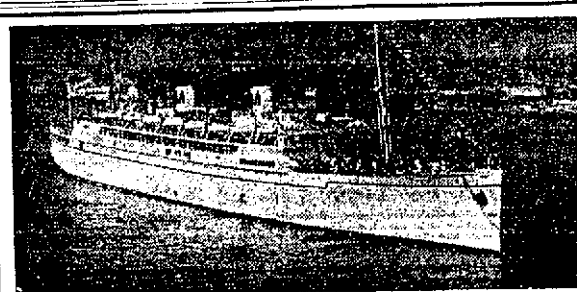

Item: Ten years ago Puerto Rico had the lowest standard of living in Latin America. Today it has the highest.

Item: San Juan's Isla Verde Airport, possibly the most beautiful in North America with its ponds, birdcages and setting, was built to handle 1,000,000 passengers a year by 1970. It is already handling more than that and the estimate has been upped to 2,500,000 by as early as 1965.

Shirley and Bob Sloane* will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif. All will be answered as soon as possible but those sending stamped, self-addressed envelopes will get preference.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

"Can we get hotel rooms in New Orleans without much trouble during the winter months?"

THAT TOWN always seems to be crowded. You should have confirmed reservations in advance. The Monteleone in the French Quarter is good.

And if you are trying that great New Orleans food, the local people seem to prefer Gallatoire's. Not to say the others are not good. This just seem to be a local preference.

And don't miss the New Orleans coffee with those fluffy doughnuts down at the old French market. Wonderful for breakfast beside the river.

"Can we fly by jet from the West Coast to Europe this winter?"

I don't know of any jet service this year on the polar route, if that's what you mean. You can go jet across the country and pick up TWA or Pan American jets in New York.

Air France will have jet service from Los Angeles over the pole by next spring. They will use Boeing 707s and the flying time from Los Angeles to Orly outside Paris will be 9 hours and 45 minutes.

"... where to get away from everything for four weeks?"

I just got a report from friends on a new one: Islas de las Mujeres off Yucatan, available by air from Merida, Mexico. They say the accommodations are new, five solid miles of golden Caribbean beach and nobody on it.

"What tipping on the SS Constitution, New York to Naples. Cabin class, two persons, fare $325 each?"

FOR BOTH of you: $10 to the room steward; $10 to the table steward; $3 to the deck steward. If you use the wine steward, $3. Nothing for the head waiter or chief steward (unless you have them arrange a big party).

Parties in your room, 50 cents per person for the waiter.

Bellboys get 25 to 50 cents per service.

"We are flying Icelandic Air Lines as they seem to be cheaper. True?"

True. Older type and slower planes usually but a good record.

When the Turkey Plays an Encore

Here goes to use up the leftover turkey. Try this recipe: Hot Turkey-Topped Acorn Squash with leftover turkey stuffing and giblet gravy. It's really a good "encore."

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

AFTER THE BIG meal—and after you've wished on the long end of the turkey wishbone—"turkey encores" will be the focal point of many meals.

And whether turkey leftovers bring squeals of anticipation or sighs of resignation depends upon the homemaker's ingenuity. Certainly turkey leftovers don't have to mean menu-planning blues. In fact, some of these dishes are so tasty you may wish to plan an excess of roast turkey for meals after the "big" one.

The recent appearance of canned giblet gravy on the grocer's shelf has eliminated the job of gravy making and permits you to have just the amount you wish. How easy it is now to have perfect giblet gravy with the turkey and fresh gravy to serve with encore meals.

After the turkey feast, remove the stuffing from the turkey and store each separately. Calling upon a recipe such as this one for Hot Turkey Topped Acorn Squash, you'll have no difficulty coaxing the family to the table to enjoy turkey leftovers.

Hot Turkey Topped Acorn Squash

- 4 to 8 thin slices of roast turkey
- 2 medium acorn squash
- Salt
- 2 cups left over turkey stuffing
- 1 can (2 cups) giblet gravy

Cut squash in half lengthwise; remove seeds. Bake, cut side down, in shallow baking pan in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 35 minutes, or until almost tender. Turn squash cut side up and sprinkle with salt. Fill cavity with stuffing. Place turkey slices over the stuffing. Spoon gravy over the top of the turkey. Cover the baking pan with aluminum foil. Continue baking about 20 minutes, or until squash is tender. Serve hot. Yield: 4 servings.

Turkey and Carrot-Cabbage Salad

- 2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 1 1/2 cups shredded cabbage
- 1 1/2 cups grated carrots
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup salad dressing
- Lettuce

Mix raisins with all ingredients except lettuce. Chill. Serve on lettuce.

If raisins are not soft, pour boiling water over them. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain and chill. Yield: 4 servings.

Ham Salad in Tomato Cups

- 2 cups diced ham
- 1 cup finely diced celery
- French dressing
- 2 teaspoons sweet pickle relish
- 2 hard cooked eggs
- Mayonnaise
- Salt and pepper
- 4 large ripe tomatoes

Combine ham and celery and over them pour enough French dressing to moisten. Let stand in refrigerator 1/2 hour; stir occasionally. Add relish, coarsely chopped eggs and enough mayonnaise to moisten slightly. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Peel tomatoes and cut almost through into 6 sections so that they open like flowers. Pile ham salad into center of each tomato and serve with garnish of parsley or watercress.

Serve with Buttered Rice, Asparagus with Hollandaise Sauce, Spiced Peaches, Hot Biscuit, Mince Meat Tarts.

HASH-WICHES:

These are open-face sandwiches. Cook 1/2 cup minced onion in 2 tablespoons butter until tender; blend in 1 can undiluted cream of celery soup with 1/4 cup milk. Add 2 cups diced turkey (white and dark meat), and season to taste with black pepper. Heat to serving temperature and portion onto hot buttered toast, broiled English muffin halves, hot biscuits or cornbread.

TURKEY DIVAN:

Nutritious broccoli jumps in the soup with turkey and cheese for this mealtime treat. Cook one package of frozen broccoli according to package instructions. Arrange cooked and drained broccoli in shallow baking dish. Top with four generous cooked turkey slices. Blend together 1 can undiluted cream of mushroom soup and 1/2 cup milk. Pour mixture over turkey. Sprinkle generously with grated, sharp cheddar cheese. Bake in very hot oven (450°F.) about 10 to 15 minutes or until well heated and nicely browned.

Photography Moves Toward New Code

At a recent New Jersey photog convention session, Adolf Fassbender, in Gay 90s dress, debates composition, cropping.

By The Shutterbug

IN A RARE tribute to one of the world's great photographers, the recent convention of the Professional Photographers Assn. of New Jersey was dedicated to Adolf Fassbender, dean of American pictorialists. "Papa" Fassbender, who recently celebrated his 75th birthday is still active and maintains his international reputation while teaching his photographic methods.

The PPA of New Jersey has actually taken steps by legislative means to elevate the standards of their profession instead of just talking about it.

THE ACTION was prompted by newspaper reports in recent years of fraudulent and unethical photographic schemes by "shoot and run" operators. It reached such proportions that Better Business Bureaus, chambers of commerce and police departments of New Jersey were flooded with complaints.

Through the efforts of the PPA ethics and legislative committee, a bill was introduced in the New Jersey Senate this year calling for the creation of a State Board of Photography and regulations for use of the title, "Certified Professional Photographer."

Len Kartzman, chairman of the ethics committee, explained the purpose of the bill and expressed the hope that it would be passed this year.

"It is not a restrictive measure at all," he stressed. "Anyone can still practice photography as a profession without applying for a CPP certificate. If some one wants to hire a photographer with or without the certification, that's his privilege.

"But we feel it's like a doctor with an MD or an accountant with a CPA, the CPP insignia would designate a professional photographer who has been found competent in his work and of good character.

AMONG THE qualifications set forth for an applicant are two years' fulltime professional experience in the field of photography or graduation from a recognized school of photography plus one year's professional experience and the endorsement of three photographers, each of whom has had five years of professional experience.

The bill would exempt newspaper photographers and all engaged in news photography from any provisions of the statute.

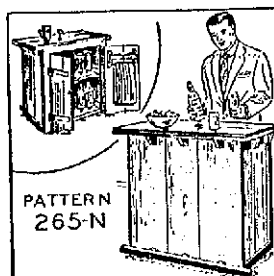

Bowling

And all this has happened because an army of 6 million women have taken on or, as a few soured males have been heard to say, "taken over" the sport. The ladies invasion of what was once solely a male domain has produced some interesting reactions. Some were annoyed by the competition, but most have welcomed the women to the lanes.

As one old-timer put it, "I bowled for 28 years before I ever saw a woman bowling. The way I see it now, it used to get pretty dull just looking at the pins."

dead husband on her face and head until the next celebration which she might hostess.

On the last night of feasting and dancing, the Indians formed a circle around the fire, chanting, swaying, and clanking their clapsticks over four circles of mush burning on the hot stones around the fire. They danced to the fire that heated the stones; to the stones that cooked the mush; to the baskets that held the mush.

As the mush burned, it was airborne north, east, south and west, to feed the spirits of the dead and in thanks to the Old Coyote Man who furnished the acorns as well as in prayer for future abundance.

Gazanias Are Sun Prophets

By Joe Littlefield

WHITE flowers bordering a patio show up at night, brightly colored blossoms attract humming birds, and fragrant blooms invite bees. But did you ever notice how hybrid gazanias can tell if the sun will be coming out for the day?

The single, daisy-like flowers of white, rose, pink, yellow, burnt orange or straw; berry blond gazanias seem to know if the day will be sunny. Early in the morning the flowers are tightly closed. If weather continues cloudy and damp, blossoms won't open. Should the weather become sunny, the flowers open even before the sun is out, and stay open throughout the day. Like chickens that go to bed at sundown, so do the hybrid gazania blossoms close for the night.

Hybrid gazanias are also one of few edging or ground cover plants that actually look lean and bloom profusely for you if you are hard hearted with them and don't water them as often as other plants. If kept moist they grow fat and lazy and don't bloom much. By watering them only when they get real thirsty, they bloom almost all year 'round.

THEY'RE NOT TOO particular where you plant them. Planted close enough, say ten inches or so apart, they will form a ground cover to about a foot high.

They thrive best when the weather is hot. They add lots of color, edging a driveway, walk, flower bed, or rose bed, a narrow space between a walk and a wall, an "orphan area" where nothing much grows, or a parking strip.

Next time you're visiting your local nursery, take a look at hybrid gazanias, and you, too, will like their blossoms. Pests seemingly don't bother these plants much, but you do have to watch the snails and slugs.

THIS IS a splendid time to seed a new lawn or re-seed an old one. Weeds do not compete with the grass plants now as effectively as they do in spring. Besides, seasonal rains will prove beneficial.

Gazanias are little weather forecasters, opening only on days when the sun will shine. Use them for cover, borders.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week. . . . Watering during the winter requires a technique different from that practiced during the summer. Not only are temperatures cooler now but the days are shorter. Much less moisture is lost through evaporation so you can water at less frequent intervals. But don't let the soil dry out completely.

With the approach of the holiday season, this is a good time to dress up your home. Garden supply stores have a wide range of plants such as palms, sansevierias, azaleas and many varieties of green foliage specimens for dish gardens and that type of gardening.

Top heavy shrubs should be pruned back now to diminish possibility of toppling over in windy or rainy weather. Heavy rains reduce the anchorage of plants and a slight wind after rains can cause a lot of damage.

The shade cast by trees is often so heavy that small plants will not grow under it. This condition can be corrected by thinning out the branches of the tree and pruning the lower limbs.

Pansies may be started now from seed. The flowers are at their best during our fall, winter and spring weather. Pansies prefer a cool and moist growing environment. The best strain for this region is the Swiss pansy; the blooms are large as are the plants; the color range is quite complete with yellows, blue, reds, whites and cream tones.

During the fall and winter months . . . as the temperature drops . . . pelargoniums tend to go dormant. This is the time when an excess of moisture may cause fungus to develop. So water very sparingly during the next few months.

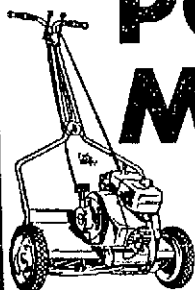

By Dorothy Jonson

Being a Californian, and California being considered the home of the redwood trees, I naturally am partial to redwood tubs to use as containers for many ornamental plants and shrubs. I think they are decorative and adapt themselves to most kinds of outdoor surroundings.

If you are using redwood tubs, I would suggest that you watch your watering program carefully, because when plants are in ordinary pots, the heat draws the moisture out of the pots, but that is not the case with redwood tubs. Therefore, plants growing in them require less water. In fact, it is very easy to over-water plants in redwood containers.

I always recommend that a little broken crockery be put over the holes in the bottom of any pots for drainage; but I go one step further and advocate that a little pea gravel be used in addition to broken pottery at the bottom of the redwood tubs to assure a still better drainage.

Pruning Pays Off With Beauty

Proper pruning helps produce better blooms, such as these 1959 All America roses, called Ivory Fashion by developers.

By Bob Gilmore

PRUNING, unfortunately, has come to be a controversial subject . . . even the experts disagree. However, there is no mystery concerning the procedure, the rules are simple. It is just a matter of understanding why you should prune in the first place.

Topically, pruning can be divided into two parts: One, the continuous cutting back that goes on all season to remove dead material, old flower heads and to confine the plant to desired space and shape; two, winter pruning to clean up shrubs and ready them for the next growing season.

Pruning consists of removing those parts of a plant that are considered superfluous. The removal of a dead or diseased section will improve both the health and looks of a plant. This type of pruning minimizes the danger of the infection spreading to other subjects close by.

Pruning is also related to photosynthesis, a process which consists of the combination of water with carbon dioxide to form carbohydrates. This process can be carried on only in the presence of sunlight. Should growth become exceedingly thick then sunlight cannot penetrate into the mid sections of the plant. Thinning out dense growth thus aids in the process of photosynthesis.

PRUNING ENCOURAGES new shoots and allows the gardener the opportunity of directing the plant's growth. This is known as shaping a plant. You can train a plant to grow east, west, north or south. You can cause it to shoot up in a spindly manner or top it back for bushier stature.

Ornamentals that are pruned heavily flower more abundantly the following season. Subjects that are cut back only lightly . . . in comparison . . . produce fewer blooms. This is the reason why weak-blooded roses usually require heavy pruning while aggressive growers require less aggressive treatment from the pruning shear.

Periodic removal of flowering heads is also a part of the pruning program. This technique will help keep floral production at a maximum. Allowing the flowers to go to seed taxes a plant's strength and utilizes energy that otherwise would be diverted into producing more blooms.

HEDGES SHOULD be trimmed at fairly regular intervals to maintain a clean and clipped appearance. When the growth loses its natural green coloring and starts to stiffen up a light pruning may be required. Whenever possible the natural shape of a plant should be maintained; this means light, rather than heavy thinning out.

When pruning hydrangeas remove all flowering stems. Stems that do not produce flowers should be left unpruned as they will bear blooms next season. The plumbago is an aggressive subject and may be pruned lightly during the year. Ligustrum stems should be cut off deep in the body of the plant. Hibiscus may be left alone for the first few years, then pruned at intervals of three times a year. Camellias are usually self-pruning and need just enough cutting to preserve a balanced shape.

WINTER PRUNING of roses is one of the major tasks of the rose gardener and is the subject of considerable mystery to many. The job actually is not difficult. The rose grower should study each plant a moment or two to see how he wants it to grow, then cut to about a scant quarter inch above each outside bud into which he wishes to direct plant strength and growth. Thick growth within the bush should be cut out to permit entry of sunlight and free passage of air. As noted above, weak-blooded roses may need heavy pruning.

In the Long Beach area, climate is such that most roses need only moderate trimming for shape and confinement; climbers should not be cut overly hard, merely removing old canes (2 years old or more) and controlling the newer growth. Tipping down climber canes slightly at the ends sometimes promotes bud growth farther back.

Sealing material should be applied to the cut ends of all shrubs after pruning to prevent excessive bleeding, drying out and to forestall invasion of insects and fungus. Sealant is available at nurseries.

Roses should not be pruned until after the coldest period of winter has sent them into a semi-dormant stage (they just don't go completely dormant in this climate).

A few minutes talk with your nurseryman on most any day but a busy weekend will give you enough information to take care of your pruning problems.

Not Too Tender

There was a time when cyclamen were considered too tender for the general nursery trade—strictly florist's items, we were told. During recent years, this "tender" little plant has proved its worth in winter gardens many times over.

Where heavy frost is common what protection is needed can usually be supplied by sinking pots of cyclamen in the ground under some protective covering—a tree, a wide cave or what have you. Growers should not have too much to worry about, though.

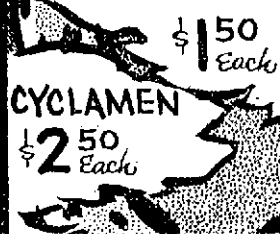

Always be sure that crown of plant is above soil surface so stem will not rot.

HOW TO Light a Dining Room Attractively

1. DINNER HAS A PARTY MOOD by candle glow, with supplementary lighting inside china cabinet, and at top of window. This makes sill a show-off spot for flowers, food, even a Christmas tree! Table, with leaves dropped, will fit into corner, holding lamps from bay window.

2. FOR A CHANGE, roll in the low table, regroup chairs, pull down the lamp. Cups sparkle but faces are in comfortable, flattering shadow.

3. KEROSENE lamps lend atmosphere. When modernized with a 7½-watt lamp, they give off same glow as an oil flame. But you'll need stronger lights nearby. The century-old globe shade is half opaline glass, half clear, can be reversed to throw light beams either up or down.

4. CEILING of bay window has recessed fixture for flood lamp. Fixture, about $7 (plus installation); lamp about $1.25. Change light angle by tilting blinds, dim by turning rheostat behind drapery.

5. INSIDE CHINA cabinet showcase bulbs flatter prized Chelsea tea set. Each 40-watt light has a metallic coating which serves as a reflector, throws light on china.

LEON GRIVEL
Real Sawdust? Sure

BY CRACKY, grandpa and grandpa are apt to bust a gusset the first time they step into the Gay 90s Cafe, 2508 Palm Dr., Signal Hill.

"Wal, I'll be danged," says grandpa eyeing the sawdust on the floor and scores of antique gimcracks on the walls. "Ain't seen anything like this since I left Omaha 40 years ago."

"Fancy that," says grandpa, admiring a 50-year-old pitcher-and-washbowl set. "Last time I saw a set that nice was at Aunt Penelope's wedding in 19 and 12."

Owner Leon Grivel has taken great pains to make the unusual decorations at his large restaurant authentically representative of America as it was at the turn of the century. The place's appeal, however, is definitely not restricted to the old folks. Children, absolutely fascinated by the nickelodeons, often ask: "Gee, daddy, what kind of jukeboxes are these?"

COUPLES YOUNG and old love to get up parties and join in the community singing of nostalgic tunes played on the upright piano by Jerry Praun. And absolutely no one can keep from smiling when Jerry cuts loose (every hour on the hour) with a serenade on the boisterous callopie.

The dinners at the Gay 90s are tasty and generous. They include chilled relishes, peanuts, French onion soup served family style, green salad, potatoes or spaghetti, hot rolls and coffee. Priced at from $1.65 up, the dinners include such entrees as New York cut steak, $2.50; fried chicken, $2.35; combination seafood plate (lobster and three other items), $2.50; deep fried shrimp, $1.85; top sirloin, $3.50; and lobster tail-dinner steak combination, $3.50.

Closed Mondays, the Gay 90s is open nightly from 5 p. m. on. It will be closed Thanksgiving.

A lesson I learned from life

A man should have a sideline

by EDWARD G. ROBINSON

WHEN I WAS a youngster I studied languages. At one time I was fluent in nine. Friends used to say, "Why waste your time with languages when you want so desperately to become an actor? How will they help you?"

I had no answer except that I liked speaking and reading many languages. So I kept studying.

In 1915—which will give you some idea of how long I've been around—I was working in summer stock trying to add to my experience as an actor. A chance came along for a part in a road company of Kismet, and I grabbed it.

I had been on the road for perhaps six weeks when World War I began to cast a pall of gloom over the theater everywhere. In Canada, where I was playing then, things were particularly bad. Our road company, originally scheduled for a 40-week run, closed in six weeks.

Back in New York without a job, I started the old hat-in-hand round of agents and producers. There was nothing. In desperation I finally took a job as a stooge in a vaudeville sketch. I was awful. Back to the agents I went. And again there were no jobs.

After eight or nine weeks of unemployment, I decided that acting was an insecure and demeaning profession. I began to think about making a living in a job that could provide me with a measure of dignity and respect. Because I had studied languages, I thought of teaching them.

Just about then I heard that a play called Under Fire was being cast on Broadway. There was a need for actors who could speak several European languages. I decided I would give show business one last chance before I left it. That afternoon I applied for a part.

I didn't get one part in the play. I got four. I played a Belgian, a Frenchman, a German army officer, and a London cockney. The play was a hit—and so was I.

From that time to this I've had more acting work than I could possibly handle. But had it not been for those nine languages I studied against the advice of well-meaning friends, I might today be a frustrated teacher instead of a fulfilled actor. All of which goes to prove that every man should have a sideline. You can never tell when it will help to get you on the main track.

On Parade

Suppose you met a Russian or a Frenchman or an Italian, and he asked point-blank: "Why does your country stall on discontinuing nuclear tests?" How would you answer?

When you've figured out your own reply, compare it with that given by Secretary of State Christian Herter on page 7. It's part of his article, Ten tough questions the world asks us, the first written for a national publication by Mr. Herter since he became Secretary of State.

In introducing these questions and his answers, Secretary Herter emphasizes that today every American should consider himself an ambassador of his country.

His trenchant article is particularly timely for two reasons. One is that President Eisenhower has proclaimed 1960 as "Visit U.S.A. Year," a blanket invitation to people all over the world to come and visit us. This may well bring about one million overseas tourists here for a first-hand look at America, and they are likely to spend one billion dollars in looking. More important, they will take back home a better understanding of our country.

The second reason is that today marks the beginning of "Know Your America Week," also endorsed by the President and sponsored by the All American Conference to Combat Communism.

Signed by Pastor David Paul Smith and four of his Sunday School officers, of Turlock, Calif., comes a letter that reads: "We hope you will publish more articles such as They learn to play on God's side (PARADE, Oct. 4). Our youth today needs to read about these young men who are living happy, clean lives."

A family breakfast and a nightly chat give the Secretary of State strength for his difficult job

WASHINGTON, D.C.

A QUIET, PLEASANT home life cushions Christian A. Herter, 54th U. S. Secretary of State, against the endless jolts of one of the world's most demanding jobs. He and his wife "Mac"—her real name is Mary Caroline—make an unusually distinguished couple. "Chris" Herter, 6'4", resembles Lincoln in a smoother, handsomer way. "Mac" is slim, 5'9", and lovely. The Herters met while she was still in school, and have been married 42 years.

They live without bustle on tree-lined P Street, in the historic Georgetown section here. The Herters bought the house when the Secretary first was elected to Congress in 1942. It is in a distinguished neighborhood. A few blocks away lives Dean Acheson, a predecessor as Secretary of State. Another neighbor is Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Summers, the Herters touch base in Massachusetts, either in an oceanside cottage at Manchester or a small farm near Millis. At Manchester they have an opportunity to catch up with their four busy children and 14 active grandchildren. The Herters are an extremely close family. Between visits, calls are made frequently from P Street to Christian Jr., a Boston lawyer who last year ran for state attorney general; Adele, wife of a Concord, Mass., pathologist; Frederic, a New York surgeon, and Miles, a Manchester economist and personnel expert.

At other times the Herters fly to Cheechacombahee Plantation, 50 miles south of Charleston, S.C. A working plantation with Hereford cattle and timber crops, it is owned by Mrs. Herter's brother, but the Secretary personally undertakes overall management. Though not as spry as he once was, the Secretary still delights in quail and duck shooting at the plantation and is considered a crack shot.

The pressure of his position, however, leaves the Secretary little time for relaxation these days. The Herters breakfast together (in their pastel dining room in winter, on an adjoining balcony in summer) at 7:30 a.m. so he can reach his desk by 8 a.m. They rarely meet again until 8 p.m. at the earliest, when they have a single cocktail together in a small, paneled study overlooking the garden.

"It's the best moment of the day," Mac Herter says of this interlude of conversation with her busy husband. Mostly the talk is like that of any husband and wife greeting each other at the end of the day. On free evenings they may play bridge. Unlike, for instance, the President, they have no regular circle of bridge-playing cronies. But both love the game and are known as skillful players.

More likely, the Secretary will have paperwork to do and will retire to his study. Half of Sunday is given over to homework. For relaxation he settles down with a whodunit. Like John Foster Dulles before him, Herter is an inveterate mystery-story fan and carries a stack of them wherever he goes.

Links to the Past

Their old Federal mansion—it was built about 1820—is a restful place, with red walls and a crescent stairway arching up from the brick sidewalk. Inside are gleaming pine floors and beautiful 18th Century furniture. Everywhere are pieces of the bright-banded white Lowestoft porcelain Mrs. Herter collects.

Mac Herter fits into this calm framework. She wears little makeup and her clothes are understated. As she talks with friends, she is likely to be busy with a flower-sprayed piece of needlepoint.

She insists she's "a poor housekeeper," but she carries off official, feminine entertaining with great flair. A recent success was a "hen" dinner in honor of Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev. As they left, the appreciative Russian ladies serenaded their hostess and her friends. The Americans couldn't remember a suitable tune, so they chorused For she's a jolly good fellow.

Mrs. Herter's day is spent exercising her dogs (see photo), taking French lessons (although both she and her husband speak excellent French), and attending many of Washington's official functions. Although the Secretary must be host at many affairs, these are held at Anderson House and are managed and paid for by the Government. The round of official entertaining, however, is a strain on the Secretary now that painful arthritis forces him to use half-crutches while walking and a specially built stool while standing in a reception line. "This winter," his wife says firmly, "we're trying to limit our dining out to twice a week and perhaps a luncheon on Sunday."

Like any wife, Mac Herter is ambitious for her husband. "I've always felt that Chris belonged in the State Department," she says. Born in Paris, Herter was an adviser to President Wilson at Versailles in 1919. During his Congressional years, he made foreign policy a specialty. He became Under Secretary in 1957, succeeded Secretary Dulles early this year.

For herself, however, Mrs. Herter liked it best when her husband was Governor of Massachusetts from 1953 to 1957. "A Governor's wife is part of a Governor's job," she says. "I'd never really done anything with Chris before. But during the two terms he was Governor I was with him more than ever before—or since." And the stimulating Herters are a pair who enjoy each other's company.

CHRISTIAN HERTER

U. S. SECRETARY OF STATE

Ten tough questions the world asks us

PARADE is proud to publish this article by Christian A. Herter, his first for a national publication since becoming U.S. Secretary of State. Its message is particularly important now that President Eisenhower has proclaimed this as "Know Your America Week" and 1960 as "Visit U.S.A. Year." —EDITOR'S NOTE.

WHAT DO YOU understand by those two rather forbidding words, "foreign policy"? To most Americans they represent a strange, mysterious world; the world of frock-coated diplomats, of diplomatic couriers, of night trains to Istanbul, of grave-faced statesmen pacing the corridors of chancelleries.

This is a distorted image of the conduct of foreign policy, which, in our open society, requires your active participation. To an ever greater degree, foreign policy is becoming dependent on you, the reader of this newspaper, the individual citizen. Foreign policy can only be effective if it represents your needs, mirrors your nature.

With more Americans traveling abroad (10,000* went to Russia alone last year) and more foreign visitors coming to our shores, it is imperative that every American should consider himself an ambassador of his country. As ambassadors it is incumbent upon us all to understand our country, be able to explain it to others, and, equally important, be able to appreciate the other person's viewpoint and why he thinks the way he does.

Let me recall an incident that happened when I was riding in a jeep across war-wrecked Yugoslavia 14 years ago. As a congressman I was a member of an American team checking the necessity for United Nations relief. The Yugoslav government assigned to our team the political correspondent of a Belgrade newspaper, a young woman who had fought night and day with Tito's partisans for several years.

As we drove across the rutted roads of the plains that stretch north and west of Belgrade, I learned something of her background. The daughter of a Montenegrin general, she had completed her formal education at the Sorbonne in Paris but had also done post-graduate work at Moscow University. Our talks rapidly turned into an argument about the American people and their ideals, which went on for several days without reaching an understanding.

This stern young woman continually said in essence: "How can I understand you Americans? What do you really care strongly about—your religion, your home, your government, your country?" I had never been challenged in this fashion.

I thought I knew what America stood for and what we were trying to accomplish not only in Yugoslavia but throughout the world. But when I tried to put into words the reasons for our beliefs and to portray the depth of our convictions, I found myself strangely inarticulate, with neither the words nor the emotion that would permit my ideas to penetrate the hard shell of emotional experience that surrounded her creed. Though I was sure that at least part of her obvious dislike for Americans was based on lack of first-hand information, I couldn't even persuade her to accept my offer to try to arrange for her to visit the U.S.

Many Americans must have found themselves in similar situations either while traveling abroad or talking to visitors in our own country. They must have encountered anti-Americanism that seemed harsh and unreasonable. They must have struggled to explain America, to combat false impressions—and shared my own sense of defeat during those days in Yugoslavia.

OFTEN THE TENDENCY must be to shrug off the experience with the thought that your government officials know all the answers. In all candor, may I suggest that they do not. American leadership in the world will be maintained only with your daily interest.

What are our American strengths and failings that you as an informal ambassador must understand when you travel abroad or greet strangers at home? Our main strength, of course, lies in our dedication to human dignity and freedom, our willingness to attack the failings of our society and do what we can to erase them. One of our weaknesses lies in having been preoccupied for too long with our own affairs, in learning less about the world at large and the minds of its peoples than we should have. Our greatest weakness, however, is taking for granted the tremendous benefits we enjoy.

We need to study foreign languages more than we do. Even a halting, clumsy attempt to speak the language of a country will win more friends than insisting upon talking English. Most Americans know a good deal about their own country, but their knowledge is intuitive. Since we all share the same basic beliefs, we rarely debate them. Consequently when we are called upon to do so, we are at a disadvantage for lack of practice. Students who have visited Moscow have had this experience. They were not trained for argument.

BUT WE MUST beware of boasting about our way of life and our achievements and keep a curb on our tempers. Many Americans found Mr. Khrushchev's boasting somewhat hard to take at times. Yet many Americans at home and abroad are guilty of the same fault. No one convinces the other man by becoming impatient, by meeting charge with countercharge. The soft, courteous "Yes, but . . ." answer does not mean becoming a door mat and often turns out to be far more persuasive.

We must watch our manners with our friends and opponents alike and never appear scornful of local custom, no matter how odd or archaic it may at first seem to us. Ordinary courtesy costs nothing, but in human values it brings great rewards. Above all, we must learn to listen to what the other man has to say and to find out exactly what his question means before trying to answer it. Remember that the stranger may know as little about us as we do about him, and what he asks may be based on a complete misconception.

Our task is to make the truth about America and its ideals and aspirations known in such a way that they cannot be misunderstood. While trying to end the cold war, we must nevertheless seek to keep the issues clear. We must not expect too much too soon. But recent events give cause for hope that peaceful change is possible. In this you, the citizen ambassador, have an important role to play.

LARRY FRIED

Mr. Herter's answers

1 The United States sincerely desires to see an end to these tests and stands ready to cease testing the moment our authorities are certain of proper safeguards and controls. It is on these safeguards and controls that we have not been able to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union. We ourselves suspended testing during the negotiations and have agreed to continue this suspension until January 1, 1960. In the meantime, the conference between the United States, Britain, and the U.S.S.R., which had been in recess, reconvened on October 27 in Geneva.

2 The expansionist drive of the Soviet Union has caused profound uneasiness in the nations on its borders. United States bases were established with the full consent of the host nations and are an essential part of the free world's defenses. When the Soviets give concrete evidence that they have no aggressive intentions, these bases will, of course, be given up.

3 In a society where working men and women move freely between jobs and where each year brings larger manpower to the work force, there is always a fluid group of unemployed. America's jobholding population stands today at a historic high—more than 67 million employed. The standard of living of the American worker under the free enterprise system is not only the highest in the world, but is steadily rising.

4 Shopping is a favorite pastime of tourists from all lands and is one way of absorbing foreign customs. Thousands of Americans also live with European or Asian families, study in overseas schools, paint foreign landscapes, spend long hours in Notre Dame, the Tower of London, the Roman Forum, the Pitti Palace, and the Louvre. At the same time, foreigners in the United States wouldn't think of missing our supermarkets and department stores.

5 If the American press is captive of anyone, it is captive of the individual reader. It is reader interest that controls circulations and determines profits. Therefore, the political tone of the daily newspapers, weeklies, and periodicals in the United States—totaling some 20,000 publications—ranges from far left to far right. No "big" group could possibly hold captive such a dynamic force.

6 Americans own 56 million automobiles. Backed by vast purchasing power, Americans do not hesitate to satisfy their wide-ranging interests in both domestic and foreign-made merchandise. The foreign car is welcomed for its own unique features, but importation is but a very small fraction of American production.

7 The principal aim of the United Nations is peaceful cooperation between the countries of the world. The government of the Republic of China, one of the five permanent members of the Security Council, has always been represented in the U.N. On the other hand, Communist China, an aggressor in Korea—and openly pledged to use force in Taiwan—has shown that, in our opinion, it does not fulfill the requirements of the U.N. Charter.

8 U.S. expenditures for defense take a small bite from our Gross National Product compared to the Soviets'. We spend 9 per cent. Their outlay is in excess of 15 per cent for the military. It was shown after World War II that such spending is not a crutch for our economy. At that time, we shifted to a peacetime operation without serious dislocation.

9 Because it is not true. Taking the scientific picture as a whole, the United States is ahead, although the Soviets may for the time being have moved out front in rocket development and intercontinental ballistic missiles. U.S. achievements in basic and applied chemistry, agricultural research, various aspects of medicine, and applied and experimental physics have advanced well beyond those of the Soviets.

10 Because Communist China, in the eyes of the United Nations, is still an aggressor, and also because its intentions with regard to the Republic of China on Taiwan and its neighboring states are aggressive. The United States has no desire to help build up the Communist Chinese regime's potential for offensive action or to strengthen its oppression of the Chinese people. ■

How would you answer these questions?

Test yourself on some of the hardest questions tossed at Americans by foreigners at home and abroad. Then see how your answers stack up with mine.

1 Why does the United States stall on discontinuing nuclear tests?

2 If you don't intend to make war, why does the U.S. threaten the Soviet Union with a ring of military bases?

3 How can you say you are "prosperous" when you have millions of unemployed?

4 Why do Americans abroad spend all their time in shops, rather than learning about a foreign culture?

5 Isn't the American press the captive of big business?

6 If the United States excels in consumer goods, how do you explain the high demand for European cars?

7 Why do you oppose admission of Communist China to the United Nations?

8 Isn't it true that American prosperity is based on building a vast war machine?

9 The Soviets are ahead of you in technology. Why don't you admit it?

10 Why doesn't the United States trade with Communist China?

The answers to these questions involve some of the most difficult and complex problems facing you and your government in our foreign relations today. The answers given in the next column must, because of the limitations of space, be brief and perforce oversimplified. I believe, however, that they provide the basic reasoning in each case and will suggest the lines along which you can develop further discussion.

Q Is it true that Anthony Eden has already been paid $300,000 by an American publisher for 40 per cent of his memoirs?—V.P., Newark, N.J.

A An American magazine has paid that sum for an excerpt from The Memoirs of Sir Anthony Eden, which Houghton, Mifflin will publish next year.

Q I understand that Loretta Young is a descendant of the great Mormon leader Brigham Young. I understand that Rhonda Fleming and Laraine Day are also Mormons. Is Loretta one, too?—K.P., Provo, Utah.

A Miss Young is a Roman Catholic, Miss Day and Miss Fleming are of the Mormon faith.

Q I've been told that since his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor, Eddie Fisher cannot find a major sponsor on television. Is this on the level?—C.R., Boston, Mass.

A Many agents say it is substantially true at the moment but that the situation will change. Fisher's TV program last year was not the highest-rated show on the air, and it is difficult to tell whether sponsors are shy of him for that reason or because of his marriage to Miss Taylor and its effect on the public.

Q Can it be true that stage producer Leland Hayward plans to divorce his wife and marry Pamela Churchill, ex-wife of Randolph Churchill?—L.G., Jamaica, N.Y.

A Long Island society is buzzing with the rumor, but all three parties concerned deny comment at this point.

Q Can you tell me who now occupies the lovely Roman villa Mussolini once bought for his mistress, Clara Petacci?—H.S., Columbus, Ohio.

A The villa has been turned into one of Rome's most fashionable and expensive restaurants.

Q What is the real name of Jill St. John, who is engaged to marry Lance Reventlow, an heir to the Woolworth millions?—L.S., Washington, D.C.

A Jill Oppenheim.

Q One of the greatest manhunts has been for Adolf Eichmann, the Nazi in charge of the Gestapo's Jewish department. He was the man who supervised the extermination of 6 million European Jews. He changed his identity after the war and disappeared. Has anyone traced him?—E.O., Fort Worth, Tex.

A The Israeli radio station in Tel Aviv recently announced that Eichmann is now working as an oil company employee in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Kuwait.

Q Have Herbert Marshall, Cole Porter, and sports announcer Bill Stern each had one leg amputated?—E.F., Buffalo, N.Y.

A Yes.

Q I've heard a rumor that too much swimming has caused Esther Williams to lose her hair and that she now wears a wig. True or false?—B.P., Erie, Pa.

A False.

How to beat traffic jams

DETROIT, MICH.
THE DRIVER of the car in the photograph at left didn't make a wrong turn off a bridge. He drives his car on water all the time. Richard B. Cronin, a businessman here, took off the wheels of his 1949 convertible, put the engine in the rear, rejiggered the steering system, made the car leak-proof—then said goodbye to traffic lights with a splash. ■

My first American

by MARIA AUGUSTA TRAPP

A QUICK NOTE left for me in a Monroe, Mich., hotel showed me the "real America" soon after I came to this country. It began: "Dear Baroness: Our key is under the doormat..."

But I am ahead of my story. It was 1938 and the Trapp family had no home. We lived in inexpensive hotel rooms and on an ancient bus. The bus took us from town to town that winter for our first U.S. concert tour as the Trapp Family Singers. There were 10 of us—7 children, Father Wasner, our priest-conductor, Baron von Trapp, and myself.

Our home had been in Salzburg, Austria, which we left soon after the Baron refused a commission in Hitler's navy. We were refugees. Now our future hung on the day-to-day concert earnings.

Before that day in Monroe, I didn't know what the word "Thanksgiving" meant. I soon learned.

Conductor Father Wasner points out the musical score to Trapp Family Singers during rehearsal for tour. They live in Stowe, Vt., home that doubles as a lodge for skiers.

Broadway hit The Sound of Music, based on Trapp family story.

Thanksgiving

Early in the morning an envelope pushed itself under the door of my hotel room. "Dear Baroness," the note read: "Our key is under the doormat. Just make yourself at home. We hope you will have a good time. M.M." and an address.

The Trapp Family Singers, strangers in town, had been offered a home for Thanksgiving Day by a local family who could not even be there to share it with us. We could hardly believe what we saw as we stepped into "our" house in the residential section of Monroe. In the dining room a table was set for 10 with wine glasses and even two crystal decanters near by.

On the table was a second note: "Dinner is almost ready in the kitchen." Led by Lorli and our own excellent sense of smell, we found a huge turkey already stuffed for roasting, a big bowl of salad on the table, and with it two mysterious pastries, our first pumpkin pie!

Home Away from Home

Rupert and Werner, with Lorli and Rosmarie helpfully underfoot, made a fire in the living-room fireplace. Agatha and Hedwig directed operations in the kitchen. My husband, peacefully smoking his pipe, looked over the bookshelves, trying a volume here and there. Father Wasner sat down at the piano and began quietly to improvise, while for the longest time I stood at the window looking out into nowhere and fighting down my tears of joy and gratitude.

As we all came together around the table, Georg bade us rise while he proposed the first toast: "To our absent hosts. May God bless them in their undertakings a thousandfold." Thus, without actually realizing it, we celebrated Thanksgiving Day in its proper spirit. We also took a big step forward in the "discovery" of "our" country—for whose big heart all the vast plains, towering trees, and high mountains are but an appropriate setting. We were beginning to comprehend something of the real America.

Prize-winning Thanksgiving recipes

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

PITTSBURGH, PA.

WE HAVE ASKED A world-renowned chef to plan your Thanksgiving dinner this year. He's Otto Spielbichler, who won the Olympic gold medal for his mastery with turkey and trimmings. Chef Spielbichler, for 28 years executive chef at the University Club here, has given us not only his menu for a de luxe Thanksgiving dinner but his prize-winning recipes for stuffing, sauce, and a holiday side dish. His Princess Anne stuffing is the same that helped win the Olympic cooking honors for the U.S. in 1956, and it's a savory delight, with bits of crisp pork and turkey liver to spark the flavor. If stuffing isn't really stuffing to you without poultry seasoning or sage, add a tablespoon or two to taste. You'll like the new way of serving Brussels sprouts, too, with melted butter and finely chopped walnuts. And as a change from plain cranberry jelly, you will rejoice in the chef's three fruit sauce.

Princess Anne Stuffing

- 2 loaves (1 lb. each) unsliced bread
- 1 lb. boned shoulder of pork (medium fat)
- 1 turkey liver
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 eggs

Trim bread; let dry out completely. Soak bread in water; press out water thoroughly. Chill overnight in cloth bag with heavy weight on top to press out any remaining excess water. Put pork through food chopper, using medium blade; cook over low heat until no pink color shows. Put turkey liver through chopper; cook with pork until lightly browned. In a separate small skillet, cook the celery and onion in butter or margarine until onion is transparent. Crumble bread in large mixing bowl; add pork and liver together with drippings. Add celery, onion, and eggs; mix well. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and monosodium glutamate. Recipe will make enough stuffing to season a 12-lb. (dressed weight) turkey.

Jellied Three Fruit Sauce

- 2 apples, peeled and cored
- 1 seedless orange, unpeeled
- 1½ cups raw cranberries
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water

Cut apples and oranges in chunks, put through food chopper with cranberries, using coarse blade. Dissolve sugar and raspberry gelatin in boiling water; chill until slightly thickened; stir in fruit. Spoon into 1 quart mold; chill until firm; unmold on serving dish. Makes eight to 10 servings.

Brussels Sprouts with Walnut Butter

- 4 packages frozen Brussels sprouts
- ¼ lb. (1 stick) butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Cook Brussels sprouts as directed on package; drain. Melt butter; stir in walnuts; pour over sprouts. Makes eight to 10 servings.

STOP OILY SKIN TO CHECK PIMPLES!

Don't pick, scratch, squeeze
or merely "cover them up!"

Doctors know that acne or pimples are caused by the germ called the acne bacillus. These germs invade overactive oil glands in the skin, cause blackheads and pus pockets; then your skin "breaks out."

What's needed is (1) to dry up the excessive oil that collects on skin; (2) to destroy acne germs on the skin, and (3) to stop itching and irritation so pimples can heal.

The eagle comes home to roost

EVER SINCE the bald eagle was chosen in 1782 as our national emblem, eagles have been almost synonymous with Americana.

They have flown on coins, flags, and weather vanes throughout U.S. history. And every time patriotism flies high, too, the eagles flap right into our homes.

This year, perhaps because of the entry of Alaska and Hawaii into the Union, eagles are more popular than ever as home decorations.

The most stylish eagles for the home are antique birds, and the bigger the wing spread, in the judgment of the experts, the better. If you can't afford a real antique, reproductions are plentiful. So are 1959 versions of our favorite bird.

As you can see from the photo, eagles appear on rugs, fabric, lamps, wallpaper, and walls, and even on towel-racks and door knockers.

Big eagles, finished to look like wood antiques, are favorites as wall plaques. Little eagles come mostly in metal, and then there are composition and plastic eagles for as little as $1, which you can paint or stain, according to your preference.

Bernard Gray—Group 4

My favorite jokes

by JACK DURANT

WHEN JACK DURANT was a 9-year-old in New York City, he promised his grandmother $2 a week "if she could get me out of school." Somehow grandma engineered the deal, and the youngster ran away from home. He joined a group of traveling vaudevillians and made his debut as a female impersonator in Chicago's Rialto Theatre. That was 42 years ago. Since then Jack Durant has played in every avenue of show business.

One of his best anecdotes concerns his adventures in London in 1939. Back then Durant was booked into the Palladium for two weeks. His pregnant wife, Molly O'Day, wanted very much to join him, but Durant said it didn't pay for her to cross the ocean for only two weeks. Subsequently the comedian was held over for two more weeks, then another two weeks.

Durant, taken up with his London success, hired a press agent who promptly announced that his client intended to swim the English Channel. Durant went along with the gag, figuring it would soon fade. It didn't. The British press demanded to know when Durant was going to try his Channel swim. They played the story big.

In an effort to extricate himself from this embarrassing spot, Jack wrote his wife, by then furious because he wouldn't send for her, and implored her to send him a cable saying she absolutely forebade a Channel try because of herself and their three children.

Molly O'Day's wired reply read: "Congratulations. The children join me in wishing you every success on your Channel swim. We know you will make it."

Says Durant: "Three days later World War II broke out in Europe. That's what saved me. You see, I can swim only 30, maybe 40 yards."

EDITOR'S NOTE

I LOVE my mother-in-law. In fact I worship the ground her slacks drag on.

MY WIFE is so ugly I take her wherever I go. I'd rather do that than kiss her goodbye.

I'VE BEEN PLAYING Las Vegas for a long time at the Desert Inn and other night spots, and I can tell you from experience: There's only one way you can win money. Come with a gun and say, "Stick 'em up!"

MATTER OF FACT there's a big sign you see when you enter Las Vegas . . . very biblical: "The Good Lord giveth, and we taketh away."

A FEW WEEKS AGO when I was in New York City I heard two elderly women discussing space rockets. Said the first, "Did you see the way they shot that rocket toward the moon the other night?" Said the second: "I don't see anything. I live in the back."

I ALWAYS USE this opening line at benefits: "Stars may come and stars may go. But I go on for nothing."

EVERYONE SAYS to me nowadays, "Jack, why don't you get on TV?" I say, "Listen, I'm still trying to get on radio."

I HAVE a short-wave radio set, and because I understand Russian I frequently tune in on Radio Moscow. Yesterday I heard the Moscow Tomato Juice Program. The announcer came on and said, "Moscow Tomato Juice comes in seven delicious flavors. All red. We're not asking you to try it. We're telling you."

ON THE SAME PROGRAM there was a news announcement. Ivan Iko, Leningrad's No. 1 athlete," the announcer said, "just broke all existing track records for the 300-mile dash, the 400-mile dash, the 500-mile dash. He made these records on flat roads, hilly roads, and over our highest range of mountains. He made these records without food or water for three days. However, Ivan's performance was in vain. He was captured and brought back to Leningrad."

TRAVELING is so speedy these days. Soon you'll be able to traverse the world in two hours. One hour around the world, and the other hour to get to the airport.

EVERYONE wants to get to the moon these days. I don't know why. There's no one on the moon. If there was, you can rest assured that they would've asked Washington for a loan years ago.

A FEW MONTHS AGO my wife entered the Miss America beauty contest. The judges took one look at her, then suggested the government take her citizenship away.

JULIET PROWSE

HER 'CAN-CAN' SHOCKED

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

It's a sad truism, but the motion-picture industry today can no longer make a full-fledged star.

There are two main reasons for this: 1) television has become the No. 1 mass entertainment medium in America; 2) no major film studio in Hollywood currently produces enough films each year to afford a newcomer the amount of exposure necessary for stardom.

Thus, one of the few chances a young player enjoys today of quickly making it to the top is via the lucky break routine, i.e., getting involved in a provocative and titillating scandal such as the Elizabeth Taylor-Eddie Fisher-Debbie Reynolds triangle, which did more for Miss Reynolds' career than all her movies put together, or getting involved in a well-publicized film of tremendous exploitation potential.

Juliet Prowse hopes to make it via the second route.

Juliet is a tall (5'8"), lovely, sloe-eyed ballerina with the best legs of any girl in Hollywood.

She is also a top dancing talent and has a leading role in Can-Can. This is the musical extravaganza, starring Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, and herself, which shocked Mr. and Mrs. Khrushchev when they visited Hollywood.

World-wide Publicity

As a result the film was publicized all over the world. Along with the publicity went thousands of news photos of Juliet, talking to the Russian Premier and his party, and with Shirley MacLaine leading the chorus in the Can-Can number.

It so happens that Juliet was born in India 24 years ago, was raised in South Africa, and employed as a dancer in England, France, Spain, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, and Sweden—all this before coming to Hollywood six months ago.

Thus, when the story of Khrushchev's disapproval of the can-can broke overseas, Juliet's role in the affair loomed large. The Indian press described her as "the dancer from Bombay who shocked the Soviet leader with her gyrations." The South African press described her as "the one-time dancer from Durban who horrified the Russian leader." And so it went. In many of the countries where she had performed, Juliet was depicted as a local girl in the international spotlight—because of a dance Khrushchev considered vulgar.

KHRUSHCHEV

Whether the can-can is vulgar or not, moviegoers will have to judge for themselves. But that it should not have been shown to the Khrushchev family as a typical movieland contribution to the arts, virtually everyone from President Eisenhower down agrees.

What actually happened at the 20th Century-Fox Studio on the memorable afternoon of September 19 is that following a luncheon in the studio commissary, the Khrushchev party was escorted to the sound stage where Can-Can was being filmed.

After the guests of honor were presented to the cast and seated, Frank Sinatra stepped forward and explained that they would see portions of two scenes. In the first, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan sang a duet. Then Shirley MacLaine, making a breathless little speech in Russian, thanked Mr. Khrushchev for sending over such wonderful artists as the famous Bolshoi Ballet and invited him to watch the American dancers.

Then, bang! It came with a wham! The can-can—led first by Juliet Prowse and then the rest of the girls and Shirley. They kicked and twirled, showed off their fronts, their backs, their sides. They dropped to the floor, raised their legs, and went through a series of gyrations Mr. Khrushchev felt belonged to private rather than public demonstration.

Mrs. Khrushchev, who had smiled happily at Chevalier's number, frowned in disbelief. Khrushchev tried to maintain the self-possessed air of the man-of-the-world. But even this pretension was demolished by the climax of the dance. Juliet Prowse and Shirley MacLaine assumed stances with their legs spread wide apart. Two young male dancers then slid through their legs, each holding triumphantly aloft a pair of panties.

Mr. and Mrs. Khrushchev looked at each other astonished, said nothing.

A day later, when the Khrushchev party arrived in San Francisco, the Russian leader met with a group of American union chiefs at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. The union leaders, Walter Reuther, James Carey, and several others, began asking Mr. Khrushchev some embarrassing questions concerning Soviet workers and their lack of freedom to conduct a strike.

Mr. K. Does the Can-can

At this point, in retaliation, Khrushchev unexpectedly gave a burlesque imitation of the can-can he had seen in Hollywood. He turned his back to the table and flipped his coat up, wiggling his hips.

"This is a dance," he announced, "in which girls pull up their skirts. You're going to see that. We are not. This is what you call freedom—freedom for the girls to show their backsides. To us it's pornography, the culture of a people who want pornography. It's capitalism that makes girls that way."

Paul Phillips, president of the United Paperworkers, asked: "Does the Chairman think the girls should be prohibited by law from showing their backsides?"

Khrushchev's answer: "There should be a law prohibiting the girls from showing their backsides—a moral law."

Next day Khrushchev's opinion of the can-can made headlines everywhere. And Juliet Prowse, heretofore a relatively unknown brought over by 20th Century-Fox from Spain to dance in Can-Can at $350 a week, found herself a name bandied about by the world press.

Fortunately, Juliet has talent to go with that name. She's been dancing since the age of 4. Two years ago, choreographer Hermes Pan saw Juliet dance in Italy, described her as "the most graceful, stimulating, and attractive dancer I've seen in Europe for ages."

This year, when Pan was signed to choreograph Can-Can, he cabled Juliet in Madrid where she was working, told her to catch the first plane to Hollywood.

Here she was quickly signed for the film, given the role of Claudine, a dancer who makes a play for Sinatra. According to the script, Sinatra is a lawyer in love with a saloon-owner, Shirley MacLaine.

A single, forthright, and intelligent girl, ballerina Prowse admits that "I would never have shown the Khrushchev party the can-can number. I would have shown them the Adam and Eve ballet or the Apache number. But, after all, I'm a poor little nobody. I'm not running the studio."

Even so, Juliet realizes her good fortune in being connected with the now notorious film, hopes avidly it will pay off.

"INVISIBLE EAR" OPENS WORLD OF SOUND

Happy teenage daze

Teenagers live in a wonderful world of their own—where eager young lads endlessly try to impress demure young lasses, who love every minute of it. Today, PARADE cartoonists, now at the age when they can look back on all that and laugh, do just that as they turn a nostalgic eye on youth's shenanigans. That moment at the front door of "her" house was always pretty serious — especially when Pop showed up unexpectedly. But, as these cartoons show, there was built-in comedy, too. ■
